VOTING IS HEAVY IN CITIES, FAIR
IN RURAL AREAS OF MINNESOTA

Stevenson's Strength in Urban Areas, Kefauver's in Country—Sunny Day for Presidential Primary.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 20 (AP)—Heavy voting was reported in metropolitan centers today in the Minnesota presidential primary—the first head-on clash between Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Sunny skies offered a perfect setting for the initial test of strength between the two Democratic contenders. On the Republican side, President Eisenhower faced the technical opposition of Senator William F. Knowland of California. But Knowland got into the race before Mr. Kefauver announced for re-election and is not contesting here.

Election officials in St. Paul estimated the vote there would reach nearly 95,000, an extremely heavy turnout—it was pushed along by municipal contests.

Local issues boosted the vote. Balloting also was heavy in Duluth, where local issues also boosted the vote. Minneapolis, without local contests, also indicated a strong turnout, which officials said might reach 115,000.

It is in the metropolitan centers that Stevenson was expected to run strongest.

In rural sections, the source of Kefauver's greatest strength, early voting ranged from light to fair.

Guided by hot local questions, Duluth voters surpassed the 1952 presidential primary count by as much as 4 to 1.

Mr. Eisenhower was assured of the state's 28 votes at the G.O.P. national convention. The real contest was between Stevenson and Kefauver, with 30 convention votes and crucial prestige riding on the outcome.

Guesstimates on the voter turnout ranged upward to 500,000, compared with 426,000 four years ago.

Spot checks in the early afternoon showed more Democrats than Republicans asking for ballots in such scattered communities as Moorhead, Marshall, New Ulm and Fergus Falls.

At New Ulm, 157 persons had asked for Democratic ballots by noon compared with 25 in 1952. Republican voting was up, too, from 117 to 189.

Some Switching Parties. Here and there, signs appeared that some Republicans were going into the Democratic primary. One Moorhead polling place reported a few Republicans asking for Democratic ballots.

Albert Lea election authorities reported some grumbling by voters who didn't want their party leavings known.

Polls will be open in the state's 366 precincts from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Ballot counting starts at the polls close.

This is the nation's second primary, and Stevenson and Kefauver both are on the ballot for the first time, along with slates of convention delegates pledged to them. So Minnesota supplies a more inclusive test for their presidential ambitions than the primary last Tuesday in New Hampshire, where Kefauver picked off all eight convention votes.

Stevenson kept his name off the ballot in New Hampshire and didn't waste into the campaign there, although a delegate slate "favorable" to him was entered.

Except for a small but fervent committee of helpers, Kefauver has had to campaign pretty much on his own against what he says have been formidable "handicaps and obstacles." Yet in rural areas he has been

DEFENSE HEARD IN BRESNAHAN'S
BRIBERY TRIAL

State Ends Case—Midwife Says There Is No Doubt of Ex-Deputy's Identity.

Defense testimony began today in the trial of Hugh J. Bresnahan, former St. Louis county deputy sheriff charged with taking a bribe, after Circuit Judge Raymond E. La Driere overruled a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

The state closed its case this morning before a jury at Clayton shortly after Mrs. Mary Vugrich, former midwife in the county, testified "there is no doubt" that Bresnahan is the man to whom she paid $1500 to avoid prosecution for performing an abortion.

The first witness called by the defense was Leonard L. Bornschein, an assistant prosecuting attorney in the county. Bresnahan was expected to take the stand later.

Mrs. Vugrich, now living on a farm near Edwardsville, testified yesterday that she was taken from her jail cell to see Bresnahan in a room at the county courthouse the morning following her arrest Feb. 12, 1953.

Remark About Money. She quoted him as saying: "I'm going to need some money. You know it's going to cost you some money."

When Mrs. Vugrich asked how much, Bresnahan said, "How much do you have?" the witness testified. She said he rejected her offer of $1000 and she finally agreed to pay $1500.

After being released on bond the following day, Mrs. Vugrich went to her home in the 3200 block of Lucas-Hunt road, obtained the $1500 in cash and met Bresnahan by pre-arrangement at Lucas-Hunt and Natural Bridge road, where she made the payment, she told the jury.

The young woman on whom Mrs. Vugrich performed an abortion testified yesterday she heard the midwife offer money when Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley and his deputies raided Mrs. Vugrich's home. She identified Bresnahan as one of the deputies present.

Walter Wehrle, attorney for Bresnahan, asked on cross-examination: "Didn't you hear one of the deputies say 'If anything happens to this little girl, it will cost you a whole lot more in court?'"

"Yes," the young woman replied.

Former Deputies Testify. Two former deputy sheriffs testified for the defense they heard no offers of money made during the raid on the Vugrich home. Harry D. Newbold, former captain of the sheriff's homicide division, described Mrs. Vugrich as "excited and hysterical" while the raid was in progress. He said he heard no offer of money made to Bresnahan.

Newbold also testified he did not see Bresnahan at the county jail, or in the identification room the day following Mrs. Vugrich's arrest. The testimony was designed to counter her statement she was taken from jail to a room in the courthouse to see Bresnahan.

Bert Gaus, a former special deputy, who participated in the raid, denied hearing Mrs. Vugrich offer money to Bresnahan.

Mrs. Vugrich was fined $1000 when she pleaded guilty to the abortion charge Jan. 20. Bresnahan is now a tavern operator.

1800 MARINES SAIL
TO JOIN 6TH FLEET
IN MEDITERRANEAN

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C., March 20 (UP)—A reinforced battalion of United States Marines sailed today to join the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The Defense Department announced early this month that the Marines would go to the Mediterranean as a routine training exercise but Washington officials said it was designed as a show of force.

The 1800 Marines boarded naval transports at Morehead City just before sailing time. Tanks, artillery, equipment and supplies were loaded yesterday.

The six-ship flotilla includes an attack cargo vessel, two attack transports, a landing ship dock to carry heavy weapons, a fast assault transport and the command ship Taconic, flagship of R. Adm. John Sylvester.

WOMAN LEAVES
SUITCASE, $1000
SITTING ON CURB

OCALA, Fla., March 20 (UP)—Police broadcast radio appeals today for the return of a suitcase containing $1000 which a woman left on a curb after stopping for lunch.

Mrs. Susie Williams of Highland Park, Mich., told officers she did not realize the suitcase was missing until she was 20 miles south of Ocala, en route with her son to Miami.

She made a speedy return, but was too late. Police learned an unidentified Negro woman had found the little brown suitcase, and walked off with it when she could not find anyone to claim it.

Mrs. Williams said she took the suitcase into a restaurant with her when she stopped for lunch. On the way back to the car, one of her earnings fell off. She put the suitcase down to pick up the earnings. Then, she said, she got in the car and drove off, forgetting the suitcase.

ROUTED RED SHIPS IN MATSU
WATERS, FORMOSA CLAIMS

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 20 (UP)—Five Chinese Communist gunboats were repelled in an attempt to invade the Matsu island waters tonight, the National Defense Ministry announced.

A communiqué said the Reds were repulsed by Nationalist gunners after a one-hour artillery duel. The announcement said Red guns at Huanchi fired 114 rounds at Matsu during the engagement.

Matsu underwent a one-hour air alert this morning as four unidentified planes approached the offshore island. Meanwhile, Red guns on Amoy fired 45 rounds tonight at Quemoy island to the south.

90 INJURED ON QUEEN MARY
DURING ATLANTIC STORMS

SOUTHAMPTON, England, March 20 (AP)—Atlantic storms caused injury to 90 persons aboard the British liner Queen Mary last weekend.

On its arrival yesterday, ambulance took six of the injured to Southampton hospitals. Two others were landed and taken to a hospital at Cherbourg, France. Other passengers and crew members were treated for cuts and bruises in the ship's hospital.

It was estimated that in the five dining halls, 5000 pieces of crockery were smashed or broken.

"It was bad for four days," said Capt. Donald Sorrell. "There were gales up to 70 miles an hour and waves reached 50 feet."

Where we were unable to agree, we agreed to differ," he told Parliament.

Nehru said he had taken up with Dulles the question of United States aid to Pakistan. He added this American help permitted Pakistan to try to bargain with India from a "position of strength."

Dulles in his visit to New Delhi told a press conference Pakistan would not use the American arms for aggression. He declared any Pakistani aggression against India would raise the United States to India's side in the U. N. and would quickly end good relations.

NEHRU AGAIN
ASSAILS MANILA,
BAGHDAD PACTS

Criticism Serves Notice
Visit by Western Ministers Failed to Win India Over.

NEW DELHI, March 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru again sharply attacked the Manila and Baghdad pacts today, serving notice that India and the West were no closer as a result of the Western Big Three foreign ministers' recent visit.

Nehru disclosed to Parliament that his government had protested formally to the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty powers about the mention of Kashmir at the meeting of the so-called Manila pact in Karachi.

Nehru's statement dispelled hopes among Western observers that he would moderate his public attacks on Western military pacts as a result of the visit.

This month by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau.

Nehru, who will visit President Eisenhower in Washington in July, reported to Parliament on the three westerners' visits. He made no mention of Russian policies except to repeat that he thought the recent Moscow communist party congress represented a new realistic Soviet policy.

Signed With Reds. When Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev visited India, Nehru signed a joint communiqué with them in the Kashmir dispute. He asserted the Western-sponsored Baghdad pact "is partly responsible for a good deal of the present trouble plaguing west Asia."

He charged it "has rent asunder Arab unity."

The eight foreign ministers at Karachi urged speedy settlement of the Kashmir dispute either by a United Nations-sponsored plebiscite in the Himalayan state which both nations claim or by direct negotiations between the New Delhi and Karachi governments.

Pakistan wants the plebiscite, since Kashmir's population—like Pakistan's—is largely Moslem. Nehru opposes the vote.

Kashmir Divided. Kashmir, the thorniest issue between India and Pakistan, is now divided between an Indian-sponsored government and a pro-Pakistan faction.

India and Pakistan yesterday exchanged charges of aggression in a border clash. Pakistani claimed 10 Pakistanis were killed and 18 wounded. India said it lost one soldier killed and 12 wounded.

Nehru said the Manila pact action on Kashmir meant that a military alliance was actively taking sides in the dispute. He added that it was a special matter of disappointment and regret that three other members of the British Commonwealth—Britain, Australia and New Zealand—had joined in the stand.

Pakistan and India also are Commonwealth members. Nehru said his discussions with the representatives of the Western Big Three had been most valuable.

"Where we were unable to agree, we agreed to differ," he told Parliament.

Nehru said he had taken up with Dulles the question of United States aid to Pakistan. He added this American help permitted Pakistan to try to bargain with India from a "position of strength."

Dulles in his visit to New Delhi told a press conference Pakistan would not use the American arms for aggression. He declared any Pakistani aggression against India would raise the United States to India's side in the U. N. and would quickly end good relations.

U.S. TO SUPPORT
LIBERAL FRENCH SOLUTION FOR ALGERIA REVOLT

Dillon Rejects Idea of Rift Between 2 Nations but Seems to Be Trying to Avoid Offending Arabs.

PARIS, March 20 (AP)—The United States today pledged its support to France in the search for a "liberal and equitable solution" to the Nationalist uprising in Algeria.

United States Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon, in an address to the French Diplomatic Press Association, strongly rejected any idea of a rift between the United States and France over North African policy. He, in effect, replied to French colonists in North Africa who have accused the United States of encouraging the Arab Nationalists.

At the same time he appeared to be trying to avoid offending the sensitive Arab world.

Dillon condemned the rebel campaign of violence in the strategic North African territory. He declared:

"The United States stands solidly behind France in the search for a liberal and equitable solution of the problems in Algeria."

He stressed, however, that United States backing of France hinges on its following a liberal policy toward the Nationalist sentiments of the North Africans.

Speaking in French, Dillon said:

"The French government has proposed for Algeria a liberal program, the basic element of which is a search for new arrangements for the continued coexistence of the French and Moslem communities."

"The French government has solemnly promised free elections for the purpose of choosing these leaders. Such elections are wholly consistent with the ideals of liberty and justice which are held dear by both the French and American people."

Dillon added elections cannot take place "while disorder reigns."

He said Americans "have always been shocked by blind acts of terrorism and those who take part in such activity should not for a moment imagine that they have the support of my government or any segment of our public opinion."

Officials said the speech was approved in advance by President Eisenhower's Administration.

External Influences. Apparently referring to charges that Egypt and the Kremlin have been fostering the Moslem revolt in North Africa, Dillon said:

"We recognize that there have been external influences at work trying to undermine the French position throughout North Africa."

He hoped that what I have just said will be of help in enabling the people of France to differentiate sharply between their friends and their foes, between the friends and allies who support her in her search for liberal and fair solutions, and those who have sought to destroy the possibility of a continuing relationship between France and the Moslem communities throughout North Africa."

Dillon hailed France's grant of self-rule to its other northwestern African territories—Morocco and Tunisia. He said the United States has no desire to interfere in any way with the close relationship between France and these two countries, a relationship which we look upon as one of the bulwarks of the free world.

Nehru's statement came less than 48 hours after France clamped down on Algeria with virtual state-of-siege measures aimed at suppressing the revolt. Military reinforcements have been ordered for the territory, and some 200,000 French troops already are ringed against the rebel guerrillas.

Two French mechanized divisions are being airlifted from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization base in Morocco.

U.S. ACTS TO SEIZE TOWN'S PROPERTY
FOR DEBT OF $3600

PHILADELPHIA, March 20 (AP)—The Federal Government, in an unusual move, has taken action to seize municipal property of the borough of St. Clair unless that small community pays a debt of $3600 owed since 1951.

A writ of execution issued yesterday by United States Attorney W. Wilson White instructed the United States Marshal here "to seize all the personal property of the defendant to make good the amount owed."

The controversy centers around a loan made the Schuylkill county community of less than $800 for an addition to its sewage disposal plant. The addition has not been completed.

Joseph Long, president of the Borough Council, said he would get in touch with White to iron out the dispute which Long termed a misunderstanding.

FARM BILL PASSED 93-2
IN SENATE; DEMOCRATS
SCORE MAJOR VICTORY

Witness Tells of Financing
Of Negro Boycott of Busses
Secretary of Improvement Association
Testifies Many Checks Went to Drivers in Motor Pool.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 20 (AP)—Prosecuting attorneys developed testimony today that a newly-formed Negro organization has devoted most of its efforts to supporting the segregation boycott of city busses in Montgomery.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., first of 90 Negro leaders called to trial on indictments growing out of the boycott, is president of the Montgomery Improvement Association, formed Dec. 5, the day the Negroes began their mass refusal to ride segregated busses.

Purpose of the testimony was to try to link the Rev. Mr. King to what the state calls a conspiracy to hinder operation of the bus company, Montgomery City Lines, Inc.

Mr. Erna Dungee, financial secretary of the Improvement Association, was back on the witness stand for the second day to identify checks paid out by the organization. Many of them, she said, went to drivers who have used cars in a motor pool which has provided transportation for Negroes during the boycott.

Mrs. Dungee testified also that she saw the Rev. Mr. King at many of the mass meetings held at Negro churches twice a week since the boycott started, and that the 27-year-old Baptist minister spoke at some of the rallies. But she said she couldn't recall what he said except that he discussed "the protest," which is the Negroes' term for the dispute.

Mrs. Dungee said also that collections of money were taken up at every mass meeting she remembered and that "I'm sure" some of the money went to the Improvement Association.

Mrs. Dungee said the Negro organization has performed no direct function besides supporting the bus boycott and has spent no money "directly" for any other purpose. She said the association did help out with baskets for needy Negroes but she did not recall spending any of the organization's money for that purpose.

A Baptist minister who refused to swear on oath as a witness followed Mrs. Dungee, on the stand and told of the organizational meeting of the Improvement Association. The Rev. J. Fields, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Montgomery, told the court "I

41 AMENDMENTS
WHICH NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE

Effort to Be Made to Iron Out Differences
With House Plan—Condemnation by G.O.P. Leaders.

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR
The New York Times News Service,
Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20—The Senate wrapped up its election-year farm bill last night after Democrats scored a major victory.

Final passage came on a roll-call vote, 93 to 2. Republican Senators Prescott Bush of Connecticut and Ralph Flinders of Vermont cast the negative votes.

As it now stands, the bill calls for $1,700,000,000 in new money to aid farmers and at least one billion dollars more through increased federal price supports.

Loaded with 41 amendments, the bitterly contested bill now goes to a Senate-House conference to iron out differences with a measure the House adopted last year.

Administration forces condemned the Senate bill before final passage while Democrats looked on it as the best possible legislation after the defeat of right-puller support.

The Administration won its fight to retain the present flexible price support system, but the over-all bill represented a Democratic victory through amendments.

Aiken Denounces Measure. Senator George D. Aiken (Rep., Vermont), who was floor manager for the Administration, asserted the bill "has been warped and emasculated beyond any visible resemblance to the program recommended by President Eisenhower."

"As the bill now stands, it would demoralize our farm economy," he told the Senate in a 14-page denunciation of the measure. He hoped that the Senate-House conferees would quickly remedy the defects he detailed before sending it on to the President. He said the Senate bill contains provisions that would warrant "three or four veto."

(The United Press quoted Senate Republican Minority Leader William F. Knowland of California as predicting today after a White House conference that the President would veto the bill unless it is "modified" by a Senate-House conferees committee.)

"Knowland said the Administration regarded the bill as 'unworkable' in its present form."

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, expressed hope that "the conferees will try to write a bill that will be acceptable to Congress and to the President."

At the same time, he said the Senate should insist on its amendments and promised to do all he could to get the measure to the President before the Easter recess that begins on March 29.

On a roll-call vote, 50 to 44, the Democrats won an amendment to put a big chunk of the country's farm surpluses in the three major crops into a set-aside that would "insulate" them from the market and take them out of price support calculations. This automatically would increase price supports by an amount that some farm sources estimated might be nearly one billion dollars.

Other Amendments. Two other major amendments adopted in the final day of the long debate were:

1. A requirement, adopted 48 to 46, that farmers must put part of their tillable land in the soil bank to qualify for price supports next year.

2. A requirement, adopted 49 to 44, that farmers receive "a fair price" under special purchase programs operated by the Secretary of Agriculture for pork, beef and other perishable products.

The vote to set aside part of the crop surplus was a big test of party strength. The Democrats rose to the occasion behind the Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who had spent the weekend lining up his forces. The Democrats picked up five Republicans while losing only five of their own members who teamed with 39 Republicans. The result represented a gain of eight Democrats for the party line.

On previous issues as many as 13 Democrats had strayed from the party fold.

This triumph was the climax of three and a half weeks of acrimonious debate and nine days of voting. It ended on the note on which it began—with charges of political maneuvering and connivance from both sides.

Republicans labeled the set-aside, which followed the party line, "a bait and switch."

SPRING ARRIVES,
LEAP YEAR MAKES IT A DAY EARLY

Spring officially began at 9:21 this morning. It came a day earlier than usual because this is a leap year. In spite of the slight change in schedule for the sun's path, the sun's rays have appeared at Shaw's Garden to greet the new season.

Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren said the low reading this morning, 29 at 7 a.m., was several degrees colder than normal. But, in keeping with the season, he predicted warmer weather through tomorrow with the high tomorrow an almost normal 60.

The astronomical spring starts when the earth reaches a point in its orbit around the sun at which the earth's polar axis is at right angles to the sun's rays. The sun is at the equator in its apparent journey north.

AIR FORCE PLANS
PARACHUTE JUMPS
FROM 17 MILES UP

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The Air Force plans to parachute human beings from 17 or more miles above the earth.

The unprecedented bailout would take place over the New Mexico desert late next fall. The men would jump from heights as much as two times any previous parachute jumps.

Plans for "Project Explorer" were disclosed at a press conference last night by three Air Force officers associated with high altitude, high speed bailout experiments.

The officers reported that Lt. Henry Nielsen, 31, co-holder of the unofficial record for high-altitude parachute jumps, will lead the new attempts. Nielsen and one other airman would make the jump, using recently developed automatic operating devices for bail-out of fast planes at altitudes up to 90,000 feet.

Col. Arthur Henderson, assistant chief of the Aero Medical Laboratory, Dayton, O., said the purpose of the planned jumps is to develop safe equipment and procedures for bail-out of fast planes at altitudes up to 90,000 feet.

One hair stylist presently is setting the "Malenkov fringe" with beer but hopes to be using vodka in the near future.

HOOVER JR. SAYS NEW FOREIGN AID FUND IS VITAL TO INSPIRE ALLIES

Tells House Committee
Long Range Program
Would Provide More Flexibility—Changes Predicted.

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—With President Eisenhower's $4,859,975,000 foreign aid program facing the prospect of major alterations, Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today and began the task of trying to sell it to Congress.

Hoover said the program, submitted yesterday in a message from President Eisenhower, will continue to strengthen America's allies, achieve greater flexibility and continuity. He also said it will "continue soundly and affirmatively our economic program, which in itself is the best answer to new Soviet activities."

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, Representative Passman, (Dem., Louisiana), chairman of an Appropriations subcommittee handling aid funds, said he was "stunned" by the President's request.

"If the Congress did not appropriate another dollar for the foreign aid program, it could operate at its present level of expenditures for in excess of three years," Passman said in a statement. "I approached the President to deliberately endeavor to put the camel's nose under the tent with his request for limited foreign aid spending authority 10 years in advance."

Sensors Object.
Foreign Affairs Chairman Richards (Dem., South Carolina), also called the $4,859,975,000 figure too large. And objections were voiced in the Senate—not only to the size of the program but to the long-range commitments it calls for.

The committee also heard testimony today from John B. Hollister, head of the International Co-operation Administration, which handles the foreign aid program but to the long-range commitments it calls for.

Hoover testified that the controversial request for authority to make long-range foreign aid commitments would provide "a larger measure of flexibility."

The authority sought is the only way to inspire countries to "develop additional financing from other sources," Hoover said.

Richards said he thought it would be better for Congress to state its intention to continue the aid program without committing itself to any stated amount for a specific number of years.

Billion Sought.
Mr. Eisenhower asked for authority to spend up to one billion dollars over the next 10 years—at the rate of $100,000,000 annually—on long-range development projects abroad.

Senator Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, greeted the request with a statement that "I do not look with favor upon commitments for 10 years or other long periods for foreign economic aid."

Nations needing such aid, Knowland said, should look primarily to private investment and "should create an economic climate that would attract rather than repel such investment."

Senator George (Dem., Georgia), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "I am on record in favor of reducing foreign economic aid expenditures and against long range commitments."

Senator Sparkman (Dem., Alabama), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he liked the idea of a long range plan, but thought Congress should make the appropriations annually, after a review.

Too High, Mansfield Says.
Another member of the committee, Senator Mansfield (Dem., Montana), said he regarded the military aid figures as too high.

Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, a Republican member of the committee, promised full support to the President's program. He said it "outlines clearly the challenge we face in assisting our friends and allies to strengthen themselves economically and militarily."

Two other Republican committee members who commented were Langer of North Dakota and Capehart of Indiana.

Langer, a consistent critic of foreign aid programs, simply said "I'm against it—all of it."

Capehart said he wanted "to take a good, long look at the whole matter." He said he believed economic aid should be handled through loans to businesses in the country to be benefited.

Bus Boycott Defendant

THE REV. M. L. KING JR. escorting his wife as they leave court at Montgomery, Ala., where King was first of 90 defendants to be called to trial yesterday for the prolonged mass boycott of the city's segregated busses.

Testimony on Financing Of Negro Bus Boycott

don't swear. It's against my religious conviction. But I promise to tell the truth."

Circuit Judge Eugene Carter agreed that was good enough. The Rev. Mr. Fields, secretary of the Improvement Association, testified that the organization grew out of a meeting of the Montgomery Interdenominational Ministerial, a group of Negro ministers.

He referred to penciled notes of his minutes of the organizational meeting repeatedly during his questioning, but declined to go beyond that on incidents he said he could not remember.

On one question, he said his notes showed three members appointed a committee but that his minutes didn't show what committee it was and "my memory does not allow me to recall."

Questioned about the appointment of a transportation committee, he said his minutes bore an entry about a transportation committee but "I see those words and they don't make sense to me now."

The Negroes have all exercised their right to demand separate trials. All have waived the right to trial by jury, leaving it up to Judge Carter to decide on their guilt or innocence.

Mrs. Dunjee yesterday identified bank deposits totaling about $30,000 made out in the name of the Improvement Association. She also identified photographs of checks totaling $3000 signed by herself and the minister in payment for gasoline.

When the prosecution sought to bring out whether the gasoline money was used to provide rides for Negro bus boycotters, Carter ruled out the question at the request of defense attorneys.

The Negro woman said drivers of the automobiles use in a car pool to transport Negroes received a standard wage of $24 a week.

A previous Negro witness, the Rev. A. W. Wilson, a member of the Improvement Association's executive committee, testified that as far as he knew the organization had done nothing except to seek "better treatment" for Negroes on busses.

J. H. Bagley, manager of the bus company and the first witness called yesterday, identified the Rev. Mr. King as one of the Negro leaders who told him they thought the boycott would end if certain demands were met.

Among the 89 defendants scheduled for subsequent trial is Mrs. Rosa Parks, the seamstress whose conviction for refusing to move to the rear of a bus brought on the boycott. Negroes generally have stayed off the busses since Mrs. Parks was fined $14 on Dec. 5 for violating state and city segregation laws.

Bagley testified that 90 to 95 per cent of the Negroes who formerly used busses have stopped riding them. The Rev. Mr. King is pastor of Dexter Avenue Baptist Church. His parsonage home was slightly damaged by a dynamite explosion.

Two Negroes Convicted of Beating Alabama U. Student.
TUSCALOOSA, Ala., March 20 (AP)—An all-white jury in circuit court yesterday convicted two Negro brothers of beating a University of Alabama student.

Arthur Washington, 23 years old, and John Washington, 19, were fined $500 each and sentenced to six months in jail for attacking a 19-year-old freshman in anger over mob action against Miss Autherine Lucy, Negro student enrolled in the University of Alabama at the time.

The brothers were indicted for assault with intent to murder, which carries a sentence of two to 20 years on conviction. The jury found the Washingtons guilty of a lesser charge of assault and battery, a misdemeanor. They did not appeal.

Samuel Perrin Taylor, the white student, testified that he was attacked by the brothers without cause the night of Feb. 14, eight days after the Negro student was driven from the university campus.

Defense Attorney William Allen said that the main provocation was the tenseness of the situation here at the university and at Tuscaloosa at that time. There was no malice toward Taylor.

"It's up to us here to prove to the world that we won't be swayed by prejudice."

TURK CYPRIOTS SMASH GREEK SHOPS IN NICOSIA

Over Uprising in Another Village—British Use Tear Gas.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 20 (UP)—Gangs of flag-waving Turkish Cypriots swarmed through the streets of Nicosia today smashing Greek shop windows and shouting for revenge against Greek Cypriots. They ran head-on into a tear gas barrage by British security forces.

The rioters were stirred up by eyewitness reports of a clash yesterday between Turkish and Greek Cypriots in the northern coastal town of Vassilia. The reports said 38 persons were injured, many of them Turkish women and children beaten by Greek villagers in retaliation for a Turkish stone-throwing barrage.

The violence today erupted in Metaxas square after the Turks had marched to the Greek section. The plotters spotted a Greek photographer taking pictures of the demonstration. They beat him and smashed his camera. Two Greek reporters were chased into a cafe where they barricaded themselves.

The rioters then turned toward the Turkish consulate but British troops armed with sten guns blocked the way and turned them back. A Turkish leader had scheduled a speech there.

Turkish auxiliary police watched a group of boys stoned the office of Greek Lawyer G. Hadjipavlou, 30 yards from the main police station. The attorney appealed for police help, but was greeted with a hail of stones from the crowd.

As Turkish troops took no action, a British officer donned a gas mask and braved a shower of stones himself to clear the area single-handed with four tear gas bombs.

Turkish papers today reported that the Greeks in Vassilia tore holes in the roofs of Turkish houses, hurled lighted torches inside and pulled children from windows. The reports said the Turkish injured, including children of four and five, were "covered with blood" from the clash.

Greek Cypriots number some 400,000 persons as compared to a Turkish Cypriot population of 80,000. Until yesterday's rioting at Vassilia the Turks had been involved in no violence. While the Greeks have been carrying on a militant campaign in support of the British demand for unifying the Cyprus with Greece, the Turks have taken the position that if any change is made Cyprus should be placed under control of Turkey which once ruled the island.

U.S. REPORTED FAVORABLE TO ARMS BAR PLAN

British-French Proposal to Be Scrutinized at Five-Power Talks—
No Soviet Comment.

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—First American reaction appeared generally favorable today to a comprehensive disarmament plan submitted by Britain and France.

The plan, details of which were not made public, was being studied by the United States, Canada and the Soviet Union. It was presented at the opening yesterday of new talks here by the five-nation United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

Harold Stassen, head of the United States delegation, made it clear the United States had several reservations about the plan, but the American group seemed generally friendly toward it. The delegation referred the proposals to Washington.

No Soviet Comment.
The Soviet delegation expressed no opinion. First Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko listened attentively as the plan was presented and said he needed time for a careful study.

The official Soviet Government newspaper in Moscow, reported that the "opening of the subcommittee meeting was preceded by a significant event: the French Government's initiative in a constructive revision of previous Western disarmament proposals." The Moscow radio carried the comment, the United Press reported.

"All this explains why even born pessimists who previously specialized in gloomy forecasts concerning the outcome of the talks are now changing their tone," Izvestia said.

Ideas Combined.
The British-French proposal reportedly combines the most acceptable suggestions presented by both the East and West in years of negotiations. It sets out to limit conventional arms and armies and future production of nuclear weapons. It also would provide a global system of control and inspection.

Stassen read President Eisenhower's letter on disarmament, sent to Soviet Premier Bulganin early this month, and told the meeting the letter remains the basis of the United States view on disarmament. He said, however, the United States would have other suggestions to make.

Kremlin Cleaned Up Russia, Malenkov Tells British Labor

Stalin Dictatorship Can Never Rise Again in His Homeland, Former Soviet Premier Asserts.

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Former Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov says the present Kremlin command as "cleaned up" Russia and that a Stalin dictatorship can never rise again in his homeland.

Malenkov, now Soviet Minister of Power Stations, was a dinner guest of Labor party members of Parliament last night. The Laborites reported he gave his views on the Soviet situation in a two-hour question and answer period.

It was Malenkov's first public comment on the situation in Russia brought about by the denunciation of Stalin by Communist party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev and other high Kremlin leaders. Malenkov was closely associated with Stalin.

Malenkov Assurance.
Richard Crossman, one of the hosts at the dinner, told reporters Malenkov "repeatedly said, 'We have cleaned up Russia.'"

"He tried to impress on us that we need no worry," Crossman said, "that they had stopped dictatorship; that they had stopped the wicked things."

"He said very, very clearly it could not happen again; that collective government now has been firmly established, and that dictatorship could not return."

"I cannot say how many of us he convinced," Crossman added, "but he certainly tried hard."

Sidney Silverman, another Laborite at the dinner, said Malenkov told the group "collective leadership is now established, along with the right to dissent outside the collective leadership without being branded a traitor to the leadership and party and people."

"We did not ask him about his association with Stalin or his position in the Soviet hierarchy now," Silverman said, "but he gave us the impression he did not like Stalin."

Inability to Do Job.
Malenkov succeeded to the premiership after Joseph Stalin's death. Since he resigned from that post last year, confessing inability to do the job, there has been considerable speculation about the security of his position in the Kremlin lineup.

Malenkov is visiting Britain as head of a delegation of Soviet power industry experts.

In Moscow, the campaign to deflate Stalin continued with two first deputy premiers of the Soviet Union adding their voices to the chorus.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Anastas Mikoyan and Mikhail Pervukhin spoke at two big Moscow factories, leading "discussions of the directives of the Twentieth congress of the Communist party." The chief directive of the recent congress ordered the party's central committee to prevent the return of one-man rule such as prevailed under Stalin.

Reich Riot Reported.
The League of Free Jurists, an anti-Communist West Berlin organization, reported today that a small-scale riot among Communist party members was touched off Sunday in Finsterwalde, East Germany, when a large picture of Stalin was removed from in front of party headquarters.

The League said Communist People's police were called, but the policemen only encircled the headquarters and did not try to stop the fighting.

Another anti-Communist organization, the Group Fighting Against Inhumanity, reported that Stalin pictures have been removed from Potsdam schools.

In Rome Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti lashed out at non-Communist comments on the anti-Stalin campaign. He termed the commentators "a mob of shrieking apes."

Togliatti and his aids were reported having trouble deciding how to explain the Stalin switch to Italy's 2,000,000 Communists.

3 NEW GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE IN BRITAIN PROPOSED

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—A royal commission recommended today that Britain recognize three new grounds for divorce, now limited to adultery, cruelty and desertion.

It warned that the idea of life-long marriage is in danger through growing social acceptance of divorce as a casual matter.

The commission, headed by 68-year-old Lord Morton, spent 4½ years studying Britain's altering marriage pattern. Its 300,000-word report carried this theme: Divorce must not be made easier and all efforts should be made to bring divided couples together.

The 19-member commission unanimously recommended recognition of these as grounds for divorce:

Wilful refusal of one party to consummate the marriage, artificial insemination without the husband's consent and the fact that one party is a mental defective who has been detained for at least five years and who shows no hope of recovery from violent or dangerous characteristics.

EDEN TO HOLD 'LITTLE SUMMIT' TALK WITH REDS

He Plans Such Discussions When Bulganin, Khrushchev Visit Britain.

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden disclosed today he will hold "little summit" talks with Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev in their 10-day visit to Britain next month.

He told the House of Commons the discussions would cover "the many issues, which today divide the world."

"I regard that as the primary object and purpose of the visit," he said.

Bulganin and Khrushchev will arrive at Portsmouth on April 18 in a Russian naval ship. They will be received by Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle, tour Britain's civilian atomic energy plants and be guests at many civic and governmental receptions.

Asked by a Conservative: "What will all this cost?" Eden replied:

"Very much less than a millionth part of one hydrogen bomb."

Eden invited Bulganin and Khrushchev to England last summer at the Big Four summit talks at Geneva.

He undoubtedly will discuss with them the question of German reunification, Russian aspirations in the Middle East, disarmament, and probably the political situation in the Soviet Union where the late dictator Stalin has been denounced by the new Kremlin leaders.

Khrushchev is coming as a member of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, a Government post, not as party boss.

Giving out the first complete details of the program laid out for the Russian leaders, Eden said they will visit the houses of Parliament, and will be entertained at luncheon at the residence of the Lord Mayor of London and at dinner at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.

ELLENDER SAYS SENATE GROUPS FOR CITY FLOOD PROTECTION FUND

Chairman Asserts There Is 'No Need to Worry' —Equally Favorable
Feeling Reported in House.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20—The chairman of a Senate appropriations subcommittee said today his group would approve a $551,000 appropriation for advance planning of a flood protection system for St. Louis.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), assured a delegation of St. Louis civic leaders that they "need not worry" about a favorable recommendation by the subcommittee on public works appropriations.

Prospects for House approval appeared equally favorable. The St. Louis delegation, headed by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, appeared in behalf of the planning request before a similar House subcommittee yesterday.

The House and Senate subcommittees are considering the Administration's flood control budget request, which was increased from an original figure of $101,000 after the Army Corps of Engineers said the larger amount could be used for project planning during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Saved in 1951, 1952. In a statement submitted to the House group, Morton Meyer, president of the St. Louis Flood Control Association, said only a combination of favorable circumstances saved St. Louis from disastrous floods in 1951 and 1952.

The city suffered flood losses estimated at $10,000,000 in 1951. "The year of the great Kansas City flood" on the Missouri river, Meyer declared.

"We visualized a billion-dollar pile of rubble," Meyer said, "but three factors saved us: a great many breaks in levees and walls occurred between Kansas City and St. Louis; the Mississippi river was not high currently; and there was no local rainfall during the entire period of the crest."

Again in 1952, a Missouri river flood threatened St. Louis, "but once again Providence smiled on us and during the entire second half of April, when normally we can expect a lot of rain, there was unbroken sunshine through the entire valley," Meyer declared.

He said no one could expect that luck would save St. Louis forever. Sooner or later, the city will get a 52-foot flood stage, he added.

This would mean inundation of the city water work and reservoirs, cutting off the water supply, Meyer told the subcommittee. In addition, more than 250 miles of railroad track would be covered, shut down, reducing transportation facilities, he declared. Warehouses "would be ruined at the cost of millions of dollars."

Other witnesses at yesterday's hearing emphasized that St. Louis is the nation's only large city on a navigable stream without flood protection.

Representative Leonor K. Sullivan (Dem., St. Louis), pointed out that St. Louis voters last May approved a city bond issue which included an item of $7,547,000 as the city's contribution to the project. As authorized by Congress last year, the federal share would be $123,020,000.

St. Louis witnesses yesterday included Mayor Tucker, Representatives Frank M. Karsten, Democrat, and Thomas B. Curtis, Republican, and Senator Stuart Symington, Democrat.

3,335,000 ACRES IN WEST DAMAGED BY DUST STORMS

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture said today 3,335,000 acres of land in the Great Plains have been damaged this season by dust storms.

A survey showed further, it said, that 19,400,000 acres were in a condition to be damaged by wind erosion, due to lack of moisture and soil cover.

The department said about 94 per cent of the land already damaged this season is in Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas. About 85 per cent of that in a condition to blow was said to be in the same states.

The department said the land already damaged and that likely to be damaged was about the same total acreage in similar conditions a year ago.

Damage to growing wheat this season was put at 511,000 acres, most of it in Colorado and Texas.

JURY TO HEAR MEMBERS OF COUNTY HOUSING BOARD

Two members of the St. Louis County Housing Authority and the agency's former executive director were to appear today before the county grand jury, which is continuing its investigation of the authority's operation of the housing project at Jefferson Barracks.

Those who have been subpoenaed to testify are Paul Krueger, chairman of the authority; Walter Deem, a member, and Lendall M. Anderson, who was director and executive secretary of the agency until he was given the new position of comptroller last month.

In a report last week, the grand jury recommended that temporary buildings in the project be torn down because they are "hazardous to life and health." The authority's purchase of fuel oil for heating and cooking at some project apartments was expected to be the subject of further inquiry.

Congress Hails Sudan Self Rule. WASHINGTON, March 20 (UPI)—The Senate yesterday approved a resolution expressing the greetings of Congress to the people of Sudan on their recent independence.

Kaufmann, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, said floods which struck the city in 1943, 1944 and 1947 were "each of greater severity than the preceding one."

This fact, he said, "made us realize that a catastrophe of the proportions of the record flood of 1844 was a distinct possibility, and that such a flood would spell disaster for the city of St. Louis."

Other members of the St. Louis delegation were: Everett T. Winter, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association; William W. Crowder, secretary of the St. Louis Flood Control Association; H. L. Colwell, third vice president of the association; Dewey K. Lange, association treasurer, and Edwin B. Meissner Jr., a member of the board of directors.

2 HELD ON PISTOL CLUE IN SHOOTING OF 2 POLICEMEN

Weapon Found in Auto Abandoned by Robbers Is Traced and Leads to Arrest.

Extensive police work in tracing the ownership of a .45 caliber pistol found in a stolen automobile used by robbers who shot and wounded two police officers last Friday, has resulted in the arrest of two men, police announced today.

Police laboratory technicians found in the shoes of one of the men bits of broken glass of the same type as that in the broken vent window of the car used by the holdup men in the robbery at Joe and Pete's Tavern, Ninth and Mullany streets.

After finding the pistol in the stolen machine, which the robbers abandoned at Ninth and Tyler streets, police learned from the manufacturer of the weapon at Hartford, Conn., that it had been sold first to a hardware store in Amarillo, Tex. It was purchased next by a shoe company in Lubbock, Tex., for a night watchman, who later joined the Los Angeles Police Department.

From there it was traced to San Diego, Calif., where it was sold to a sailor from St. Louis. Police questioned the sailor here and he readily admitted he had the pistol, but when he went to look for it at his home, it was gone.

One of the men under arrest admitted taking it from the sailor, and said he sold it to the second man for $20. Witnesses police found said they had seen the latter with the weapon, but he has denied owning it, police said.

Probationary Patrolman James Frost, who with Patrolman Thomas Patrick Mulrooney was shot by the robbers as they fled from the tavern with about $600, could not positively identify the second man as one of the holdup men.

138,000,000 FINGERPRINTS DIFFER, FBI CHIEF ASSERTS

WASHINGTON, March 20—If there ever was an exact science, it appears to be that of human identification through fingerprinting.

This is the word of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who recently told a House committee.

Of all the fingerprints we have ever received—over 138,000,000—there never have been two alike, whether they be of twins, triplets or even the Dionne quintuplets, whose prints are on file.

The men, Alonzo Marino of the 6900 block of Virginia avenue, Charles McCulloch, 5100 block of Bishoff avenue, and Carl A. Balletti of the 1100 block of Watts avenue, University City, were arrested Jan. 23 after they allegedly forced a dog pound truck to the curb and released a beagle belonging to Marino.

The dog catchers told police they picked up Marino's dog, which was not on a leash, at Courtois street and Michigan avenue.

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The Central Intelligence Agency yesterday withdrew the 90-day termination notice it had given to Juan Ryan of South Orange, N.J.

Ryan, who was hired by the agency in August 1955, received the notice of his forthcoming dismissal about three weeks ago. A CIA spokesman said Ryan appealed and his appeal was upheld.

The spokesman said Ryan was accused of marrying an alien without permission. Ryan married Philomena O'Neill, an Irish immigrant. The couple lives in nearby Arlington, Va.

BANKER SAYS U.S. TVA REVENUE USE CAN'T REGULATE TO EXPAND PLANT ABUSE OF CREDIT TENTATIVELY OK'D

That Is Up to Lenders, House Action Urged by Kenton R. Cravens
Tells Installment
Loan Conference.

Lenders of money for retail purchases should avoid if possible the "illusory umbrella" of selective Government controls over consumer credit, Kenton R. Cravens, head of the Mercantile Trust Co., said today.

Cravens, former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, addressed the National Installment Credit Conference at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. About 1500 persons, mostly bank credit executives, are attending.

"The question of abuses of credit is not one which the Government can decide by regulation," Cravens said. "It is rather one which you, in making loans, determine. The only credit the Government can make good by legislation is its own."

Cravens called attention to the fact that President Eisenhower's Economic Report to Congress early this year had suggested that restoration of standby controls over terms of installment buying be studied. Until 1952, the Federal Reserve Board had authority, under Regulation W, over consumer credit.

Rising Private Debt.

"Traditionally, such studies generally result in legislation," Cravens remarked. The presidential report warned that net private debt rose last year by almost 59 billion dollars, about three times the increase of 1954.

Cravens said a case could be made for general credit controls by the Government, as a means of reducing fluctuations in the business cycle, but it was hard to find a reason for advocating selective controls and the extension of over-all federal planning such controls would involve.

"It is fair to question," he said, "whether the judgment of the monetary authorities in permitting an expanding money supply to be used in this or that industry is superior to the judgment of the commercial banks and other lending institutions."

The conference, sponsored by the Installment Credit Commission of the American Bankers Association, began yesterday and will end tomorrow. Its purpose is to explore prospects for installment lending and appraisal policies in the light of economic conditions.

Speaking earlier today, Charles P. Fiske, executive vice president of General Motors Acceptance Corp., said the 14-billion-dollar total of retail automobile credit outstanding at the end of 1955 was not excessive, even though it represented an increase of four billions during the year.

The collection record of the General Motors financing agency was excellent in 1955, Fiske said, and a group of new buyers, whose increased incomes brought them into the market, has demonstrated its capacity to pay.

Debt-Savings Ratio.

Fiske observed that the present nation-wide ratio of total individual debt to accumulated savings was less than in 1949 and "far less than in 1929."

Last year's debt increase was not unusual, he said, and is comparable to 1952-53.

At the same time, Fiske urged development of more reliable statistical yardsticks for measuring whether consumer credit is too high. He said the average down payment should be at least 40 per cent, and the term for payment of loans on new cars should not exceed 30 months, generally speaking.

Another speaker, Thomas Gies, financial economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, noted that American consumers now held durable goods, excluding homes, representing an investment of 140 billion dollars, after allowance for depreciation. The goods include such items as automobiles, radios, television sets, washing machines, stoves and the like.

The 140 billion dollar figure, Gies said, is 40 per cent above the estimated value of such holdings in 1950 and three times the figure at the end of World War II. The figure has increased twenty-fold since 1900, he said.

Gies said that although consumer loans had soared from four billions in the mid-1920s to a present total of 36 billions, experience thus far showed that people finished paying for credit-bought items long before they were used up. Furthermore, he said, only 15 to 25 per cent of durable goods were financed by credit.

Many consumers probably would never save enough money to buy outright certain things that the "discipline" of the credit system enables them to purchase, Gies said. They might spend their money instead on items of less lasting quality. On this basis, he suggested, it might be concluded that: "The use of consumer credit conceivably promotes thrift and accumulation of wealth rather than encouraging improvidence and increased consumption."

PARIS, March 20 (AP)—FRANCE and Tunisia today signed an agreement which recognizes the former French protectorate's independence and opens the way for talks which will keep it closely allied to France.

The proclamation of independence, which must be approved by the French Parliament, was signed by Tunisian Premier Tahar Ben Ammar and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau in the gilded clock salon of the French foreign ministry.

It ended six years of intermittent talks. Still difficult negotiations must be carried out before Frenchmen and Tunisians can define just what the relationship of their two countries is to be.

SENATE PASSES FARM BILL 93-2; DEMOCRATS WIN

term of a successful administration proposal in 1954, "delicious" and a "quickie amendment" designed for strictly political gain.

It had the influential backing of Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico) and former Secretary of Agriculture.

He asserted he was "not backing it on the basis of higher supports" but on the basis that the Senate-House conferees "will act strongly on surplus disposal."

While supporting the Administration price support principles and other efforts to make adjustments in agricultural programs, he differs sharply with the Administration over what he contends is an act to aggressively on surplus disposal and production control.

The vote for mandatory soil bank to gain price supports, beginning next year, was unexpected. The Administration has insisted that the soil bank should be voluntary as it will be this year. However, 36 Republicans aided by 12 Democrats voted to adopt the mandatory provision for 1957. The amendment was offered by Senator Spessard L. Holland (Dem., Florida, Nine Republicans, including Aiken and Minority Leader Knowland and 37 Democrats teamed against the proposal.

Senator Karl D. Mundt (Rep., South Dakota, a rigid price support advocate, argued for voluntary participation in the soil bank.

"As the bill stands now," he said, "it's like holding a carrot out in front of a horse."

The Holland amendment is digging spurs into the flank of the horse to make him do something he doesn't want to do."

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Rep., Iowa, supported the amendment, asserting that the "surplus" evils we have been suffering stemmed from lack of compulsion to make farmers obey federal acreage controls.

Democratic Advantage.

The set-aside, providing that surpluses included are not figured in computing price support under the existing flexible system of price subsidies, was worked out by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem., Minnesota, and others in an effort to obtain an overriding Democratic advantage for election campaign purposes.

The requirement that processors of farm products certify they have paid not less than the federal price support for the products or in the absence of price supports a "fair price" as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture was designed to right an existing section of farm law that required such action by the secretary "to the extent practicable." It was introduced by Democratic Senators Robert S. Kerr and Walter F. George of Georgia.

Kerr told the Senate that present pork purchases by the Administration, for example, failed to aid hog producers. He said that while hog producers were getting less than 12 cents a pound for their live hogs, meat packers were selling pork products to the Government at more than 66 cents a pound.

Ellender said such a provision had been considered but rejected by his committee. It would be impossible, he said, for a processor to identify the farmers' products in a processed food, and beyond that practically impossible of administration by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Principal Features.

As the bill was finally put together, it contained these salient features.

Soil Bank—A two-part feature to retire land from crop production as a means of combating surplus output. It includes an "emergency" acreage reserve with a total financing of $750,000,000 a year for four years. Producers of corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts and tobacco will be paid for voluntarily retiring land this year. It would be compulsory in 1957. Payments would be made in cash or kind for grain crops and in cash for others. The ceiling on payments would be $25,000 a year to an individual farmer or farming unit. These payments would be based on the cash value of the crop that would have been grown on the acres retired or net income plus an incentive to remove the land from production.

The second part of the soil bank is a conservation reserve with a total financing of $450,000,000 a year through 1961. It will pay farmers for putting land into soil and water saving practices, including grass and trees. Payments would be limited to $7500 a year to any one farmer or farming unit and contracts with farmers would be for a minimum of three years and a maximum of 15 years.

Grazing would be barred on land retired under both reserves. The administration proposal is aimed at cutting production on 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 acres.

Dual Parity—Restoration of two systems for computing parity prices on crops. Parity is the federal yardstick to measure the purchasing power of farm products against what a farmer pays for the things he must buy.

The new parity formula, which gives a lower support price under the flexible system, went into effect this year. The old formula, which the Administration opposes, yields a higher support level for corn, wheat, cotton and peanuts and gets a new lease on life.

Wheat—Farmers would be permitted to vote this year in a national referendum on a two-price system for wheat. If two-thirds approve the system would become effective next year at the discretion of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who fought the proposal. Farmers would get full parity on wheat consumed domestically for human food. The remainder of annual output would be sold at market prices for feed and export.

Rice—A two-price system for this crop also but on a mandatory basis if growers approve it.

Provision on Corn.

Corn—An increase of 8,000,000 acres to a national acreage base of 31,000,000 acres for this year. It also provides that corn producers must put acreage equal to 15 per cent of their base acreage into the soil bank to get-price supports.

Other Feed Grains—Barley, oats, rye and grain sorghums are tied to their feed equivalent of corn to effect an increase in price supports on these crops.

Dairy Products—Increase of the federal price support level from 75 per cent of parity, the lowest now permitted by law, to 80 per cent or a net increase of 11 cents on 100 pounds of milk.

Cotton—Cotton acreage for 1957 and 1958 pegged at this year's level of 17,300,000 acres. A technical change that would reduce price supports by two and a half cents a pound was made, but other provisions of the bill cancel this.

Surplus Removal—$500,000,000 added to a fund used for taking measures that strengthen markets and aid farmers making a total of $980,000,000 available.

Price Supports.

Price Supports—Flexible price supports retained, but a payment ceiling of $100,000 a year to any one farmer or farming unit was established. This is an Administration suggestion and would impose such limits for the first time.

Surplus Disposal—A requirement that Benson send to Congress within 60 days after final enactment of the bill a detailed program for orderly disposal of Government-owned stocks. A surplus disposal administrator would be named. More money is added to pay shipping costs of surplus products sent overseas by private relief agencies. It also authorizes Government payment of the cost of processing surpluses into consumer-size packages and edible form for donation to relief and charitable groups and the school lunch program.

New Land—Provides a three-year bar on the production of crops now in surplus on land developed through reclamation, flood control and drainage projects.

U.S. TO SUPPORT FRENCH PROGRAM FOR ALGERIA

organization defense line in western Germany to Algeria. Algiers bristled with martial defenses as French resident minister Robert Lacoste began his task of fighting the 16-month-old rebellion.

Troops patrolled the city in armored cars, jeeps and trucks. Escort destroyers arrived in the harbor where some of the fresh troops debarked from passenger liners. Military vehicles lined the docks.

Riot police manned machine-guns behind sandbag barriers, guarding the port.

Other troops arrived from Germany by plane.

Lacoste, in a face-to-face showdown with leaders of the powerful French Citizens Committee, persuaded them to back down from a threat to call a strike of all government offices tomorrow.

The committee had threatened to paralyze Lacoste's administration unless the minister ordered the execution of 86 condemned Algerian rebels whose sentences are under appeal.

Such a strike could have thrown Algeria into turmoil and seriously hampered Lacoste's plans for economic and political reforms to appease the rebels.

Lacoste summoned all 26 members of the committee last night to his headquarters overlooking the harbor. Later the committee announced its decision to "revoke for the moment the order to close municipal buildings." It reserved the right of "modifying this position at any moment if need be."

Opposes Terrorism.

The committee in a statement said Lacoste had "reaffirmed he would make war against terrorism with all necessary vigor."

The rebels have threatened to kill two Frenchmen for every Algerian executed.

The French Parliament gave Lacoste broad powers last week to stamp out the rebellion and initiate political and economic reforms.

The United Press said Lacoste imposed a virtual bar on native travel to and from Algeria. His decree provided that only foreign diplomats and French soldiers, government workers, newspaper men and business men may come and go freely. Anyone else desiring to enter or leave Algeria must obtain special permission.

(Thousands of Algerian migrants recently have been flocking home from France, apparently on orders from the guerrillas, the U.P. said. The new decree apparently was intended to halt this traffic.)

In France, protest strikes organized by Algerian migrants spread to the northeastern provinces, where one decorated Arab war hero was shot and killed when he refused to contribute to collectors aiding the guerrillas.)

NEHRU AGAIN ASSAILS MANILA, BAGHDAD PACTS

tions between the United States and Pakistan.

He said he discussed the Goa situation with Dulles, particularly the statement issued last December by Dulles and Portuguese Foreign Minister Paulo Cunha referring to Goa as a province. India claims the small territory on the subcontinent is an unwilling colony and should be part of India.

The Premier said Dulles assured him the United States was not supporting Portugal.

Nehru said he did not doubt Dulles's words but added: "The position is that the Dulles-Cunha communique is being interpreted, especially by the Portuguese authorities, as if it supported their claims."

India today published texts of notes exchanged with the United States on the United States attitude toward Portuguese India.

They show Indian's reaction to the Dulles-Cunha statement and to Dulles's later comments at a press conference was sharp.

India's first note expressed regret and surprise that Dulles should have entered into a statement which "disregards and wounds" Indian sentiment.

The Indians were disturbed by Dulles saying he and Cunha issued the statement because of public speeches by Soviet leaders.

The Indian note said Dulles at his press conference implied the Soviet leaders were inciting India to use force in the dispute with Portugal. The Indian note said India "resents" the imputation of an extraneous authority imposing policy on India.

The United States reply sought to explain the use of the words "Portuguese provinces" was legal phraseology.

The United States emphasized the Dulles-Cunha statement had not changed American policy.

In his speech today, Nehru made an indirect reference to the United States and Britain when he said he hoped "friendly countries will impress upon Portugal the unwisdom" of its policies.

Nehru said he and Dulles also discussed United States-India relations. The Indian leader said he "expressed the view that an essential first step" toward easing of tension would be evacuation of the offshore islands of Quezoy and Matsu by the Chinese nationalists.

He said he told Dulles the Formosa problem then "could be handled a little more easily."

Discussing Indian-Pakistan border disputes, Nehru said he welcomed proposals by Pakistan Prime Minister Chaudhri Mohammed Ali for a "no war declaration" between India and Pakistan.

Pakistan's official version of the latest border incident accused Indian troops of infiltrating Pakistan-held Bela, near the Ferozpur structure controlling the flow of the Sutlej river from northwestern India into Pakistan. Prime Minister Mohammed Chaudhri Ali told Parliament the Indians attacked Pakistan troops.

India's version was that Pakistani troops opened fire on an Indian sentinel post and that the Indians returned the fire.

making friends and gaining strength.

Strength Behind Stevenson.

Massed behind Stevenson have been all the influence and activity of the state party organization, led by Gov. Orville Freeman and Senator Hubert Humphrey.

Consequently, if Stevenson is to win heavily in any primary, he ought to do it in this one. He has been favored right along, mainly because of the organized power in his corner.

Kefauver says he will do far better, but will consider 30 per cent of the state-wide vote a victory. He says he expects to capture four or five of the nine congressional districts.

Stevenson is using a measuring stick marked for 55 to 60 per cent of the vote. He says he will be content with that.

Throughout the campaign, both contenders fired away mainly at the Eisenhower Administration, and more particularly at its farm program, in this important agricultural state.

Toward the end, there was sniping between Democrat and Democrat, principally over that issue of "bossism," which puts the prestige of the party organization to the test along with the personal prestige of Stevenson.

The oratory finally ended last night.

Final Television Appeals.

Republicans bought 30 minutes on television to try to drum up an impressive vote for Mr. Eisenhower that would look like an endorsement of his Administration and the President personally.

Kefauver and his team took over the next half hour, with the Senator on film because he cut short his campaign to fly to Washington for the show-down votes leading to passage of the farm bill.

He made what appeared to be another effort to lure party regulars away from Stevenson. Kefauver said he had come into Minnesota without any ill will and.

"I want it distinctly understood my opponent is Gov. Stevenson."

Stevenson and his backers had the final say in the next half hour, with Freeman telling Minnesota voters they "need the best and most experienced men" at the convention and "they won't be there unless you vote for Stevenson."

Stevenson himself gave the Administration's foreign and domestic policy a final raking. He spoke of never attaining peace by "both threats and bluff," of "white collar corruption" in Government for the first time since the Teapot Dome scandals, of Government machinery "halted on dead center" for three years "when it hasn't been thrown into reverse."

He said that on his campaign journeying through Minnesota he has found a growing appreciation of "the importance of ending this dangerous drift and deterioration in the foreign situation, and also this narrow, single-interest Government in Washington that has not produced a single new idea for the people's benefit in three years."

That, he said, is why he is trying again for the presidency.

U.S. REDS PLAN TO QUIT HIDING, FBI CHIEF SAYS

Hoover Tells House Group Communists Hope to Capitalize on 'Geneva Spirit.'

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 20—J. Edgar Hoover has informed Congress that American Communist strategists are planning to keep out of their underground hiding places to capitalize on "the Geneva spirit." Although this "spirit" has flagged somewhat since the "summit" meeting last July, the American Reds seem to have faith that enough of it is left for Communist gains in this country.

This conclusion was drawn from closed-session testimony given by the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation last month before a House subcommittee. The transcript was made public yesterday.

Hoover testified the FBI was able to count only 22,000 acknowledged Communists in the United States. Some were out in the open, had faced trial and been convicted of seeking to overthrow the government of the United States by force and violence. Others were in the underground or accepting constitutional protection against incriminating themselves by answering questions put by investigating panels.

Hoover said that for each open and sworn Communist there were 10 or more fundamentally loyal Americans playing the Red game, usually innocently. It was the Communist operation, he said, to sponsor programs laden with American ideals but to sneak in their own missions.

So, Hoover estimated, some 200,000 good Americans were to be preyed upon in the new Red tactics. He said he had coined the designation, "pseudo liberal" in an effort to express best his definition of good Americans that anti-Communists might have to worry about.

Those coming out of the Communist underground, Hoover said, were "hard-core Reds" who had great faith in counting on the innocent help that could come from Communist "front" organizations. At last count, more than 200 organizations had been listed by Attorney General as being pawns of Communism. Many of their sponsorship and membership lists included the names of non-Communists.

Of the some 20,000 outright Communists in the country, Hoover testified, about 69 per cent were headquartered in New York (around 11,000) and California (an estimated 3000). The rest, he said, were scattered through industrial urban areas in other parts of the country.

The Reds, Hoover reported, were going in heavily for what they call colonialism. This is an operation in which a Red operator, accompanied by helpers, will move, say, from New York, to an industrial area where trouble might brew, and work as apparently loyal Americans. However, it was explained, the mission of these people was to start espionage, sabotage or any other trouble-making endeavor if an emergency arose.

Hoover reported the FBI was "keeping abreast" of these aims and movements, and felt that the bureau had things pretty well in hand.

He defended the employment of informants by the FBI and denounced the efforts of the Communists and "pseudo-liberals" to brand them as "informers." He called on Webster's Unabridged Dictionary to back his argument. Webster's said, he pointed out, that "an informant is one who gives information of whatever sort; an 'informant' is one who informs against another by way of accusation or complaint. Informant is often, informant never, a term of opprobrium."

In the fiscal year 1955, ended last July, Hoover said, the arrests of 914 subjects in criminal cases were directly attributable to information furnished FBI agents by confidential informants. The offenses ranged from bank robbery to kidnapping.

Information from informants he added, also resulted in the arrest of 450 offenders against state and local laws.

Informants in the field of subversion, Hoover said, had enabled the FBI to keep track of the activities of the Reds.

OVERLAND SAILOR CONVICTED IN FATAL TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 20—James Joseph Murphy, a sailor, of the 4300 block of Lindcott street, Overland, Mo., was placed on probation yesterday after he was convicted of failing to stop in a traffic accident last Nov. 21 in which another sailor was killed.

Murphy was also ordered to pay $1890 to the mother of the sailor who was killed. Murphy, who is attached to the San Diego Naval Air Station, must serve four months in jail.

Victim of the accident was Arthur Lee Smith, Coronado Amphibious Base, who was from North Wilkesboro, N.C.

JUDGE ORDERS ACQUITTAL IN U.S. ANTI-TRUST CASE

CLEVELAND, March 20 (AP)—United States District Judge James C. Connell yesterday ordered the National Malleable & Steel Castings Co. and one of its top officers acquitted of violating the anti-trust act.

National Malleable, its first vice president, Wilson H. Moriarty, and five other casting companies were accused of conspiring to monopolize the manufacture and sale of freight car couplers.

The other companies and three of their executives pleaded no contest to the charges and were fined $80,000 last Feb. 17.

Connell accused the federal attorneys of presenting a case "built on a foundation of quicksand." "I've handled conspiracy cases a good many years," he said. "I know a conspiracy case when I see it."

Court attaches said it was one of the worst setbacks in recent years for anti-trust prosecutors in Cleveland.

JOB TO AIR-CONDITION COURTS IS AWARDED

Contract Let for Bid of $258,000—Other Projects Listed.

A contract for air-conditioning courtrooms and other portions of the Municipal Courts Building was let today by the Board of Public Service. The Reliable Heating & Ventilating Co., 5508 St. Louis avenue, received the award on its bid of $258,000.

Reliable Heating was one of seven contractors who bid on the project. The city had estimated the cost at $270,000. Funds for the job will come from the $110,639,000 bond issue approved last year.

The air-conditioning system to be installed will consist of a number of units in the basement of the building. The entire building will not be air conditioned, but the courtrooms, grand jury rooms and some offices are to be included. The board also approved plans and specifications and will accept bids April 24 on the following projects:

Construction of a new fire engine house for Engine Co. 50 on DeBaliviere avenue, between Pershing avenue and Delmar boulevard to cost $90,000; construction of and equipping a playground on a new park at Jamieson and Pernod avenues to cost an estimated $58,885; and the rehabilitation of Benton park at Jefferson avenue and Arsenal street and construction of a new playground there to cost about $103,894.

Cost of constructing the fire engine house will come out of last year's bond issue funds, as will the new playground in the new park. Cost of Benton Park work, however, will come from neighborhood rehabilitation funds, which the city obtains from the sale of city property and other sources.

5 RABIES CLINICS TO BE HELD FOR DOGS IN COUNTY

Three rabies inoculation clinics for dogs will be held in St. Louis county Saturday and two more March 31, the St. Louis County Health Department announced today.

The clinics this Saturday will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Lemay and Maryland Heights fire houses and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Auterrieth grain elevator in Chesterfield. On March 31, clinics will be held at the Lemay and Valley Park fire houses, both from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Twenty-five dogs have been found to be rabid since Jan. 1, 17 of these being in the quarantine area in western St. Louis county. All the clinics but the one at Lemay are in that area. Eighteen of the 23 persons under treatment for rabies live in the quarantine area. The Brentwood Board of Aldermen voted last night to intensify dog-catching activities in the city. As a result, a rabies control team will be on a full-time basis instead of operating a maximum of three full days a week.

JEWISH BOARD TO MEET, OLIVETTE CENTER REJECTED

Plans of the Jewish Community Centers Association for a proposed $2,000,000 center in Olivette will be reconsidered, it was announced today following a meeting of the Olivette Board of Trustees last night at which a permit for the center was refused.

Milton Greenfield, association president, said his group's board of directors would meet soon "to consider what action to take." He said the association may decide to drop its option on the Olivette property at the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Price road and seek a new location, or it might consider "pushing its Olivette plans."

Carroll J. Donohue, chairman of the Olivette board, said the basic consideration was one of zoning. "Such an institution would not be harmonious with the rest of the neighborhood," he said. The Olivette board rejected a similar application last Feb. 28, but gave the association additional time to revise its plans and application.

DULLES WORKS ON ASIA TOUR REPORTS; FLIES HOME TODAY

HONOLULU, March 20 (UPI)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles worked today on a report he will present to the American people when he returns home from a 10-nation tour of Asia.

Dulles arrived here yesterday en route to Washington. He planned a 24-hour stopover to work on his message and to rest. He leaves late today for the mainland.

On his arrival here, Dulles had little to say of the exhausting tour that followed the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty meeting in a Pakistan. He was greeted at Hickam field by Adm. Felix B. Stump, commander in chief of the Pacific, and by military and civic leaders.

Named Envoy to Afghanistan.
WASHINGTON, March 20 (UPI)—Sheldon T. Mills, now United States ambassador to Ecuador, was nominated by President Eisenhower today to be the new ambassador to Afghanistan. He would succeed Angus Ward, a veteran of 31 years in the Foreign Service, who has filed notice of his resignation.

TWO MEN WOUNDED IN FIGHT AT TAVERN

Proprietor's Son Fires at Pair Attempting to Enter Place.

Two men were shot and wounded today in a dispute at Leona's Tavern, 2400 North Ninth street, police were told. Rolla Nelson, a laborer, who gave a Lemay address, was shot in the left side of the face, the bullet emerging from the back of his neck. His companion, Reinold Luebbert, a bookkeeper, who said he lived in the 7500 block of Ethel avenue, Richmond Heights, was shot in the mouth. Police believe one bullet inflicted both wounds. They were shot by Ronald Goodin, a chauffeur and son of the tavern owner, Mrs. Leona Goodin. He lives next door to the tavern at 2402 North Ninth. Goodin told police he had gotten into a fist fight with Leona Vaughn, of the 4700 block of Seattle street, Northwoods, in a tavern at Nineteenth and Dodier streets earlier. Vaughn was with Nelson and Luebbert at the time. Later, Goodin went to his mother's tavern and when he saw Vaughn's two companions at the door he instructed his wife, Susan, who was in charge of the place, to close up. When Nelson and Luebbert persisted in entering Goodin obtained a revolver and fired two shots at the men, he said. Luebbert told the Post-Dispatch he and Nelson had entered the establishment and were walking over to the bar when Goodin opened fire without warning.

TOP JUSTICE AIDS DENY TAX JURY'S POLITICS CHARGE

Two Reply to Complaint Inquiry Here Is Slowed to Help G.O.P. Campaign.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Two top Justice Department officials have denied before a Congressional committee complaints by members of a St. Louis federal grand jury that the department is "stringing out" its investigation of tax scandals to help the Eisenhower Administration in the November elections, it was disclosed today.

The denials came from deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers and Warren Olney III, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, in testimony Jan. 30 before the House Appropriations subcommittee. The hearing record was made public today.

The complaints by grand jury members against what was termed "dilatory tactics" by the Justice Department for political purposes were reported by the Post-Dispatch Jan. 20.

Rogers told the committee he was not in a position to say what the grand jury "is thinking." He added, however, that he was in a position to say that "there is no truth to the suggestion that there are any political efforts on the part of the department in connection with the grand jury at all."

The slow-down in the tax scandal inquiry occurred after the grand jury had indicted Matthew J. Connelly, Theron Lamar Caudle and Harry L. Schwimmer on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government in tax matters. Connelly was appointments secretary to former President Truman. Caudle was head of the Justice Department's tax division until he was fired by Truman. Schwimmer is an attorney.

Olney told the committee that the department "can't let it" scheduled hearings before the St. Louis grand jury following the indictments in view of pending motions by the defendants for changes of venue because of publicity given the case. He said the evidence in other tax cases which might have been presented to the St. Louis jury was taken before a grand jury in another district, presumably at Omaha.

TOTAL OF $100,000 BANKED IN NAME OF MISSING WOMAN

Two $100,000 bank deposits made here in the name of Mrs. Evelyn T. Scott, wealthy Los Angeles woman, shortly before her disappearance last May, were part of $100,000 deposited in banks in eight cities, Los Angeles police said today.

The deposits here, in the First National Bank and the Mercantile Trust Co., made last March, are being investigated by local authorities at the request of California police. Deputy Chief Thad Brown of Los Angeles told the Post-Dispatch that cities in which other deposits were made in Mrs. Scott's name included Boston, Cleveland, Dallas and Hartford, Conn. The deposits were made by mail following correspondence with the banks early last year.

L. Ewing Scott, former St. Louisan and husband of the missing woman, has told police his wife suffers from cancer and left their Bel Air home in her automobile last May 9. He said he thought she was seeking extensive treatment. Her absence became known to police in July after relatives began an inquiry.

MO. PAC. PLAN TO ACQUIRE T. & P. STOCK CRITICIZED

Management of the recently reorganized Missouri Pacific Railroad was criticized by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Security Owners' Council today for the road's reported plan for increasing its holdings in the Texas & Pacific Railroad to 80 per cent of the common stock from the present 75 per cent.

Louis E. Shecter, Baltimore advertising agency executive and chairman of the council, which was formed last November, said the plan would be "totally unrealistic and does not get to the heart of the Mo. Pac's problem which is its $624,000,000 debt."

He said a "more practical method" of acquiring T. & P. stock would be under a council counter proposal which would save $600,000 in taxes compared with only $150,000 under management's plan.

INQUIRY ON PINBALL DEVICE TAX RETURNS IS RESUMED

The Federal grand jury in East St. Louis which is investigating income tax returns of pinball machine firms resumed its sessions today with about 100 witnesses summoned to testify.

Most of the witnesses are tavern keepers. United States Attorney Clifford Raemer said. Walter Julien, a bartender living at Fayetteville, Ill., surrendered March 9 on a federal indictment charging him with perjury in connection with grand jury testimony he gave in an investigation of pinball machine operations. He was released under $3000 bond.

Promoted to Reserve Colonel, John L. Boros, assistant to the vice president of Sohio Petroleum Co., has been promoted to colonel in the United States Army Reserve. Col. Robert H. Conk, chief of the Missouri Military District, announced today. Col. Boros commands the 341st Transportation Group. He lives at 9838 Hudson avenue, Webster Groves.

Mellon President to Retire.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 20 (AP)—Dr. Edward R. Weidlein will retire as president of Mellon Institute March 31. It was announced last night at a testimonial dinner in his honor. Dr. Weidlein has been president of the Scientific Research Organization since 1951.

10,000 SEWER BILLS OF 36,000 UNPAID

Delinquencies Reported to Metropolitan District's Trustees.

About 10,000 of the first 36,000 bills charging for sewer service by the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District have not been paid and are delinquent, the district's board of trustees was informed yesterday.

R. B. Platt, district finance director, said almost all of the unpaid bills were among those sent to householders, charging $3 for the first six months of the year. Most of the larger bills, sent to commercial and industrial firms, have been paid, he said, adding that $128,500 has been collected out of a total billing of $165,000.

The first group of bills was mailed in January to persons in various parts of St. Louis and to most residents of University City, Clayton and Brentwood. Additional groups of bills are being mailed out each month.

Notices of delinquency will be mailed Thursday to those in the January group who have not paid, Platt said. If bills are not paid within 90 days, the district can take legal action against property owners. Violators, if convicted on a misdemeanor charge, could be fined from $50 to $500.

LIBRARY COURT WALLS TO RECEIVE FIRST CLEANING

The job of cleaning the exterior and interior court walls of the Central Public Library was begun yesterday. The walls have not been cleaned since the library opened in 1912. Long an item on the library board's plans for rehabilitation and redecoration, the job will cost $18,000 and be completed in about three months. The building occupies the block bounded by Olive, Locust, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

The walls have long appeared dingy and black from an accumulation of dust, dirt and grime. Considered one of the city's most beautiful structures, the library building is of an early Italian Renaissance style of architecture.

FEWER PERSONAL PROPERTY RETURNS THAN LAST YEAR

About 1600 fewer St. Louisans have filed tangible personal property tax returns this year than at this time last year, Assessor John H. Poelker reported yesterday.

A total of 180,000 taxpayers have filed and an estimated 70,000 have not yet made their returns, Poelker said. Under the law all persons owning personal property in St. Louis as of last Jan. 1 must list the property with the assessor by April 1 or be subject to a doubling of their assessment.

Poelker asked persons who moved from the city before Jan. 1 to notify his office so their names can be removed from the tax lists.

PEIPING AID, BULGANIN TALK

TOKYO, March 20 (AP)—The Peiping radio said today Red China's Marshal Chu Teh conferred in Moscow with Soviet Premier Bulganin.

The radio did not say what the two talked about but said they had a "cordial and friendly talk." The Vice Chairman of the Peiping regime is head of a military mission and has been in Moscow since Feb. 6.

$3,000,000 VOTED TENTATIVELY FOR MEMORIAL HERE

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20—A supplemental appropriation of $3,000,000 for a start on the St. Louis riverfront memorial project was tentatively approved by the House today, but final action was held over until tomorrow.

The house postponed a final vote on an omnibus $795,743,823 supplemental appropriation bill which includes the St. Louis request because of today's primary election in Minnesota. Roll call votes normally are not taken on primary election days.

Before postponing a final vote the House approved the St. Louis request. However, opponents of the riverfront memorial succeeded in forcing an amendment which would make the $3,000,000 available for only two years. This means that contracts would have to be let for the work within that period.

Named to CAA Position.

WASHINGTON, March 20 (UP)—James T. Pyle, a former Navy pilot and commercial airline executive, today was named deputy administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Pyle, who has spent 20 of his 43 years in military and commercial aviation, has been a special assistant to the assistant secretary of the Navy for air since 1943.

MISSOURI GRANTS RAILS 6 PCT. RATE HIKE

Effective March 27 — Cost to Shippers Put at $900,000 a Year.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 20 (AP)—The State Public Service Commission today granted a 6 per cent freight rate increase to Missouri railroads. It was estimated the boost would cost intrastate shippers about $900,000 more a year.

The increase coincides with a March 7 interstate increase of the same percentage ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The intrastate increase, to be effective March 27, applies to all rail moved freight except for bulk sand, clay and gravel. George Fox, chief rate expert for the P.S.C., said the Missouri commission believed rates on those items already are high enough.

About 30 railroads have intrastate operations in Missouri besides their interstate freight business.

WOULD-BE BURGLAR FINED $300 FOR CARRYING TOOLS

Sherman D. Bradley, 3209A Vista avenue, was fined $300 today on a charge of possession of burglary tools by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd.

Bradley, who had told police he planned a career as a burglar "because I hear they get lots of cash," was arrested Sunday before he could launch his career. Bradley said today he didn't know what he told the police officers because he had drunk "a case or two of beer" prior to his arrest.

Police said the arrest occurred after they stopped to investigate a man lurking in the doorway of a business establishment at 2714 Lafayette avenue. Bradley had in his possession a chisel, screwdriver and a small pinbar, police said.

RADIO-TV REPORT BY DULLES

WASHINGTON, March 20 (UP)—The State Department announced today that Secretary of State John A. Dulles will deliver a radio-television report Friday night on his Asiatic tour.

Dulles is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow afternoon.

Louisiana Has Made Progress Toward Integration Despite Its Voices Favoring Segregation

Element of Face-Saving Causes Whites to Defend 'Southern Way of Life'—Compliance Has Been Serene Where Courts Have Ruled.

NOMINALLY an important segment of the Deep South "we won't integrate" bloc, Louisiana actually has taken significant steps along the road to integration. Louisiana was the first state to express legislative defiance of the United States Supreme Court's school integration ruling.

Yet state's Negroes, comprising about one-third of the population, on many inconspicuous fronts, are taking their places in an integrated picture.

Generally they can vote, and they have become a significant political factor. They have achieved a degree of group civic representation in New Orleans and a few other places. As far back as 1930, Negroes were admitted to Louisiana State University on the graduate level and to the Jesuit Loyola University of the South at New Orleans. Today hundreds of Negroes are attending L. S. U. graduate schools and three state colleges, although each school has taken litigation to get them in.

There are Negroes on the New Orleans police force and in municipal white-collar departments. Negroes are playing golf two days a week on the New Orleans public links, although their right to admission is still in litigation. A number of labor unions are biracial, and organized labor has been in the forefront of the movement for Negro equality.

Church Pressing for Integration.
The Roman Catholic Church, a powerful voice in Louisiana and operator of an important part of the state's educational facilities, is pressing vigorously toward educational integration and emphasizing racial equality in church affairs generally.

There is plainly a great difference between a lot that is being said about integration in Louisiana and a lot that is being done.

The great majority of white Louisianians naturally favor segregation. There is a hard core of intense bitter opposition to integration—people who with vehemence avow that it is unthinkable to let the Negro "out of his place."

But there is a far larger body of opinion, perhaps a majority, in which there is evident a factor of major significance throughout the entire Southern situation. This is the element of face-saving.

These people are not so averse to changes in the segregation pattern as they are, subconsciously, to an embarrassing acknowledgment of a change in policy, to a tacit admission that to some extent the prevailing system has been wrong or at least obsolete.

They are conveniently resentful of the Federal Government's legal attack on "the Southern way of life," but where this embarrassment can be avoided, these people tend to go along. And to carry along with them even hard-core oppositionists.

Serene Compliance.
The state's official policy is to oppose the admission of Negroes to its white schools; but once the courts have ruled, and thereby provided a facade for compliance, officials have acquiesced, with unobtrusively serene results.

The calm acceptance of Negroes on college campuses points to a major factor of the situation in Louisiana and elsewhere. Segregation is a predominantly of the older generation. Young people's comments on racial matters often are prefaced by, "My parents wouldn't like this, but—"

The generally mixed sentiment in the state is such that organizations such as the Catholic Church, organized labor, the N. A. A. C. P., the National Urban League and the Southern Regional Council's state Council on Human Relations can work openly. They do this even in the face of heated opposition.

Public discussion of integration questions in organized forums is gaining impetus. The Catholic Church has been meeting segregation arguments with lectures by experts on such down-to-earth topics as the facts about the incidence of venereal disease among whites and Negroes. Non-Catholic clergy and laymen also are participating actively in the development of public forums.

Over-All Picture.
The over-all picture that results is one of a tendency toward liberalism in segregation, punctuated by recurrent rear-guard sallies to head it off. The atmosphere has not been of a sort to engender racial boycotts or violence.

The basic cleavage in opinion is to some extent rooted in geography. There are two Louisianas. The state's northern river from Mississippi, is predominantly rural, Protestant, and more akin to Mississippi ethically and economically—and in vehemence about segregation.

Southern Louisiana has a more urban, cosmopolitan French-Spanish background, and the influence of the Catholic Church is strong.

About one-third of all Louisianians are Catholics. The Archdiocese of New Orleans has 330,000 Catholics, 60,000 of them Negroes; and the adjacent Diocese of Lafayette has 322,000 Catholics, about 75,000 of them Negroes.

In New Orleans, nearly as many white children go to Catholic schools as to public schools, and the Catholic en-

Palestine Not Basic Cause of Mideast Strife, But West's Blindness to Nationalistic Facts

General Points Out Absurdities of Democratic Processes Among Illiterates—Masses Victimized by Clever Politicians Who Denounce the Allies.

By LT. GEN. SIR JOHN BAGOT GLUBB
British Former Commander of Jordan's Arab Legion.
(Copyright, 1956)
THIRD OF A SERIES.

LONDON.

MOST OF THE TROUBLES which have overtaken Jordan may be directly traced to the Palestine problem and the tragedy of the refugees; but Jordan is far from being the only unstable country in the Middle East. On the contrary, Jordan has been quiet and stable for eight years, while the other Arab countries have suffered one revolution after another.

What is the cause for this almost chronic instability in the Middle East today? Obviously resentment about Palestine is not a sufficient explanation.

Mr. Gandhi once remarked that reforms should be built upon the foundation of national institutions, which can be modified from time to time as modern conditions require. That so wise a policy has been everywhere neglected is the cause of most of our troubles in the Middle East.

Then Woodrow Wilson in 1918 proclaimed the new gospel of freedom and democracy for all the earth, he visualized democracy in terms of the system of government then in existence in Western Europe and in the United States. He can scarcely be blamed for this, for we have created an atmosphere in which no country considers itself up-to-date or worthy of respect unless such a system has been installed. In the many protected and colonial territories to which Britain has given independence, a model British constitution has invariably been established before the change of status has been effected.

This system can be briefly summarized as government by the people, through representatives elected by them by secret ballot. How just and democratic it sounds! Nobody, surely, could be oppressed under such a system.

But as soon as we look a little nearer, the absurdities begin to appear. How, for example, can you conduct a secret ballot when half the population cannot read and write? Obviously there must be an official on the ballot box to fill up the voting papers for the illiterate. But how easy would it be to arrange for the official in question to give all the illiterate votes to one candidate—for a consideration, of course.

Moreover, in theory at least, the voter is not supposed to base his decision on the personal characteristics of the candidate, but on the policy which he or his party declare it to be their intention to pursue. But how can policies on public finance, education or foreign affairs be explained to illiterate peasants who have scarcely ever left their remote villages?

These are practical difficulties.

No Understanding of Theory.
The intellectual complications are even greater, for the whole elective principle is foreign to most eastern peoples. Many cannot understand why the government should consult them.

They regard it as the duty of the government to govern, whereas their job is to plow, or milk cows or drive a taxi. They do not ask the government to milk their cows. Why should the government worry them about what it should be doing itself?

Sometimes, because members of parliament are paid, membership is looked upon as a government job. Ahmed, they will say, has got a job as a policeman, and Mahmud has been made an M. P. Lucky fellows, they both get pay. And the speaker returns to his plow or his sheep without giving the matter another thought.

The result of the imposition of an alien system of government is that a small number of professional politicians are able to take advantage of the constitution and to exploit it for their personal profit. Having equipped themselves with the jargon of democracy, they appear before the world at large as patriotic statesmen representing their country, but within those countries the public are too ignorant or too indifferent to exercise any control of their activities.

Nemesia awaits them nevertheless. If their public exercises but little check on them, there are always vital professional politicians anxious to snatch from them the fruits of office. Here, to a great extent, is where the interests of the western powers are affected.

Vituperation as a Weapon.
Human nature is so constituted that it is easier to rouse it to hate than to love. The insecure politician too easily resorts to vituperation of the western powers, in order to divert public attention from his own shortcomings.

No matter how generous the great powers may be, vituperation of western imperialism can usually be relied upon to raise a round of applause. The speaker himself may be fully aware of the true fact and his denunciations may be pure dem-

GEN. PHILLIPS

Army and Air Force in Clash Over Guided Missile Systems

Ground Forces, Stirred by Plan for Arc of Anti-Aircraft Stations Guarding St. Louis, Claim Jurisdiction.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20.

ONE of the most acrid controversies between the services since the great B-36 fight between the Navy and the Air Force is in the making due to the recent announcement by the Department of Defense that the Air Force will install Navy Talos anti-aircraft guided missile units near Kirksville, Mo.; Peoria, Ill.; Peru, Ind., and Columbus, O.

The Army maintains that it is responsible for the provision and operation of anti-aircraft artillery and missile units for the defense of the United States under the Key West agreement of 1948 defining the primary and collateral functions of the three armed services in air defense.

The Army feels that if the Air Force starts installing and operating anti-aircraft missiles in competition with the Army in the continental air defense system, it is only a first step in the assumption of Army defense functions by the Air Force.

The Air Force maintains that Talos, with a range which is considerably greater than the Army's Nike, its small wings and ram-jet engine place it outside the Army's special field.

St. Louis Defense Line.
St. Louis has an special interest in the announcement of the Defense Department. The four Talos locations are to the northwest, north and northeast of St. Louis and form a new defensive line on the avenues of approach to the city about 200 miles distant from it.

By the time the missiles units are installed, which probably will not be for about two years, their range is expected to be great enough to provide a continuous band of anti-aircraft defense much more effective than could be provided for St. Louis with Nike missiles stationed nearby.

The Key West agreement assigns primary functions to the Air Force for air defense as follows:

1. To be responsible for the defense of the United States against air attack in accordance with the policies and procedures of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

2. To formulate joint doctrine and procedures, in coordination with the other services, for the defense of the United States against air attack, and to provide the Air Force units, equipment and facilities therefor.

3. To develop, in coordination with the other services, in weapons more than these prescriptions which were agreed upon only eight years ago. Anti-aircraft missiles were not then in existence. The intent of the assignment of functions was to give the Air Force overall responsibility for air defense, for the Air Force to provide interceptor aircraft and for the Army to provide the guns for close-in defense.

The dividing line then was simple and there could be no misunderstanding. Today, with the new Nike-B reaching out 50 miles or more, with Talos expected to reach out 100 miles and Bomarc 300 miles, the eight-year-old division of functions has become meaningless, since the weapons of the two services overlap.

Argument Over Missiles.
The Air Force has privately expressed some dissatisfaction with the present Nike-I and it is reported to believe the Navy system of missiles is superior to the Army's. The Army admits that Nike-I is an interim weapon and the new Nike-B will be a great improvement. It considers that the Nike-B, which will carry an atomic warhead, is far superior to Talos.

The Army also points out that Nike-I is in existence, has been installed in many positions for several years, and in this respect is far ahead of the Navy's Terrier, the first two batteries of which have just been installed on the converted guided

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never favoring any party, always opposing privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

From the Circuit Attorney

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It surprised me not at all that the Post-Dispatch took advantage of a Bar Association report, which incidentally did not mention either me or my office, to continue its campaign against the office of the Circuit Attorney.

It did surprise me, however, that the Post-Dispatch should require a Bar Association report to call its belated attention to a practice long established and openly adhered to by my predecessors in office as well as by me.

Inasmuch as the Post-Dispatch has accepted the conclusions of this report, may I assume that it will with equal alacrity accept the recommendation of the report that enabling legislation be initiated to facilitate the appearance of necessary witnesses at the trial?

In behalf of every citizen this office would be happy to join in the securing of such legislation. I trust that the Post-Dispatch in particular would be in favor of such a new law as it has in the recent past had occasion to criticize the dismissing of charges by this office in instances where essential witnesses have been unavailable at time of trial.

The editorial suggests that I am blind to some of the elementary rights of citizens. I share the Post-Dispatch's concern for the protection of elementary rights of all citizens, but I would suggest that those elementary rights of which we speak include the community's right to have speedy and vigorous prosecution of those who commit felonies against the citizens of St. Louis.

For such time as I may occupy this office I will continue to keep my pledge of vigorous prosecution of crimes committed in this city.

EDWARD L. DOWD,

Circuit Attorney.

Where Dogs Come From

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is in regard to rabid dogs in the western part of St. Louis county. I believe this situation has been caused by many people from the city dumping their unwanted dogs out on our country roads to roam wild and hungry. If they want to get rid of a dog they can turn it in to the Humane Society. CASTLEWOOD, Ballwin.

'The Right Impression'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I regret I missed the letter of March 16 that caused the news article of Ervin Bry to take you to task. He accused you of garbling the news in a headline, "Assaults Dowd for Secret Recordings."

However I did see the TV panel discussion on Channel 9, KETC, that was the subject of the news article and of Mr. Bry's letter, and I don't think it was "very friendly." On the contrary, I think Circuit Attorney Dowd and Mr. Hennelly became rather heated, especially on the subject of Mr. Dowd's use of his wire recorder.

If the news article gave the public the impression that Mr. Dowd is doing something immoral and taking the law unto himself, the public received the right impression.

Mr. Dowd has forgotten or refused to remember, in his use of his wire recorder, that the premise upon which laws are based is this: The end does not justify the means.

MRS. MARGIE WILSON.

'A Park to Be Saved'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I desire to compliment you on and thank you for the splendid editorial, "A Park to Be Saved," that appeared March 15. It is difficult to conceive why the city would want to sell this park at this time when only a short time back the citizens were urged to vote for a bond issue, part of which was to be spent on additional parks.

GEORGE TILLES JR.

I wish to compliment you on the splendid editorial regarding the sale of Tilles Park. Cap Tilles was my uncle and I discussed with him this gift and the terms. The conversion to private use would indeed be a miscarriage of gratitude, but in itself unimportant to a miscarriage of the virtue of common sense.

LEWIS T. APPLE.

'We Have So Much'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The suggestion of W. A. Wimmer, Indiana farmer, that we rest our farm lands every seventh year in Biblical times is untenable today. Annual crops of fresh foods are too imperative.

Since the recent advent of synthetic nitrogen, we have far less need than formerly to retire land for a season in order to revitalize it. Nitrogen in a bag is a magic crop stimulant. Its impact on food production is that of having another continent dumped into our lap.

Nor could I go along with Wimmer's antiquated scheme of not pruning grape vineyards to give them a rest. If you did not prune—pruning is fruit thinning—and prune drastically, you would increase rather than decrease the crop. Cutting back the entire vine to ground level would be indicated. This would destroy the crop for a season, but the vine would quickly renew itself for the next year.

Why not consider our bountiful farm production a providential gift to be used for the propagation of good will among men and nations? Look to Mexico, our neighbor. Her people are small in physical stature only because of prolonged starvation. We have so much, they so little. GUY TRAIL.

New Haven, Mo.

Partners for the Duration

The most controversial part of President Eisenhower's special message to Congress on foreign aid consists of his request for authority to make commitments ahead for 10 years.

The over-all amount he requests is larger than last year, and has already run into opposition. The military phase for which the bulk of the money would go is the phase for which Congress has shown the readiest acceptance in the past, though it is likely to be unusually sensitive to expenditures this election year.

The portion of the proposed economic aid that would be available for lifting living standards, as distinguished from that for economic strengthening of defense, is disappointingly small. In the new principle of long-range commitment to economic-aid projects, the President presents the most hopeful feature of his message as well as the one most dubious of passage.

To get this idea through Congress, the President and his associates at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue will need to muster the kind of practical, hard-working, grimly determined effort they made for the St. Lawrence seaway project.

For, as in that earlier controversy, the opposition is powerful and it cuts across party lines. The ranking members from both parties on Senate and House committees which will handle the legislation are opposed. So are other leaders, among them Senate Minority Leader Knowland, who says, "I do not look with favor upon commitments for 10 years or other long periods."

Yet, as this country's awkwardness in responding to a project like Egypt's proposed Aswan dam has shown, the year-by-year approach is painfully inadequate to enterprises of other governments which will require the continuing interest of their financial backers over a period of years to bring them to fulfillment. It is, furthermore, precisely these kinds of capital investments which can do the most to raise the economic level of underdeveloped countries.

Without some plan of the sort proposed by the President, in whatever detail it may be spelled out, the United States will be sharply limited both in what it can do and when it can do it. As Mr. Eisenhower says, flexibility is called for in a world where "events move with great rapidity." The recent shift in the Soviet Union's policy line from military threat to economic penetration of other countries displayed what an advantage flexibility was on Russia's part—and what a disadvantage inflexibility was on ours.

Without planning ahead, the United States will be restricted always to proceeding defensively to counter Soviet initiatives. The President says with a proper pride as well as wisdom that "we do not intend to permit specific Soviet moves to control our activities," but "must go ahead affirmatively."

The Point IV program has proved itself. There could hardly be more sincere or tangible proof than the aid which the Soviet Union is imitating it. Russia is building a steel mill in India, sending tractors to Afghanistan and opening up bakeries and assisting in construction of a highway and airfields there, as well as offering to help finance the Egyptian Aswan dam. And regardless of the domestic troubles which are besetting the Kremlin because of the anti-Stalin campaign, the U.S.S.R. continues, both by military potential and economic penetration, a danger to the free world.

Ready to Proceed

Just before the state of Alabama began its so-called anti-boycott trials of 90 Negroes who refused to ride Montgomery city buses, segregation was put to diligent test. Congressman Charles C. Diggs Jr. of Michigan, a Democrat and a Negro, entered the courtroom with his legal adviser, Basil W. Brown of Detroit. The court bailiff, mistaken as to Mr. Brown's race, made him identify himself as a Negro before permitting him to sit with Congressman Diggs. And now, with everybody in his proper place according to the law of Alabama, a fair trial can no doubt proceed.

Flood Control by 1964

St. Louisans in Washington, testifying before committees of the Senate and House on the need for a $551,000 appropriation to start the $130,000 flood control project here, went armed with facts that should carry conviction.

As Senator Symington says, a 12-foot flood—10 feet short of the maximum expected flood from which the engineering works would afford protection—would "cut off the city's entire water supply."

Mayor Tucker, President Morton Meyer of the St. Louis Flood Control Association, and President Kaufmann of the Chamber of Commerce, who headed the testifying delegation, argued cogently that planning and construction should be allowed to consume no more than the eight years they will require.

No Place for Little David

Perhaps the most pleasant aspect of the basketball season as far as St. Louis is concerned is the caliber of high school basketball played in this area. The record proves that it is good.

Beaumont's tall, smooth-working team won the Missouri high school championship for large schools, and Maplewood and Cleveland placed second and third. In Illinois, Edwardsville lost the state title to West Rockford by one basket, though we still cannot see how. The Tigers easily outscored the champions in field goals, and made a remarkable 55 per cent of their attempts from the field. But West Rockford was tall enough to gobble up balls that missed.

Illinois, of course, does not differentiate between large, small and medium size high schools for state tournament play, so the smallest can defeat the largest, and sometimes does. Until recently Missouri did not divide the teams according to size but that is the custom now, so we will never know how New Haven or Pembroke Country Day, the champs in their divisions, would do against Beaumont.

This division-by-size seems a shame, somehow. It takes little David away from all the Goliaths, and ruins the possibility of a Horatio Alger story. Down in Kentucky, where infants learn to walk by pushing basketballs, a school at Carr Creek has just won the state title. We note the fact because Carr Creek is not even on the latest Rand McNally map.

One-Man Patrol Cars

The St. Louis Police Department is about to begin an experiment that could lead to a tremendous gain in departmental efficiency without a correspondingly large rise in cost. One-man patrol cars will be introduced in selected areas of the Ruskin, Carondelet and Hampton districts on April 1. They will be manned by officers especially trained.

As developed in Kansas City and as it is to be tested here, the one-man technique is not an economy measure, much as it might appear at first glance. Greater efficiency is its aim. By placing two one-man cars in an area formerly patrolled by the same two officers riding in a single car, coverage of the area is doubled.

The experimental cars will be simple to identify. They will be painted white. If they perform as well as the Kansas City experience suggests, the improvement will be marked.

Up, Up—and Up

Aside from a few minor "adjustments" the stock market has been going up steadily now for many weeks. For a long time the "goal" of the traders was a 500 average for the 30 Dow-Jones Industrials. That mark is history now and new highs have been registered repeatedly since. Monday's close on the New York exchange for these 30 stocks was 509.76. Wall Streeters are beginning to ask themselves if the industrials are "going for" 600.

The stock market is a complex of many things, including hunches and guesses as well as economic realities and quarterly statements. The news that publicly reported dividends amounted to $809,000,000 in January, a 12 per cent rise from the first month in 1955, suggests that much of the market's increase is based on higher earnings. The Department of Commerce says that the January increase in dividends over January 1955 was "about the same as that of the full year 1955 over 1954." Investors in business are not going to ignore news like that.

Yet not all the signs are good. In an increasingly large number of cases, the price of stock shares has gotten so high that the rate of return in dividends is very low. In some instances this yield is down around 1 per cent. In such a situation, the interest in the stock is speculative, with the hope of a split in the shares and future growth. All that is problematical.

A year ago the Senate Banking Committee had a look at the financial world. Prices were nowhere near as high then as they are now. Many investors doubtless would feel a lot easier if the rise tapered off and for some time prices ranged along a plateau. Whether or not the upward sweep spells inflation as of this point, long continuance of the Wall Street boom in itself will be an inflationary influence.

The President's friends and admirers in the financial world will make no mistake if they take up and practice some of that gospel of moderation that Dwight D. Eisenhower often cites as his basic policy.

Punishment for All Three

The ugly crime of three 16-year-olds—Joseph A. Hastings Jr., George Lawson and Ancil Junior McGee—has brought its retribution. Hastings and Lawson, who pleaded guilty to charges of assault with intent to rape a 14-year-old University City school girl, have been sentenced to 10 years in the state reformatory. The two of them, also have been sentenced to 10 years concurrently on pleas of guilty to kidnapping the girl. McGee, who drove the car, was sentenced to five years for kidnapping. This keeps the three youths away from the hardened criminals at the state penitentiary at Jefferson City, but it gives them ample time to reflect on their outrageous acts in the security of Alagoa.

Prosecuting Attorney Garnholz and two St. Louis county circuit judges, Fred W. Mueller and Raymond E. LaDriere, participated in the handling of this case. The promptness and the sureness with which it was brought to trial and completed are evidence that the law will take its penalty from any young punks who engage in vicious and cowardly crimes.

One Parity Too Many

Nothing illustrates the growing irrationality of farm legislation better than the idea of "dual parity," which the Senate approved, 45 to 44, in another setback for Administration farm policy.

It is necessary to think about it only for a moment to understand that "dual parity" is a contradiction in terms. If "parity" means a level of farm income which will yield to the farmer purchasing power equivalent to that which his income gave him at a designated base period, then there can be only one "parity." There may be different ways of defining "parity," but when it is defined two different ways simultaneously the result is just not "parity."

Just as soon as Congress began writing post-war farm legislation, it was widely agreed that the original parity formula of the '20s and '30s needed revising. The first formula adopted the period 1909-14 as the standard of measurement. Two intervening wars and a major depression, along with other consequences of passing time, had made the formula out of date. And so Congress approved a new formula, which gave more recognition to actual farm prices and incomes over the past 10 years.

Because the new formula in the case of most crops worked out at a slightly lower figure than the old one, it was considered desirable to allow a transition period during which parity might be figured either way, and the higher of the two figures used. This may have been defensible as a temporary measure, but it makes no sense to go on indefinitely extending the transition.

If Congress wants to increase the level of price support, there are ways to do that without perpetuating an ambiguous definition of parity which is a little too much like tampering with the scales.

Out of Jail in Peru

The Peruvian Government has finally freed a number of political prisoners arrested a month ago, including Pedro Beltran, publisher of the newspaper La Prensa of Lima. The group was arrested (and the paper suppressed) after Beltran defied a censorship order and printed a proclamation by the leader of a short-lived rebellion. Editor Beltran simply said the statement was news, which it was. But now he is free and constitutional guarantees have been restored by President Manuel Odría in preparation for elections in June. One of the tests of the President's sincerity and of Peruvian liberty will be the freedom of one editor from now on.

A Little Nosegay of Metaphors

Admiring, as we do, the mixed metaphor in all its forms, we cannot but take off our hat from time to time in admiration of a speaker at the National Installment Credit Conference here. Arthur Bruen, of Kenosha, Wis., assistant treasurer of American Motors Corp., was warning the credit men against accepting packed prices for new cars and exaggerated valuations on the old cars traded in for them. "You must," said he, "bring the water from both sides of the saw if you are to see the transaction in the raw."

As an alternative, it might be suggested that the credit man peel the false fronts from both sides of the saw in order to see the transaction in the dry. But whether he wrings or whether he peels, as Mr. Bruen may be kind enough to join us in reassuring, he who harkens to this sage advice will never get his neck caught in the old shell game.

IDOL IN THE WORKERS' PARADISE

Too Few People, Too Many Votes

The Mirror of Public Opinion

'Rotten borough' system threatens defeat of Senator George, foreign relations committee chief, up for re-election in Georgia; thus giving farm people more votes than city people can change history; across nation rural areas hold more power than merited.

Richard L. Strout, Washington Correspondent, in The Christian Science Monitor

America's urge to give farm folks more votes than city folks may well change the course of history. At nearly every point in the political structure of the United States, state or national, farmers have more influence than their numbers warrant. This is achieved often by a system of "rotten boroughs" deliberately tipped to aid rural areas.

Nobody can understand American politics who does not understand this fact. Take the remarkable case right now of Senator George.

In a non-election year he is probably one of the men Mr. Eisenhower could count on most strongly for support on the Democratic side. But Mr. George is opposed for re-nomination by Ex-Gov. Herman F. Talmadge, who charges him with too much internationalism.

Well and good, you say: in a case like this let the worthy voters of Georgia decide under the fine old tradition of one adult, one vote. But that is just the system that doesn't prevail in Georgia.

The latest study of rural over-representation has just been made by Gordon E. Baker of the University of California. "Rural vs. Urban Political Power," published in the Doubleday series of "Short Studies in Political Science."

There has always been a theory in American political institutions—that greater virtue resides in the country than in the city.

In Georgia, for example, under the county unit system, Fulton county (Atlanta) has a population of 473,572 but sends only three Representatives to the State Legislature, a delegation matched by the state's three smallest counties with a combined population of 9088.

The Democratic party picks its senatorial nominee under a similar biased county-unit system. Thus Georgia politics are characterized by what Professor Baker politely calls "exceedingly rustic overtones."

The extraordinary Talmadge machine was built on this discrepancy. Candidates, observes Prof. Baker drily, "make no attempt to gain a popular majority but instead must direct their programs and appeals to the small rural districts with the preponderant political weight."

That's what's happening in Georgia today; that's where Mr. Talmadge is denouncing "foreign give-aways" right now to Senator George's disadvantage.

All over the country legislatures, sometimes in one house, sometimes in both, have a system of representation generally favorable to the less populated rural or small town areas.

Los Angeles county's 4,151,000 people receive the same representation in the state Senate as 14,014 people in the district composed of three Sierra Nevada counties.

The constitution of New York is so rigged that the people of Gotham will probably never elect a majority of the Legislature regardless of population: with 53 per cent of the population it elects only about 43 per cent of the Legislature.

In the United States the balance of population has shifted to the cities but the balance of political power remains in the rural and small town areas.

Let us turn to Congress. Everybody realizes that in the United States Senate, 15,000,000 people living in New York have only the same number of Senators as little Nevada, with 160,000. But this is only the beginning.

Apportionment of congressional districts in the lower House often shows the same glaring inequality as that in legislatures. The City of Detroit has one Representative in Congress and so does a small Michigan rural district half Detroit's size.

Dr. Baker figures the big cities have an overall shortage of "at least two dozen seats." (Think of that in relation to the natural gas bill—a battle between city and country voters won by the latter in the House by only 6 votes!)

Gerrymandered districts also often are at the expense of congested city areas. Says Dr. Baker at one point: "Massachusetts is notorious for its Republican-rigged congressional map."

Again, the seniority rule of picking committee chairmen by longevity of service often puts in office men from safe rural seats.

The rural bias in Congress helps to explain the strength of the farm bloc and many other features. It has another effect also, as Dr. Baker explains: "Congress speaks for a different constellation of forces than does the President. The local and unduly rural bias of Congress helps explain the wide gulf that so often separates the Legislature from an Executive Branch inevitably more concerned with nationwide issues."

More than 80 per cent of the world's natural gas is still produced in the United States. Texas alone supplies half the total used in 22,000,000 American homes and 2,000,000 industrial plants. But 23 other states also contribute.

Our Sixth Largest Industry

From a Bulletin of the National Geographic Society

Natural gas, until recently the country cousin of the oil business, has gone to town with such a bang that it is now the nation's sixth largest industry.

Used 3000 years ago by the Chinese, natural gas was first produced commercially in the United States in 1821 near Fredonia, N.Y. When Gen. Lafayette visited the city in 1825 he was greeted with gas-lit street lights and served a gas-cooked meal.

Natural gas was not obtained in quantity, however, until oil began to flow after 1859. And then, without pipes to deliver it, it had to be burned off as a bothersome by-product. In Fredonia gas had been distributed through hollowed-out logs. Pipes of iron, lead and concrete also had been tried. But for the big push, the industry waited for modern steel pipes.

These began coming in the late 1920s, only to be held up by the shortage of steel during World War II. Steel pipelines have veined the country, reaching into every state but five and totaling end-to-end, 420,000 miles. Thus, through one of the world's greatest transportation systems, the invisible vapor flows, unheard and unseen.

Even storage facilities, mostly old abandoned gas fields, are hidden in the earth. One of these "cellars"—under the Government's gold vaults at Fort Knox, Ky.—has a precedent in ancient history.

Delphi, the famous temple of Greece, was built over a gas field. People believed that the escaping vapors were the breath of Apollo and that the god voiced his wisdom through Pythia, a lady oracle who sat amid the fumes dispensing advice. Once King Croesus asked Pythia if he should wage war on King Cyrus. He would ruin a great empire, she said, if he did. He did—and destroyed his own kingdom.

More than 80 per cent of the world's natural gas is still produced in the United States. Texas alone supplies half the total used in 22,000,000 American homes and 2,000,000 industrial plants. But 23 other states also contribute.

Man Meets Tiger

HARRY BLACK by David Walker. (Houghton Mifflin, 216 pp., $3.95)

"Tiger, Tiger, burning bright in the forest of the night."—William Blake.

Canadian David Walker's new novel concerns a tiger-hunter named Harry Black, a man burning bright in a forest of loneliness and disillusion.

Characters in adventure stories are often stereotyped or indistinct. They are obscured and overpowered by their own adventures. What they are is hidden behind what they do. David Walker does not suffer his hero Harry Black to meet such a fate. Black's violent exploits never screen the fact that he is foremost a man, individual, deeply sensitive and several-sided. He is the reckless, young British officer in India. He is the brave soldier escaping a German prison camp. He is a tender lover entangled in a hopeless affair. He is the grim hunter, venturing his life to a twisted outlook. In every role, he is adroit in loneliness and lack of faith.

From a spectator standpoint, he performs heroically. From a personal standpoint, he never approaches happiness. Finally, at the crossroads, he is forced to face humanity, a woman's love, a black man's loyalty, and a comrade's bravery.

Harry Black's struggle is further complicated and perhaps personified by "the Bad One," a man-eating tiger of unusual ferocity. This living tiger and Harry Black's own psychological tigers become interstriped. They assume one identity in his mind. To destroy one is to destroy the other. Without giving away the ending, it may be said that Harry Black makes a last prodigious effort to win both the Lady AND the Tiger. He emerges a half-winner.

Tiger-stalking and, conversely, man-stalking are chilling experiences even in print. Walker's accounts compare authoritatively with factual reports of real-life hunts. His description of human kills is only as grisly as necessary. In these sequences, he quickens the reader's pulse. He smashes through with short, jolting sentences and builds up unbearable tension.

Walker fires his own high-velocity weapons from the very outset. Book I ends with the tiger in mid-air, the hero at life-or-death and the reader between heartbeats. David Walker must now be considered a top-ranking author. His book is powerful and equally dramatic on both the physical and emotional levels. He works with confidence and skill.

Poverty Is the Problem

JOURNEY INTO A FOG by Margaret Berger-Hamerschlag. (Sheed &amp; Ward, 254 pp., $3.50)

The theme of "Journey Into a Fog" reminded this reviewer of an epigram by Lord Henry in "The Picture of Dorian Gray." When approached by a well meaning society lady who wanted to sell him some tickets to a charity ball, Lord Henry refused, saying "Poverty is the problem of slavery, and you propose solving the problem by amusing the slaves."

Into the slums of London goes artist-author Margaret Berger-Hamerschlag to teach art to the children of poverty. She is appalled by their crudity, obscenity, preoccupation with sex. But one wonders what she expected—are these not the by-products of poverty? And can the problems of poverty be alleviated by little illuminations on techniques of art? These children are slaves of poverty and neither amusing them or teaching them art will solve their problems. It is a pity that the book, so perceptively written and with obvious compassion for the bleak lives of these youths in the slums, should suffer from a lack of a central theme and a frame of reference.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Minnesota's Show of True Democracy

MINNEAPOLIS.

NEARLY EVERY TOWN and village in this state as well as the three cities—the Twin Cities here and Duluth—were crossroads in the hectic, exhaustive Adlai Stevenson-Estes Kefauver presidential primary contest. And this is a big state, eleventh in the nation in area.

One day or another, snow-shadowed or brilliant with bright, cold sunshine, the caravan would arrive and out of one of the automobiles—or occasionally a plane—would step now the tall, grinning, self-confident Senator from Tennessee, now the shorter, smiling, and more withdrawn 1952 standard-bearer of the Democratic party. It is doubtful if any other state and its inhabitants ever saw so much, or heard so often, two nationally known political figures—and at the same time in the concentrated space of a month.

To this reporter, who was in many parts of the state in this presidential primary procession of each, the experience is now a panorama of roads splitting the flat, snow-covered landscape that stretched away on either side, with the many lakes distinguishable only by the lack of trees for they were still ice-bound acres of white emptiness and ever so often, the small towns upon which we would come, strewn along their main streets and with few inhabitants abroad because of the zero and below zero wrath of the weather.

But always the people. They got to be the story. The people in these community gathering places—weathered men in overalls or other practical, rough-hewn attire, women spruced up prettily for the day, some of the younger ones with babies in their laps or with impatient three, four and five-year-olds fidgeting in the adjacent seats, uninterested in 90 per cent of party or how Secretary of State Dulles is conducting our foreign affairs.

Some revealed their rebellious apostasy by slipping free and roaming the aisles while their frustrated mothers looked on with one fretful eye toward the miscerant and the other eye toward the speaker.

Value of Primary Shown.

Never has this reporter seen such closely attentive audiences as these people who had taken the trouble to come to these political meetings, and some from far away—for farmers and their wives and children predominated in many instances—which meant the fuss and bother incident to such excursions for all families. It not only took special effort often, but also hardihood to brave the brutally bitter weather.

Maybe Minnesota is different.

U.S. CHURCHMEN FOLK DANCE WITH RUSSIAN CHILDREN

LENNINGRAD, U.S.S.R., March 20 (AP)—Visiting United States Protestant churchmen folk-danced with Russian children yesterday at the Palace of Pioneers here. The Americans huffed and puffed to keep up with the youngsters, but everybody had a good time.

The unscheduled frolic was the high point of the 10 Americans' one-day visit to Leningrad.

Within minutes of their arrival from Moscow the Americans were taken to the palace headquarters of the Communist youth organization. Some 300 children from 8 to 10 years old surrounded the visitors and led them into the midst of the folk dances, already under way.

"We are all past the age where we can go in for this sort of thing without huffing and puffing," said Dr. Eugene C. Blake of Philadelphia, head of the delegation and president of the National Council of Churches. "But it is very enjoyable."

The Americans spent the rest of the day trying to visit some churches here. Three of the five churches where they called were closed for repairs. This spared the hosts and visitors some embarrassment since the churches, even when open, are used as anti-religious museums.

WILHELM MIKLAS, PRE-WAR PRESIDENT OF AUSTRIA, DIES

VIENNA, March 20 (AP)—Wilhelm Miklas, president of Austria from 1928 until the Nazi occupation in 1938, died here today. He was 84 years old.

Miklas's political career ended in 1938 when Hitler occupied Austria and proclaimed its union with Germany.

He had defied two ultimatums from the German Fuehrer to yield Austria to Nazi control, but finally was forced to appoint an Austrian Nazi, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, as chancellor.

Seyss-Inquart succeeded Kurt von Schuschnigg, who resigned March 11, 1938, in protest against the Hitler maneuvers.

Miklas then refused to sign the Anschluss decrees uniting Austria with Germany and resigning as president March 13, 1938, the day the Nazi armies entered his country.

Funeral services for Trustin B. Boyd II, grandson of the founder of Boyd's clothing stores here and a former vice president of the firm, will be held at 3 p.m. tomorrow at St. Michael and St. George's Episcopal Church, 6345 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, with private burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Boyd, 45 years old, died Sunday after a heart attack in Los Angeles, Calif., where he had been in the real estate business since severing his connection with the Boyd firm here in 1950.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mrs. Dorothy Morgan Claggett; a son, Trustin B. Boyd III; his mother, Mrs. Ingram F. Boyd, and a brother, Ingram F. Boyd Jr., president of the clothing firm.

Eye-Bank Fund Campaign.

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—The National Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration has set a goal of at least $100,000 for its 1956 fund drive. It also repeated its plea for people to donate their eyes at death to help restore the sight of 20,000 persons blinded by corneal defects.

U.S. AID AS PEACE FORCE IN MIDEAST

It's Major, Long-Range Factor in View of Pair in Israel for 14 Months.

American economic and technical aid to Arab nations and Israel can be a major factor in long-range attempts to bring peace to the Middle East, Mr. and Mrs. W. Whitney Smith, who spent 14 months with a United States Point IV mission to Israel, said here today.

"Israelis show a tremendous willpower and a desire to learn everything about technological methods that can help them build their country," Smith, head of the department of bacteriology and public health at Utah State College, Logan, Utah, told the Post-Dispatch. He demonstrated new techniques for tuberculosis testing to veterinary doctors.

Arab leaders realize Israeli standards of living are far above theirs and they fear that country's progress will make their subjects discontented with their life of poverty, he said.

"Because the Arabs were defeated in their war with Israel, they are now opposed to cooperating with Israel in mutual development programs, even though these programs would help raise their standards of living," Mrs. Smith, a sociologist, declared. She did sociological field research while she and her husband lived in Israel in 1953 and 1954.

Mrs. Smith was especially impressed with the position of women in Israel. They are subject to universal military service and are trained for front-line fighting. In kibbutzim, communal agricultural settlements, they do some work in the fields, and the men do some of the household chores, she said.

"Breaking down the division of labor between men and women has eliminated some of the American signs of femininity, such as lipstick and permanent hair, but the women are as quick to marry as in this country," she noted.

The pair talked at St. Louis University and at a meeting of the Brentwood Kiwanis Club yesterday. These talks were sponsored by the American Christian Palestine Committee, a national organization of persons interested in the survival of Israel and other problems of the Middle East, Smith said.

Miss Truman went over the details of the wedding for reporters at the Carlyle Hotel here, where she has a suite. Only members of both families will attend the ceremony in the small brick church where her parents were married 36 years ago and only close friends will be invited to the reception at the Truman home afterward.

Miss Truman said she would have two matrons of honor and no bridesmaids. Her attendants will be Mrs. John E. Horton, the former Miss Drucie Snyder, whose father was Truman's Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. W. Coleman Branton, the former Miss Mary Shaw. Both have been her friends since childhood.

Daniel will be attended by "three old friends," she said, explaining his absence from the press conference with "He's a right now he's working away" at his job as an assistant to the foreign editor of the New York Times.

Her wedding dress will be "a sort of beige, short, a combination of lace and tulle," to be made by Nicole Fontana in Rome, and John Fredericks is making the matching hat and veil.

Her attendants will wear apple green and pale yellow. Miss Truman said her wedding dress "is the only secret."

Margaret Truman Sets Wedding For April 21; 'Quiet' Ceremony

MARGARET TRUMAN at press conference in her New York hotel yesterday where she announced plans for her forthcoming marriage to E. Clifton Daniel Jr.

The New York Herald Tribune Post Dispatch

NEW YORK, March 20—Margaret Truman announced yesterday that she and E. Clifton Daniel Jr. will be married Saturday, April 21, at 4 p.m. in a "very simple and very quiet" ceremony at Trinity Episcopal Church in Independence, Mo.

Miss Truman went over the details of the wedding for reporters at the Carlyle Hotel here, where she has a suite. Only members of both families will attend the ceremony in the small brick church where her parents were married 36 years ago and only close friends will be invited to the reception at the Truman home afterward.

CITES AMATEUR BOTANIST, 91, FOR RARE PLANT FINDS

A citation for meritorious service in finding rare species of Missouri plants was awarded to Oscar Peterson, 91-year-old amateur botanist, by the St. Louis Audubon Society in a ceremony last night at Third Baptist Church.

"Mr. Peterson has also shared his interest and knowledge of Missouri flora with others, particularly young people, thus helping the cause of conservation of our natural resources," Earl Hath, society president, said.

Peterson, who lives with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Marshall, at 267 Elm avenue, Glendale, has had botany as a hobby all his adult life.

A retired clerk, he still goes on nature hikes and writes verse and field reports under the signature, "The Vagabond Dreamer."

FRANCIS E. BOHN FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE THURSDAY

Funeral services for Francis E. Bohn, formerly of St. Louis, will be Thursday at 10 a.m. at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, 7148 Forsyth boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Bohn, 59 years old, died of a heart attack Sunday at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he had moved several months ago. He was the brother of the late Harry M. Bohn, former president of the Bohn-Lenart Wholesale Grocery Co., 812 North Broadway, and worked as a salesman for the firm until he retired because of ill health.

Surviving are his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Harold Donovan of Belleville, and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman of Indianapolis.

Views of Louis Sullivan Buildings Shown in Washington U. Exhibit

Hitherto Unexploited Angle of Wainwright Building Here Is Highlight—Pictures on Loan.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Freshness of design and ornament of Louis Sullivan, noted American architect, is enhanced by new views of his famous buildings in a 35-photograph exhibition that will extend through April 3 in Washington University's Givens gallery. The pictures are on loan from Ralph Marlowe Line, a member of the University of Illinois faculty.

A highlight of the show for those interested in St. Louis and its architecture will be a hitherto-unexploited angle of this city's light and lofty Wainwright building (now the Missouri Insurance building), 705 Chestnut street. This picture suggests the clean-lined structure's esthetic kinship to Buffalo's Guaranty building and other pioneer skyscrapers.

Architectural historians regard the Wainwright building, begun in 1890, as the noblest and most beautiful of all the structures of the period that used the then new principle of the steel frame with thin covering walls hung from it. Previous to the mid-1880s, tall structures' weight was borne by bulky, space-consuming walls.

School of Architecture faculty members admiring the show

Much admired, too, were photos of Chicago's Carrie Eliza Getty Tomb, where original ornament is incised, enriching the surface but preserving the structure's basic form, that of a cube.

Similar virtues mark the Charlotte Dickson Wainwright Tomb in St. Louis's Bellefontaine Cemetery, in which even the functional problem of rain gutters is solved in terms of unbroken cubic design. This was pointed out by Claude Stoller and Dale Haworth, teachers of design.

Sullivan, whose influential ideas were in close sympathy with those of St. Louis's Theodore Carl Link, designer of Union Station, lived from 1856 to 1924. Sullivan is known as the founder of the contemporary Chicago School of Architecture. His leading disciple is Frank Lloyd Wright, who does not readily play the disciple's role to anyone.

MRS. WILLIAM DAVIS DIES IN ENGLAND; EX-ST. LOUISAN

Mrs. William Harding Davis, a former St. Louisian who was active in church and civic affairs here for many years, died yesterday in Oxford, England. She was 86 years old.

Mrs. Davis, an accomplished musician, was a member of the Wednesday Club and the Westminster Presbyterian Church. She moved to England about four years ago to live with her daughter, Miss Audrey Davis. Miss Davis, a member of a Red Cross group serving United States Air Force units at Oxford, is the only survivor.

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff,
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.,
March 20—If the Cardinals needed an encouraging word today, they could take hope from the confidence of their sophomore center fielder, William Charles Viridon, an agile West Plains (Mo.) athlete who plans to show 'em.

Viridon, like the higher-paid members of the Redbirds, isn't hitting down here in the Grapefruit League, where all red faces aren't from the sun's rays. But, unlike some players, Bill isn't embarrassed over his failure to find the range.

"I can remember, after all, the spring I trained with the Yankees and got only one hit in something like 17 times at bat, trying to replace Mickey Mantle," he said, smiling wryly, and recalled even more recently:

"How about last year? Eddie Stanky gave me the center field job during spring training when I must have been hitting only six and seven-eighths."

Another Day, Another Loss. So the 24-year-old Viridon, National League rookie-of-the-year when he batted .281 in 1955, isn't discouraged or particularly disturbed about inability to wear out opposing pitchers in the exhibition season in which, largely as a result of failure to hit, the Cardinals have lost six of 10 games.

Their fifth one-run defeat was handed them by the Philadelphia Phillies yesterday at Clearwater, Fla., 4 to 3.

A year up here gives you confidence and I believe in myself," said the bespectacled Viridon. "Hitters better than I am—Stan Musial, for instance—insist the poor batting backgrounds in Florida parks are a handicap. And I know Rip Reese, looking at another phase of it, was saying the other day how he'd hit good in spring training last year for the first time—real good, in fact—and yet wound up with a season not as solid as the one before."

"So I'm not going to tighten up just because I'm not hitting now."

Viridon was asked if he had set a goal for himself.

"Sure, I want to hit .300, get 20 homers and drive in 100 runs," he replied. "I'll give it a battle."

The Redbirds will need robust batting support from their left-handed hitting second-season center fielder—maybe as lusty as his ambitious program—and particularly if they find home plate as difficult to locate as they have down here.

Yesterday, to illustrate, runs again were rare even though the Cardinals finally found a home-run punch that had escaped them in nine previous variety games this spring. Musial, timing a change-up thrown by veteran right-hander Herman Wehrer, lifted No. 1 over the right field fence at Clearwater in the first inning. And Ken Boyer, who especially had looked lackadaisical to veteran observers, walloped a husky two-run homer off the same pitcher.

Unfortunately, however, that was all for the Redbirds, who were held to five hits, two by Viridon. From the time Boyer teed off in the fourth inning, only one St. Louis player reached base, a result of a simple in the ninth by Red Schoendienst off a rookie Philadelphia southpaw named Bob Ross.

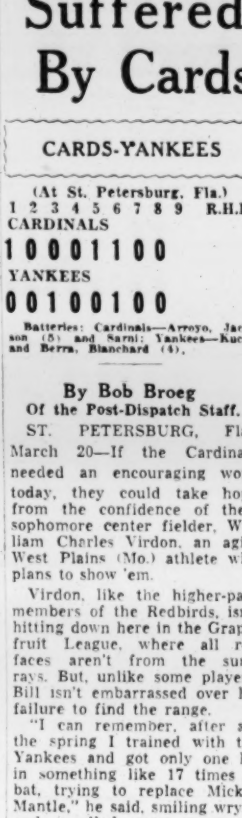

Manager Mayo Smith, needing left-handers, recommended purchase of Ross from the Southern Association on a conditional basis or look-see. And it wouldn't be far-fetched if he proved to be another lefthander kept in the league through the good graces—and bashful batting—of the Cardinals.

Redbird Disappointed. Manager Frank Lane, sounding like a man arguing with himself, said he couldn't see certain hitters not hitting later—and he rattled off practically the entire St. Louis batting order—but he indicated he was miffed, anyway. And he was distressed further that the Cardinals were beaten, as he put it, by "a couple of .190 buttercup hitters."

The unflattering reference was to two young lefthanded batters, Marv Blaylock, who lined a first-inning homer off

Akins Can Help Climb in Fight Here Tomorrow

By W. J. McGoogan

Virgil Akins has another chance to boost his stock in the welterweight division of boxing when he tackles Hector Constance of Trinidad at The Arena tomorrow night.

Akins, now ranked sixth in the 147-pound class, has all the equipment to make a champion. He's a good boxer and a good fighter, but he lacks fire.

He has had a habit in the past of losing his big chances. In 1952 he fought Johnny Saxton, now welterweight champion, and had Saxton on the floor before losing the decision. Akins was outweighted, having been only a lightweight then.

Now he is a full-fledged welterweight and he will certainly weigh as much as, if not more, than Constance.

Constance rates several notches down the ladder from Akins but he's a good boxer and he is fast.

Matchmaker Irving Schoenwald pointed out to Akins that he now has a chance to make a real noise in his class with the possibility of a crack at Saxton, if he can prove himself.

Virgil, remembering their previous meeting, thinks he can cope with Saxton, and he may be in the proper frame of mind when he meets the West Indies battler.

Akins has been particularly disappointing at home. He has fought most of his best bouts away, although he made a disappointing showing against Isaac Logart in Madison Square Garden last December. He looked so bad in losing to a fighter he had defeated previously that his friends almost gave up on him. But he came back and knocked out four straight opponents.

His bout with Constance will be telecast nationally and locally, here over KTVI, Channel 36, at 9 o'clock.

Both boxers have finished their training and took it easy today.

There are four other contests on the program, including an eight-round bout between Del Flanagan and Johnny Neal of Milwaukee. Del Flanagan, and his brother, Glen, have boxed here in the past.

Secession Move — Indiana to Illinois — Over Basket Defeat

GARY, Ind., March 20 (AP). — George Ferhat, Democratic city councilman, said today he would introduce a resolution in the City Council asking that Gary secede from Indiana and join Illinois because of "unfair treatment by the Indiana political officials and sports officials who hate Northern Indiana."

Ferhat, a steel worker, said he was referring specifically to the Lafayette semi-final of the Hoosier High School Basketball tournament March 10.

Gary Froebel lost to Lafayette, 71-58, after two Froebel players had been ejected from the game for alleged unnecessary roughness.

Simpkins After Title.

The Joe Simpkins club could take sole possession of the title in the Neighborhood Association Girls Basketball League with a victory over Festus tonight. The game will be the second half of a doubleheader in which Mac's Inn meets Collinsville in a 7:30 opener. Mac's could tie for first if it wins and Simpkins loses. The Juanita Curtis trophy will be presented tonight.

Women's Bowling Team Hits 1076 and 2951 for New Marks

The Bowling Esquire women's team, bowling in the men's Floriss Scratch League, last night had a high single of 1076 and high three of 2951 to establish new women's records for the season in St. Louis. The previous top series was 2944 by the Esquires. The 2951, incidentally, topped the totals of all the men's quintets.

The 1076, coming in the first game, ranks fifth in the country according to the latest W.B.C. statistics, while the 2951 ranks sixth. In addition to the 1076, the team had games of 901 and 974.

Mrs. Laverne Carter topped the quintet with 663 on games of 236, 213 and 214 to raise her season's average to 195, tied for sixth among the nation's stars.

Giving Mrs. Carter the most help was Mrs. Ida Mae Gotch with 632. Flossie Argent had 602, Mildred Stauder 568 and Virginia Noles 486.

FOR the engineer or scientist who has more to offer...

Individual ability engineers just as widely among engineers as among all people. To the engineer with unusual ability and promise, to the man who has more to offer—IBM has more to offer.

Consider these facts about IBM in terms of your own career objectives. First, digital computer development, design and manufacture is perhaps the one "unlimited" field in electronics today. Second, IBM is a leader and pioneer in this field—builder of the first automatic large-scale digital computer, builder of the world's largest computer. Third, IBM's engineering leadership is based on a solid succession of achievements; during 1955, IBM announced a major data processing improvement every two weeks. Fourth, and perhaps most significantly, there has been a five-fold growth in IBM lab personnel over the past five years. Finally, IBM's salaries are excellent, with advancement based solely on merit. Company-paid hospitalization, life insurance and retirement plans.

With all the evidence in, doesn't the IBM opportunity suggest more growth, more professional satisfaction, more stature...more room for your abilities?

Three Unanimous Choices.

THE 34 players who participated in the final Olympic soccer trial here Sunday attracted the unanimous approval of the 10 selectors. All agreed that Zenon Snylyk of Chicago was the most polished player of the day. Herman Wecke and Ruben Mendoza, with Snylyk, were the only unanimous choices for the 15-man squad.

Snylyk told Nick Jost, manager of the Kutsis team, that he plans to move to St. Louis next fall to enter a local university. He is a graduate student now at Chicago U., in the field of political science.

"I want to play with the Kutsis team," said Snylyk. He was happy to learn that teams

Kutis and Eagles To Open Amateur Series on April 1

FIRST game of the western final series in the National Amateur soccer tournament, between Kutis and the Chicago Eagles, will be played in Chicago, Sunday, April 1, it was announced today.

Kutis will be the home team in the second game, probably April 29. Manager Nick Jost has requested the 29th date because there will be no Cardinal baseball game here on that Sunday. This match would be at Oakland Stadium.

There are not sponsored by national groups as in Chicago. There, the Polish nationals play with the Eagles or Falcons; Swedes have their own team; Germans gather on the Schwaben team; Mexicans form the Nacasa team, etc. Soccer doesn't like that setup.

John Carden, who played so effectively as the East center halfback, Sunday, went through the game under the handicap of a broken wrist. He injured the member while playing indoor soccer six days before the game. He was in the hand and forearm were encased in a plaster cast but he played on as though perfectly fit.

Bigwigs Impressed.

Soccer bigwigs from out of town were favorably impressed with the local junior final in which St. Engelbert defeated St. Ambrose. Ed Sullivan, U.S.F.A. president, said he believed the final junior final between the St. Louis-Chicago winner and the eastern survivor will be one of the best in the history of junior soccer. Chief criticism of the local players was that they were too often voted the ball into the air when there was a good chance for a useful ground pass.

At least $35,000 will be needed to send the U.S. soccer squad to Melbourne in November, committee chairman Wilson T. Hobson estimated. "We may pick up some of that money in two or three games in the week before our departure," he suggested. "But, for the most part we must rely on the generosity of individuals."

Hobson said he would like to have the Olympic team assemble in St. Louis for one of these games "against Kutis." That would call for some lineup juggling because four Kutis stars are now on the Olympic squad.

Kutis Plays Liberty.

LOCAL teams swung back into their District title series today with a doubleheader. Sunday, at Fairground Park. It will be Cal Gage against St. Ambrose in the first game and Kutis vs. Liberty in the second. Starting time will be 1:15, the halftime to be 45 minutes. In first-round games, St. Ambrose and Carondelet tied for high score honors with 7 each; Simpkins tallied 5, and Kutis 4.

The tournament runs through April 15, and there will be a blank on April 22 when the Cardinals play a baseball doubleheader here against Milwaukee. Then the second game of the western final series, Kutis-Eagles, will be held and if the St. Louis team is successful, there will be a series with the eastern champion. Shortly thereafter the Augsburg Schwaben team of Germany will come in for a match with Kutis and then, the way will be cleared for the visit of Everton of the English league. Everton's host will be the Catholic Youth Council which will be represented by a full soccer program for the spring months, and there is more in the making for the summer, mostly of a local nature.

Brain Operation for Johannesburg Boxer Following Knockout

JOHANNESBURG, March 20 (AP)—Doctors early today operated on Hubert Essakow who suffered a hemorrhage of the brain after being knocked out in the eleventh round of a bout against Willie Towel last night. Essakow was reported in critical condition and the operation sought to remove a blood clot from his brain.

The bout originally was scheduled as a South African featherweight title bout, but Towel, the champion, forfeited his title at the weigh-in yesterday when he was 135 pounds over the 126-pound limit. Essakow was one and three-quarters pound over the limit himself.

Essakow took a hammering from Towel and finally was felled by a straight right to the jaw. Essakow, who did not regain consciousness, never had been knocked out before.

Lakers Hand Hawks Record Beating, 133-75, to Even Series

Bob Pettit Is Held to 14 Points

By Harold Flachsbarth
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 20—An 116-115 victory counts just as much as a 133-75 pasting the Minneapolis Lakers handed the Hawks last night in the second game of the N.B.A. playoffs, Red Holzman pointed out. So the sometimes fiery, sometimes soft-spoken, coach of the St. Louis team was far from discouraged today.

It's one game apiece for the Hawks and Lakers in the playoff for the right to challenge Fort Wayne in the Western Division and the third and deciding game will be played here tomorrow night. That gives Minneapolis a big edge due to the advantage of the home floor.

But the Lakers, Holzman pointed out, also had a big advantage when they won the important second-playoff game at Kiel Auditorium Friday night and then proceeded to blow a 19-point lead in Saturday night's opener of the best-of-three series.

There isn't much to be said about the Hawks' downfall in the second game of the series, in which they were outscored by 58 points as 10 Minneapolis players hit double scoring figures. However, Bud Blattner, a radio commentator accompanying the team, hit the nail on the head when he said, "The turning point of the game was the opening tip-off."

Holzman, a former City College of New York standout and a professional player and coach who has experienced only two losing seasons in 11 long winters, won't be counted out of this one—despite that 53-point margin of victory for the Lakers. A record beating for the N.B.A. Another new mark was the total of 10 players in double figures.

Three Minneapolis club marks also fell, the 72-point half, the 133 total and, of course, the 58-point winning margin. "We'll regroup a little bit today," said Holzman, "shoot a little, and don't forget, a 58-point victory doesn't count one bit more than that 116-115 thriller we scored in St. Louis Saturday night. After all, the Lakers beat us Friday, and we lost Saturday, didn't we? Why can't we do it again Wednesday night?"

Bob Pettit Jr. is looking for a really good scoring output for their league champion, Bob Pettit, everybody's hero in the N.B.A., but a player roundly booed here last night because of his concentration style on free-throw shots. Pettit, two-time guard much of the way, scored only 14 points. One of the Hawks' night, if the Hawks last night, he's likely to tally 46, and then it won't matter if Minneapolis is a hot-shooting team.

John Kundla's Lakers, joking their way at the free-throw line and whizzing with speed they didn't show during the regular season, had this game in the bag in the first five minutes. A three-point play by Dick Schmittner, a thorn in the Hawks' efforts through the last two weeks, made the score 6-1 before the Hawks realized they were wearing their visiting fire-red shirts.

After that it was one Laker basket after another, one Hawk failure after another. Pettit, an 1871-point scorer during the regular season, in which he averaged better than 25 points a game, was held down for the third successive time by the tall and rugged Lakers. He's the bread-and-butter man of the Hawks, who go as Pettit goes. He's due. And he was. Holzman and his crew are banking on tomorrow.

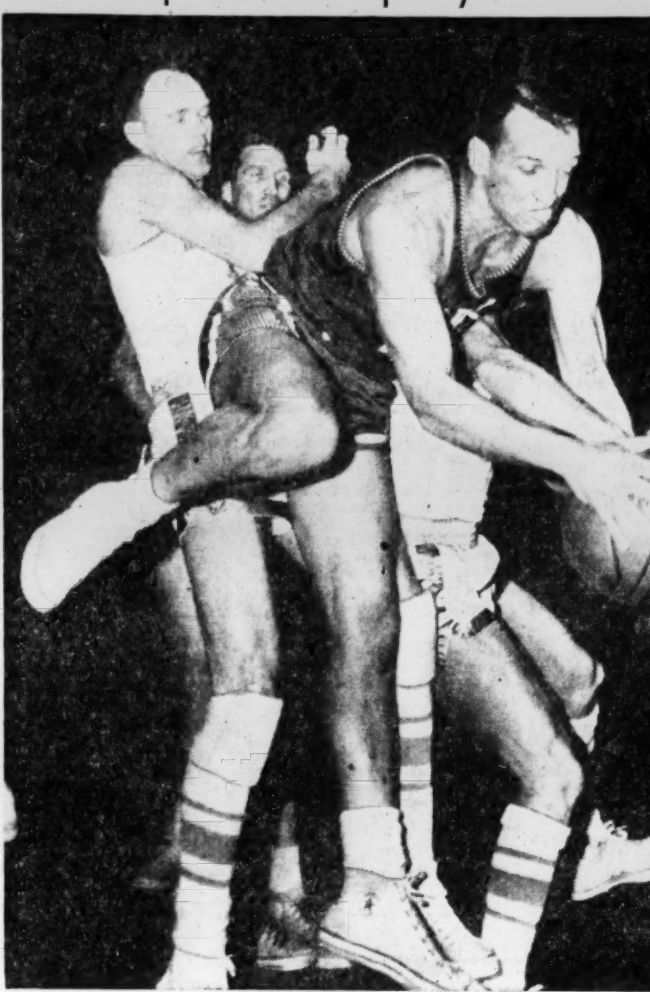

In the second game of play-off series that started on such a resounding note for St. Louis Saturday, when the Hawks overcame a 19-point deficit to win, the home Laker club had a 10-point bulge, 25-15, after the first quarter, and never was headed.

Bounding Bob Is Rested. Holzman wisely rested Pettit in both the second quarter and the second half. Bounding Bob, a favorite in the basketball world as Stan Musial is in baseball—and a younger slugger who takes a beating from bigger and huskier men every time he takes the floor—shares the confidence of the Hawks about the third game Wednesday.

They'd like to go to Fort Wayne for the start of a five-game play-off that, if St. Louis qualifies, would be continued Saturday night at Kiel Auditorium, the Hawks' home court. The change in dates, if coming, was announced yesterday in St. Louis by Owner Ben Turner.

Only 2315 fans turned out

Hip 'n' a Hop by Harrison

Minneapolis' DICK SCHMITTNER had to give ground as the Hawks' BOB HARRISON went into the air to take a rebound during their play-off game on the Lakers' court. Behind Schmittner is St. Louis' JACK COLEMAN. The Lakers won, 133-75.

Four Games to Open 19th Annual Tourney At Maryville College

Four games tomorrow afternoon will start the first round of play in the nineteenth annual Maryville College basketball tournament. The school is located at 2900 Meramec street.

St. Peter's of St. Charles will oppose St. Francis de Sales at 4. St. Anthony will play St. Mark's at 5. Sacred Heart Academy (City Heights) will meet St. Elizabeth at 6 and Xavier will play St. Philip Neri at 7:30.

Two more games will be played Thursday. Villa Duchesne will meet Notre Dame of Belleville at 4 and Incarnate Word will oppose Sacred Heart Academy (St. Charles) at 5.

Villa Duchesne and Incarnate Word are defending co-champions, their title game a year ago having ended in a tie. All 12 schools in the tournament are from the St. Louis area.

Grand National's Top Five Horses Are Owned by Women

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Irish-trained Quare Times returned as favorite for Saturday's running of the Grand National steeplechase at a betting call-over by Britain's leading book-makers last night.

But backers were wary about favoring the 10-year-old bay gelding who won last year's race by 12 lengths. He had few supporters as the bookies slashed his odds from 100-8 to 9-1.

Warm-Up Time: Most of Bears' 17-4 Team Back, Bills Optimistic

By Jack Rice

Washington University announced its baseball schedule today, and St. Louis University announced its baseball optimism. The local college teams will not meet one another, a standard in all sports, but have a common bond of good prospects as they prepare to go their separate ways.

Washington will resume a baseball series with the University of Missouri in a home-and-home series. The Bears last met Missouri in 1951 and if they score a run against the Tigers this year progress will have been made. Missouri won, 2-0 and 7-0, in 1951.

The Bears have a 23-game schedule, and begin it March 29 and 30, in games against Arkansas State at Jonesboro, Ark. and at St. Louis.

Utah, contemplating his usual active spring as assistant football coach, head baseball coach, and head of the Cardinals on the Hilltop, believes his schedule is more difficult this year than last. His pitching staff offsets that, it's hoped.

In the past two seasons, Utah's teams have won 36, lost six. Last season began with foreboding, but the pitching staff has been in a body, and ended with a 17-4 record. This time the pitching staff is back in a body. Its members, and their records, are Al Wasserman (7-1), Mel O'Bannon (5-2), Ed Schall (2-0) and Fred Stevenson (2-0).

An added starter is Rich Hatz, idle last year. Regulars return to every position except second base and first base. Billiken coach Phil Dyan, one in the open air after spending a semester and more coaching his publicity department typewriter through the basketball season, has rational dreams of a Missouri Valley Conference title series.

Conference play is the major element in the St. Louis schedule, announced previously. The Bills shared the title last year with Oklahoma A. and M. and played only five games (4-1) to do it. This year they'll be more active. Drake has reentered, and the Valley's Southern and Northern divisions each four teams each now. Members will be required to play a round-robin within their divisions, meeting each other in three-game series.

It gives the Valley competition considerably more substance. St. Louis also has fallen heir to an advantage in the scheduling, because Drake will be its only series played away from home.

If we win our division, our opposition probably will be decided tomorrow or the next day," Dyan said. Southern co-favorites Oklahoma A. and M. and Houston begin their three-game series today, about the same hour the Bills will hold their first practice. Dyan sounded like it was plain to him who has to rush to catch up in this league.

WASHINGTON U. SCHEDULE. MARCH 29—29 and 30, Arkansas State at College Station; 31, Illinois State Normal, Joplin. APRIL 4, St. Mary's College of Winona, Minn.; 5, Missouri, Joplin; 10, Missouri at Columbia; 14, Western Illinois, Joplin; 18, Harris Teachers at Washington; 21, Eastern Illinois at Charleston; 25, Harris Teachers at Charleston; 28, Concordia Seminary at Washington; 30, Arkansas State, Joplin. MAY 2, Southern Illinois at Carbondale; 4 and 5, University of Arkansas, Joplin; 6, Pennsylvania State; 11 and 12, William Jewell, Joplin; 15 and 16, Illinois, Joplin; 18 and 19, Bradley, Joplin.

Carondelet Y Wins. In the basketball game that completed the Y.M.C.A.'s city-county sports celebration, the Berbers of the Carondelet Y defeated the County Y's Aalco, 83-63. Top scorers for the Berbers were Charles Cobb, 21 points, Clarence Eutson, 20 and Charles Meine, 19. Aalco's Jim Stevens had 32.

Syracuse Nips Celtics, Ties Playoff Series

SYRACUSE, March 20 (UP)—The Syracuse Nationals evened their National Basketball Association playoff series with Boston last night by beating the Celtics, 101-98, before 7000 fans at Syracuse War Memorial Auditorium.

The best-of-three series now stands at one game apiece as the clubs move to Boston for the decisive contest Wednesday night.

Syracuse, leading by 11 points going into the final quarter, had to fight off a strong Boston rally to win. Jack Nichols of Boston hit 10 points to spark the Boston comeback which narrowed the Nats' lead to three points at 98-95 with 50 seconds left.

But George King, the Nats' sparkplug, scored a foul shot and field goal around a foul shot by Bob Cousy to protect the lead.

Syracuse led most of the way in the first half and left the court at intermission with a 53-50 lead. The Celtics took over the lead with two baskets at the start of the second half but Johnny Kerr scored two field goals to put the Nationals back in the lead and Boston never led again.

Cousy played a fine game for Boston as he scored 28 points and was credited with 10 assists. Syracuse, with six men in double figures, was led by Kerr with 23 points while King scored 18.

DETROIT TENPINNERS

Take Seventh Place In A.B.C. Doubles

ROCHESTER, N.Y., March 20 (AP)—A pair of seventh-place finishes in the singles and doubles marked the only changes in the standings of the "minor events" of the fifty-third annual American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday.

Some 368 bowlers were unable to complete the four lead series as scoring hit a snag on the seventeenth day of the 79-day tournament in the Community War Memorial.

Cass Grygiel and John O'Brien of Detroit took over seventh place in the doubles with a 5-7 split in the final frame of his final game preventing him from challenging the leader, Tony Sparadino of Rego Park, N.Y., who has a 719 total.

In the all-events high score for the day was registered by Grygiel who had 1845, 59 pins below the leading 1904 of Alfred "Lindy" Faragall of Paterson, N.J.

Dayton Heavily Favored Over Handicapped Xavier

NEW YORK, March 20 (UP)—Tall, top-seeded Dayton is a prohibitive choice to wallop a Xavier team bereft of its best big man tonight in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament, but third-seeded St. Joseph's is only even money against Seton Hall.

The quarter-finals got under way with one surprise last night as short, scrappy St. Francis of Brooklyn upset fourth-seeded Niagara, 74-72, in overtime.

Then second-seeded Louisville made the form sheet look a little better by using its great height and bench strength advantages to trounce defending champion Duquesne, 84-72, before a crowd of 6250 at Madison Square Garden.

Tonight's Dayton-Xavier winner will tackle St. Francis in the semi-finals on Thursday, and the St. Joseph's-Seton Hall winner will face Louisville. Xavier's high-scoring Dave Piontek was dropped from the team yesterday for violating curfew regulations.

At this point, the experts still believe the seedings will hold true in that Dayton and Louisville will tangle in the final round on Saturday afternoon in a game to be nationally televised.

St. Joseph's (21-5) ordinarily would be the favorite in the other game because of its seeding, but Seton Hall (20-4) gained in esteem by its 96-78 first-round victory over dangerous Marquette. The teams are fairly evenly matched on height with Seton's Marty Farrell holding just a one-inch edge over any St. Joseph's starter.

St. Francis' victory over Niagara last night was the closest in the tournament so far and the biggest surprise. Trailing by 14 points twice during the first half, the swift Terriers stubbornly fought back and would have won in regulation but for Jim Maloney's push shot for Niagara with four seconds left.

St. Francis gained possession after 1½ scoreless minutes of the overtime and froze the ball for the final shot. With three seconds left, Danny Manix fed George Fox for a 15-foot turn-jump shot that won the game. Duquesne managed to hold off Louisville's height for 38 minutes, rallying from a 10-point deficit to trail by 56-55 at the 7:45 mark. But then six-eight Charley Tyra started to

Pisoni and Siebern, St. Louis Players, Star in Spring Games

Baltimore Outfielder Gets 4 Hits

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20 (AP)—There may not be a Ted Williams or a Robin Roberts among the freshman ball players currently showing their wares in exhibition games. But from the likes of Pat Scantlebury, Jack Taylor, Jim Pisoni of St. Louis, Sam Esposito, Norm Siebern of St. Louis, Bob McKee, Floyd Ross and Dick Tettelbach is liable to come the leading candidates for this year's rookie-of-the-year citations.

Pisoni, the Texas League's leader in runs batted in last year with 113, slugged two home runs and two singles to lead the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-6 triumph over the New York Giants. An outfielder, Pisoni hit only 270 for San Antonio but he walloped 26 circuit blows.

A returning service man, Siebern continued to impress New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel. He hit one of the Yanks' three home runs as the American League champions clobbered the Milwaukee Braves 11-1. Joe Collins and Bill Skowron got the others. Gene Conley, the Braves' righthanded ace, was touched for 10 hits and seven runs in five innings.

Two Hits in Five Rounds. Scantlebury, a lefthander who won 13 games and lost nine for Havana in 1955, gave up only two hits in five innings and Taylor, 17-11 for High Point-Thomasville of the Carolina League, yielded two in four frames in pitching the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Taylor allowed both runs, which came on Dale Long's seventh inning homer.

Esposito, former baseball and basketball star for Indiana University, singled to score Jim Rivera and give the Chicago White Sox a 14-13 decision over the Kansas City Athletics. This game was a weird one as the Athletics rallied for eight runs in the ninth to tie the game only to have Esposito spoil the comeback. Sam played third base for Memphis in '55 and batted .281 while stealing 24 bases.

McKee, a second baseman for Des Moines where he hit .278 with 14 home runs, landed one of four Cubs' homers as the Cleveland Indians went down to their first defeat in eight games 9-5. Frank Kellert, Monte Irvin and Ernie Banks also found the range for Chicago, which scored six times in the ninth inning.

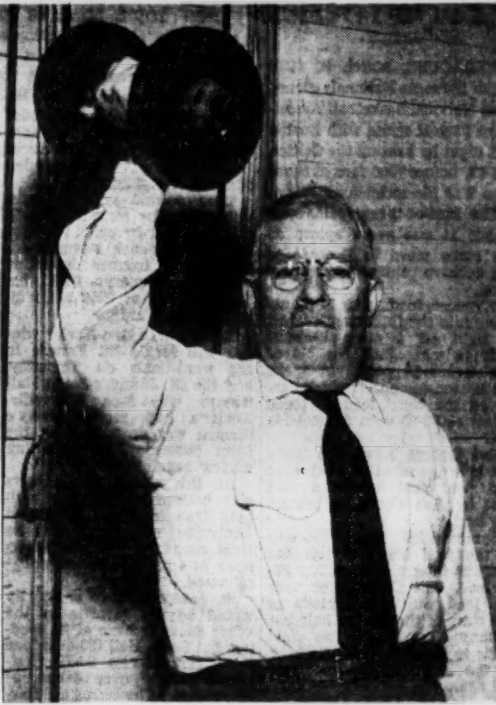

Ross, a lefty who was 10-13 for Chattanooga, worked four scoreless innings for the Philadelphia Phillies as they edged the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

Tettelbach Senator Star. Tettelbach, acquired from the Yankees in the McDermott deal this winter, got two singles and a double in leading the Washington Senators to an 8-6 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. The Senators' 11-hit attack, featuring five extra base hits, offset a grand slam homer by the Sox's Billy Consolo.

Dick Williams, up from Fort Worth where he hit .317, slammed a three-run homer for the Brooklyn Dodgers as they downed the Detroit Tigers 13-10. Sandy Koufax was the winning pitcher. Harvey Kuenn connected for the Tigers.

Pitching worries seem to increase rather than decrease for Manager Lou Boudreau of the Kansas City Athletics. Bobby Shantz, watched for signs of a return to the form that made

Harry Cook, Gym-Dandy At 70, Recalls Old Days

HARRY COOK on seventieth birthday.

By Neal Russo

It was Harry Cook's seventieth birthday, but the little man was doing the patting on the back. Instead of taking a well-deserved day off yesterday, Harry was on duty as usual at his gym, giving rubdowns and even sharing in a handball victory over two men half his age.

"In a few months I'll be celebrating 50 years in the gym business, as well as my fiftieth wedding anniversary," said Cook, a top boxing referee here for many years, as well as a former fight manager, second and promoter, and an ex-member of the Bloomer Girls baseball team. Most of the ring greats have trained at his gyms. Reminiscing at his gym at 709 Washington avenue, Cook, still spry at 165 pounds, recalled a Texan who came to his place back in 1946.

"I'm a cow man, 41 years old, a physio, wreck and I want to learn how to fight," the Texan said.

"How much time do you have?" Harry asked. "Just 30 days," was the reply. "I've got 10,000 acres, a herd of cattle, water and feed, but some other cow men send their stock over to my place. When I try to stop them, they beat me up."

Then the rancher pointed out that he was a "soft" school teacher who went into the cattle business as a sideline, that he wandered over his acres in Cadillac, not on horses.

"I told him it would cost $100 for 30 days and he surprised me by handing me a check," Cook said. "I wrestled with him, had a fellow box him, and after 15 days, with skin off his elbows and knees, he protested that he wasn't being worked hard enough. So this boxer him a 24-game winner in 1952, added to those worries. Bobby gave up 12 hits and three bases on balls in the five and two-thirds innings he worked against the White Sox. One of the hardest workers in the Pittsburgh Pirate training camp is veteran Pitcher George Munger who, at 38, visualizes a major league comeback. Munger, who spent the better part of nine seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals, had a 23-8 record with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League last year and an earned run average of 1.58. He says he will be glad to be used as a starting hurler or as a relief pitcher — whatever will help the Pirates most.

Roy Sievers is no youngster, but he's the "phenom" of the Washington Senators' camp. The 29-year-old first baseman got a late start in spring training and didn't appear in an exhibition game until Sunday, when he bowed in with a home run. Yesterday he kept up the slugging with three runs batted in during the Senside 8-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

National League Umpire Hal Dixon suffered a cut mouth, had a tooth loosened and was admitted to Jackson Memorial Hospital at Miami with a possible jaw fracture after being hit by a warmup pitch thrown by Detroit Pitcher Frank Lary during a game with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The accident occurred in the second inning while Lary was completing his warmup. Dixon was standing alongside the plate with his mask off when one of Lary's pitches went wild and hit the umpire in the face.

Marquette Ace Gets 32 Points In A.A.U. Play

DENVER, March 20 (AP)—Five favorites advanced in the first round of the National A.A.U. basketball tournament yesterday, but the upsets traditional with the power-laden meet loom today for 10 more unseeded teams making their tourney debut.

With Olympic tryout bids awaiting both the winner and runnerup, pressure will rest most heavily on top-seeded teams. They won't see action until tomorrow.

By then the original 26-team field will be pared to 16. Shooting on an all-or-nothing basis, the unseeded first round winners will collide with such giants as defending champions Phillips 66 of Bartlesville, Okla., the Peoria, Ill., Caterpillars, Seattle's Duncans, Wichita Vipers and the Denver Central Bachelors.

The two finalists who play Saturday night, qualify for the four-team meet at Kansas City next month. From the A.A.U. champions and runnerup, an All-Star collegiate team now being selected by the National Collegiate Basketball Coaches Association and an inter-service All-Star team will be chosen this year's 14-man Olympic cage team.

Phillips 66ers dominated the Olympic squad in 1948, and in 1952 it was the Peoria Cats.

"Only two teams met more than token resistance yesterday, Milwaukee's Allen-Bradley, sparked by 6-foot-9 Terry Rand of Marquette, pulled away in the final minutes from the dogged armers of Westover (Mass.) Air Force Base, 83-76. Rand tallied 32 points.

The Jacksonville, Fla., Gibbs Vikings wore down the Dayton University Freshmen, playing for Paul's of Dayton, 66-60.

Other contests went pretty much to form. Rocky Mountain Collegians playing as Luckett-Nix of Boulder, Colo., the Darlings of the 1955 tourney, crushed Arkansas State of Conway, Ark., 89-36. Kings of Hession, Kan., trimmed St. John's Apostles of Linden, N.J., 71-59, and Big Ten stars paced the Chicago Rainer Comets to a 79-62 victory over the San Jose (Calif.) State Varsity, playing under the Green Frog banner.

Canadiens and Wings Favored

MONTREAL, March 20 (UP)—The Montreal Canadiens and the Detroit Red Wings will have the odds and long-standing jinxes going for them tonight when they open the Stanley Cup playoffs on their home ice.

The powerful Canadiens, who won the National Hockey League's pennant in a run-away drew the New York Rangers as their opening rivals, while the Red Wings launch their best-of-seven semifinal series against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Rangers haven't won at Montreal since Jan. 30, 1954, while the Leafs have been eliminated by Detroit in the opening playoff round four times in the last six seasons.

New York confounded the experts by gaining the playoffs for the first time in six years, but isn't given much of a chance against the Canadiens. During the regular season, the Rangers posted only two victories in 14 meetings with the Flying Frenchmen.

Podres Refuses to Comment on Blast By Ted Williams

NEW YORK, MARCH 20 (UP)

APPRENTICE S.E.A.M.A. JOHNNY PODRES refused today to comment on Ted Williams' recent criticism of draft boards' methods of handling sports stars. "I've got nothing to say about that at all," the 23-year-old hero of the Brooklyn Dodgers' world series victory said. "I've got to spend my time in the service just like anybody else."

Williams charged last week that Podres was "paying the price of being a star" when he was called for induction. Podres, center of attraction when he reported yesterday morning at the induction center in New York City, said he looked forward to 10 years as a star with the Dodgers when his two-year hitch is over. He is expected to be assigned to Bainbridge Naval Base within a few days.

Silverman said Charley Johnston, Saddler's manager, "authorized" him to make the offer to Smith. Silverman explained that Johnston will guarantee the $40,000 and accept 60 per cent of the net gate receipts. No date was mentioned.

Furgol in Tie For Third in Florida Event

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 20 (UP)—Jack Fleck, the National Open champion from Davonport, Ia., shared a one-stroke lead with Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., today as the Seminole pro-amateur golf tournament advanced into its second round.

Fleck and Burkemo each knocked four strokes off par in the opening round yesterday to tie for first place with 68s. Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex., Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Ed Furgol of St. Louis were tied for third with 69s. Chief disappointment of the opening round was Sammy Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who carded a 38-37-76 despite favorable weather conditions. Thirteen of the field of 52 professionals broke par on the 6746-yard course partly because the usual tricky gusts of wind from the ocean were absent.

Most of the gallery of society figures, headed by the Duke of Windsor, followed Hogan around the course as the little Texan displayed his famous mastery. Hogan closed out with a flourish when he cannoned a 35-foot putt for a birdie on the eighteenth hole.

Canadiens Sign Winger. MONTREAL, March 20 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens today signed Alvin McDonald, 20-year-old left winger who played this season with the St. Catharines Teepees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Division.

STOCK TOPS, SETBACK THEN NEW PEAKS SET

Blue Chips Rush Upward Late—More Issues Off Than Up.

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—Stocks and a number of blue chip issues were strong today in a mixed stock market.

Gains generally were moderate, as were losses, but the blue chips carried some prices up around 5 points while a few losses were around 2 points.

There was some evidence of profit-taking as traders shifted from recent favorites into new selections.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at 512.62 was a record high mark. The index traded 2.86 points on the day. The 20 rails rose 25 of a point to 169.12 and the 15 utilities added .02 at 67.16.

Strength in the higher priced blue chips sent the Associated Press average of 60 stocks up 30 cents at $189.80, a new record high mark.

The industrial component was ahead $1.60 at a new high of $272.80, railroads were up 50 cents at a new high since 1929 of $144.20, and utilities were down 10 cents at $74.80.

The mixed nature of the market was underlined by the fact that more stocks declined than advanced—527 down and 453 up out of the 1193 individual issues traded. There were 99 new highs and 9 new lows.

Volume amounted to 2,960,300 shares as compared with 2,570,000 shares traded yesterday when the market also hit a new record high level.

The market started higher and then lost ground until late in the day when the blue chips rushed upward strongly.

Gains predominated at the start, and thereafter the market gradually ground upward.

Stocks were higher throughout most of the day while railroads were lower. Railroads were largely mixed with a few outstanding gainers. Coppers suffered from profit-taking attracted by their recent strong showing. Several individual stocks were in that same class, including International Paper.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.), National Distillers, and Consolidated Edison.

Lower were U.S. Steel, General Motors, Boeing, Kennecott Copper, Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, Texas Co., and New York Central.

International Business Machines was up 11 at 436 on the strength of plans to issue new stock to stockholders.

Rhodesian Selection Trust, a South African copper stock, was yesterday's most active issue up 3 1/2 and it was active today with a slight gain. A string of blocks of 1000 to 7000 shares went at 8 1/4 up 1/8.

Long Bell Lumber, a feature yesterday up 6 points at 78, started today on 2500 shares at 86 1/2, and then sold as high as 87 1/2.

The Milwaukee Road, which closed yesterday at 24 1/2, had a block of 10,700 shares for cash at 24 1/2, another block of 10,700 ex-dividend at 23, and 4200 at 22 1/2.

A block of 22,300 shares of RKO theaters traded at 10 1/2 off 3/4.

H-BOMB FALLOUT MIGHT LINGER IN AREA FOR YEARS

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Dr. Ralph E. Lapp said today radioactive fallout from an H-bomb could make a big target area unlivable for several years by peacetime standards.

Lapp, a physicist and writer-lecturer, said in remarks prepared for a House Government Operations subcommittee studying civil defense:

"Naturally, any person trapped in a fallout area... wants to know when it will be safe to emerge (from shelter) and resume 'normal' life above ground.

"Official government pronouncements imply that this might be 36 hours. In my estimate it is much longer."

Lapp did not specify how long he thought it might be before an H-bomb area might be safe. He noted this would depend on many different circumstances, adding that in wartime "one is not apt to pay much attention to peacetime safety limits."

But under peacetime standards, and without decontamination measures, he said, "much of the fallout area would be denied to habitation for several years."

"It must be stressed," Lapp said, "that no one has any practical experience in decontaminating thousands of square miles of territory."

Lapp said that with the radiation danger from H-bombs civil defense planning should be geared to an "evacuation-to-shelter" concept involving construction of peripheral shelters and "the make-do use of existing suburban structures."

The atomic scientist-author said "superbombs" may have a temporary power limit of 50 megatons (force equivalent to that released by 50 million tons of TNT) because of present limits in bomb-carrying capacity.

A 50 megaton bomb would be 2500 times as powerful as the World War II Atomic-bomb which destroyed Nagasaki.

Compared with a peacetime safety standard of 0.3 roentgens (a radioactivity measurement) per week, Lapp submitted a table listing dosage at 80 roentgens for a person unshielded all day one week after an H-bomb explosion.

Similar exposure would range from 1200 roentgens the first nine hours after the blast to 300 roentgens total in the third through sixth months, the chart showed.

WEST GERMANY NOW MINING URANIUM FOR NUCLEAR FUEL

BONN, Germany, March 20 (AP)—West Germany has started exploiting uranium mines in a move to produce nuclear fuel.

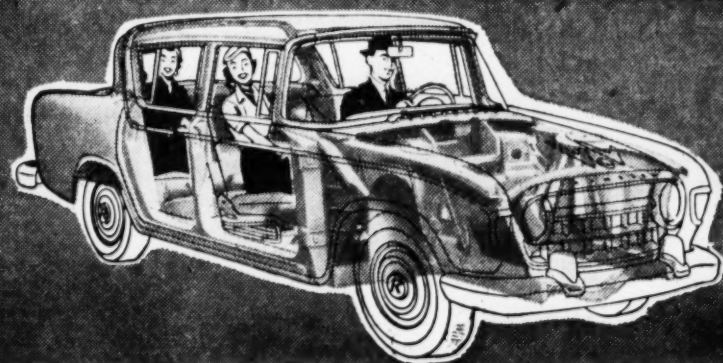

East German uranium mines, considered among the richest in Europe, have been exploited by the Russians since 1945.

The Maximilianhuetten Sulzbach-Rosenberg, a private company, is operating a uranium ore mine close to the West German-Czech iron curtain border. Uranium mining will also start in the Black Forest and in the state of Hesse. However, West German ores contain only a small percentage of uranium, so uranium for the nation's peaceful atomic program will have to be imported largely.

IT'S EASY TO WIN! ENTER TODAY!

Just give American Motors a name for the world's most advanced car construction. So strong, so modern, so safe you get a total of $25,000 Personal Automobile Accident INSURANCE* against fatal injury—divided equally between husband and wife—at No Extra Cost!

American Motors cars (above) are a single unit like modern trains and planes. Big frame box-girders make a steel enclosure as big as the car, giving true "wrap-around" protection. It's welded, twice as strong, twice as safe, twice as long-lasting.

Other cars (right) still bolt the body to a separate flat frame... the same basic construction principle used in building ox carts.

*INSURANCE DETAILS—Husband and wife (if members of same household at time of purchase) each get insurance providing for payment of $12,500 to beneficiary or estate of either—thus providing total of $25,000—if either or both should be fatally injured while driving or riding (separately or together) in their new private passenger American Motors car anywhere in the world during first year of ownership, if fatality results within 100 days after accident. Applies to privately-owned new cars bought in U. S. and Alaska, where state insurance laws permit.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY!

HOW TO WIN—In 2 to 4 years, you'll see "Big 3" announcements about a great new development. But American Motors cars have it right now—Single Unit Construction—the biggest difference in cars today. Others are racing to copy this method. That's why we will pay generously for a simple, easily remembered name we can use in our advertising to nail down once and for all the fact that we were the pioneers of the world's best car construction. Anyone of any age may enter.

The first name that pops into your mind can be the $25,000 winning name. A simple name (one to four words) like "Modernweld" or "Double Safe Single Unit" may win you $25,000 cash! See your Nash dealer or your Hudson dealer for FREE Entry Blank and folder, "Facts To Help You Win", with rules for winning. Please read rules carefully, especially Rule #4 which explains how contest will be judged. In event of ties for any prize, tied contestants will be asked to write a simple 25 word statement which will be judged to break ties, if any. Hurry, Enter Today!

Libby's Home Economist

Your simplest meals can be different!
Mary Hale Martin suggests

LIBBY'S

Easy-Do Ideas!

Stew-Rice Ring plus a salad and simple dessert—and you're all set with a wonderful meal. To make the ring, mix 6 cups hot cooked rice with 1 cup chopped parsley; press into greased ring mold. Unmold and fill with hot Libby's Beef Stew. (Note those big pieces of juicy, lean beef, the three fine garden vegetables, the flavorful brown gravy. You'll see—it's just like homemade!)

LIBBY'S BEEF STEW

Fruit Cocktail Ambrosia ends any meal with a flourish. Prepare a 5-oz. pkg. quick-cooking rice using syrup from #2½ can Libby's Fruit Cocktail as all or part of the liquid. (Use recipe on pkg. for "softer rice".) Chill. Fold in ½ pt. sweetened whipped cream and the drained fruit cocktail. Libby's because that's the one with the "five luscious fruits in sweet cahoots!"

FRUIT
COCKTAIL

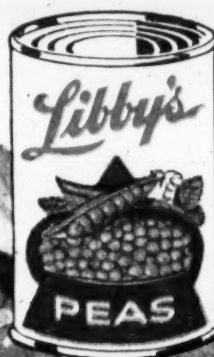

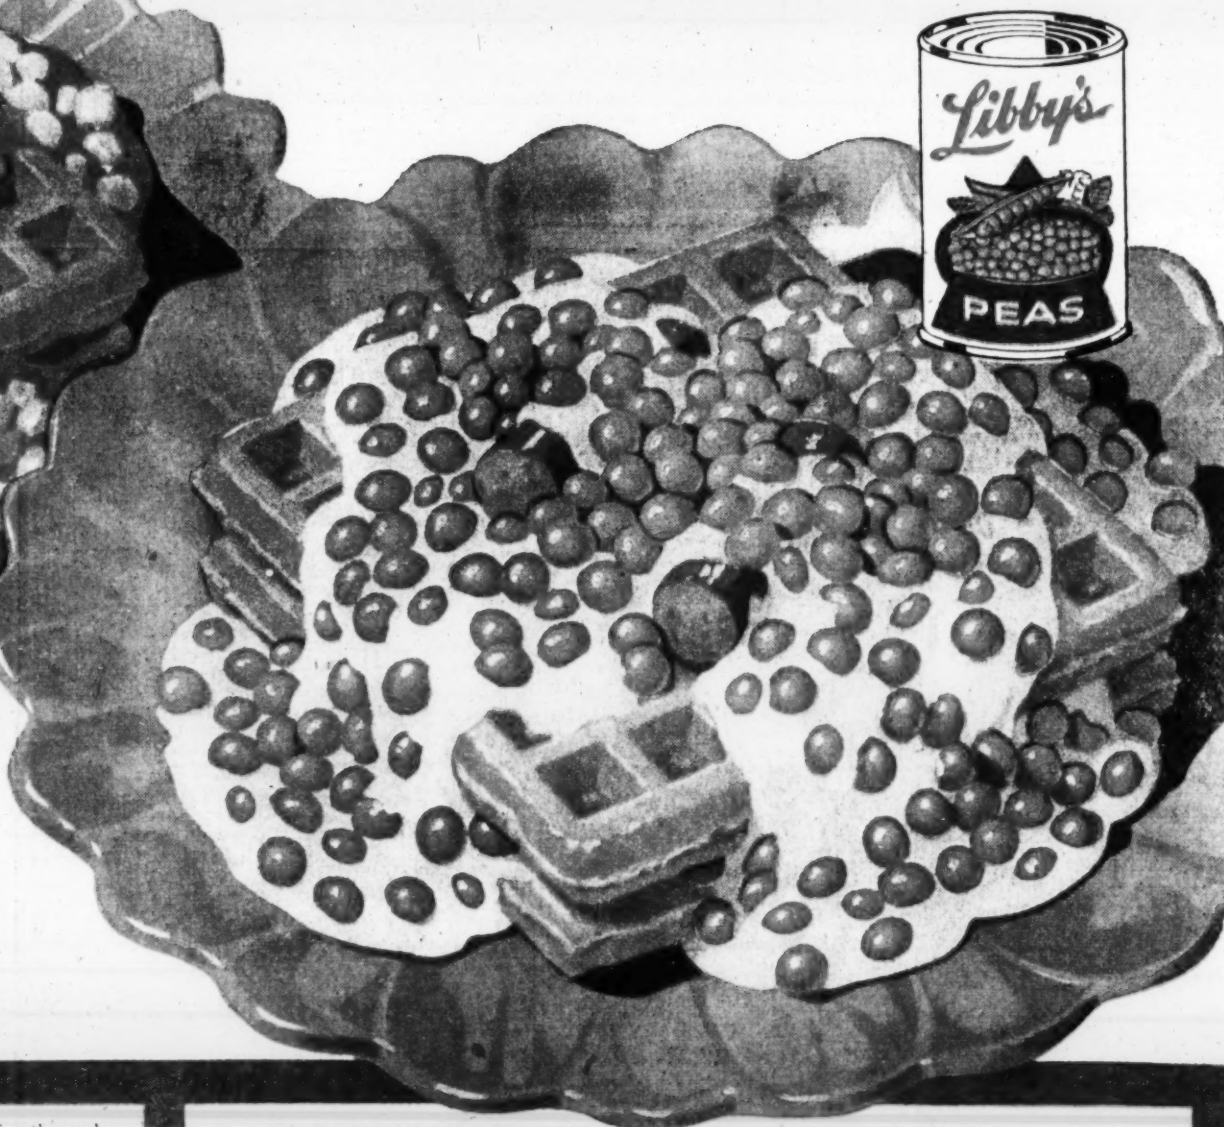

LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, CHICAGO 9, ILLINOIS

Something New has been added to the table when you trot out with either of these. And something plenty good, too! To make the one on the left, drain Libby's Whole Kernel Corn, mix with Libby's Catchup, heat and pour between freshly baked waffles. Place two pan-browned Libby's Vienna Sausages on top together with more of the corn mixture. For the dish on the right, substitute creamed Libby's Peas for the Corn. But remember—don't substitute any other brand for Libby's because the extra tenderness in both of these vegetables means extra flavor!

TOMATO JUICE

Juice 'n' Roll-ups are a grand idea for the fourth meal demanded by late TV movies. Place thinly sliced white bread, with crusts removed, in moistened towel a few minutes. Spread with pimiento cheese, roll, fasten with toothpick. Turn in broiler till golden. Serve with Libby's Tomato Juice, it's full-bodied, it's twice-rich (rich in flavor, rich in vitamins) yet low in calories.

Bell Salad is easily made by spreading softened cream cheese between two Libby's Pear Halves, pressing them together and decorating as shown. (Use a pastry tube as the decorator.) And it's tasty as it's pretty. Couldn't be otherwise when the basis is those firm, tender, sweet-as-honey Libby's Pears!

Scores of worn-out streetcars, stacked in a wrecker's yard at San Pedro, Calif., give the impression of a broken-down tenement as they await dissection by acetylene torch. In earlier years the streetcars plied the Hollywood boulevard line in the nearby film city. Their useful life ended, the cars made final journey to the scrap yard, where steel and useful metals will be salvaged.

Treasure Hunting

Visit to the Land of Pirate Jean Lafitte

By Art Buchwald

NEW ORLEANS, La. WE went into the bayou country the other day to trap muskrat, catch lake shrimp, hunt duck and speak to some Cajuns. The Cajuns are descendants of French settlers who were driven from Nova Scotia by the British and settled around the bayous of Louisiana. Up until recently the Cajuns stayed in the swamps hunting, fishing, trapping and collecting moss. But about 20 years ago oil and natural gas were discovered and now many of them are drilling, wildcatting, watching television and collecting royalties.

ART BUCHWALD

As an admirer of Jean Lafitte, one of America's first black marketeers, and a top pirate and smuggler of his time we went out to the town of Lafitte to visit his "tombstone" and perhaps dig a little for pirate treasure that is supposed to be buried in the area.

Nobody can rightly say if Jean Lafitte is buried at Lafitte, but Zola Morse who tends his "grave" says her mother heard from her mother who heard it from her grandmother who are all descended from the Perrin Brothers who were part of Lafitte's gang that Lafitte was buried on Perrin land at the spot indicated.

ZOLA, WHO WAS recently on NBC's Wide World, makes no profit out of Lafitte's grave. Anyone can visit it and many people have, some with shovels, picks, and mine detectors. Zola's picnic grounds are still thought to hold some of Lafitte's loot. Recently her son-in-law is going to dig a pill into the ground dug up the top of an iron pot and Zola is sure that if she could find the bottom of the pot she would be a rich woman.

"My son-in-law doesn't believe in the treasure stories," she said, "and he wouldn't take the time to look for it, but one of these nights I'm going to tear down his porch and I'm going to find the bottom of the pot."

THE OIL AND GAS WEALTH of the Cajun country hasn't spoiled the people, Zola said. "Some of them may have bought Cadillacs but most of them haven't changed at all." If anyone's changed in the Cajun country Zola thinks it's the women. At one time Zola used to run the only beauty parlor in Lafitte and it was located outdoors less than 20 yards from the graveyard. She used to give permanents, shampoos and wave sets.

But Zola had to close up her shop because, she said, "The Cajuns were either using home permanents or going to New Orleans to have their hair done. Then with television down here many of the women were having these Italian haircuts and they were going to the men's barber shops instead. So finally I said to myself, 'Zola what are you killing yourself for?' If the Cajuns want to go to New Orleans for hairdressing or use those home permanents there's no sense in staying open." So I closed. But that's the only changes I've seen since the oil came in."

OUTSIDE OF the alligators disappearing, the oil and gas wells coming in, the TV sets and the new cars parked out in front of the Cajun homes and the fact that Zola no longer operates her beauty parlor, the bayou at country remains the same. Jean Lafitte and his brother Pierre were cooking up a storm.

We waited for Zola to go to sleep before we started to dig for treasure. Zola had told us that her mother had heard from her mother that at a certain tree on her picnic grounds a pot of gold coins, silver bars and jewels were buried. We dug and dug and finally hit something hard. It was shoe, size nine double A. The same size as Jean Lafitte's. We must admit we didn't find the gold but like Zola we believe it's somewhere on the property and if we ever get back to Lafitte we're going to dig again. For all we know the gold might even be in Lafitte's shoe box.

Letter of Thanks

By Christopher Billopp

WHEN a gift has been received, or a favor rendered or some like service enjoyed a letter of thanks is in order. Some people are so fortunate as to be able to dash one off without trouble. To others it is a severe labor.

It may be concluded that a letter of thanks dictated to a secretary is too impersonal and that one should be written in long hand. But the writer's handwriting may be illegible and the writer may have the bad habit of leaving out words that have to be inserted later at the expense of tidiness.

The writer may be at a loss how to express himself. He may be afraid of laying the thanks on too thick, or, on the other hand, of not saying enough. He may wish to avoid saying what is obvious and hope for an inspiration that will permit him to say something original.

He may be a person who has a habit of putting off. This habit will be magnified when the thing being put off is the writing of a letter of thanks. As the days pass the prospect of writing the letter becomes more and more painful. The things the writer thought of saying seem more and more commonplace. The hope grows that the writer may be in a better mood tomorrow. By this time not only will thanks have to be expressed but the letter will have to include a plausible excuse for not having written before. That will involve even greater difficulty arriving at some original way of saying it.

What then is the relief when the individual to whom the letter was to have been written is encountered on the street. Then, without need of pen, ink and paper, or further struggles with composition, and with no more than a warm grasp of the hand and an ingratiating smile, thanks can be rendered in person.

RAY HENBERRY was walking down the Rue de Rivoli in Paris with a friend when a taxi driver sounded his squeaky little horn. The friend jumped as though a round of buckshot just had caught him in the sit-spot. Noting Henberry's surprise, he explained, "My wife ran away with a French auto man two years ago. Every time I hear one of those horns blow I'm afraid he's bringing her back."

Jesus and the Little Children

Kingdom of Heaven Is for Such as These, He Said

By April Oursler Armstrong

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
"The kingdom of heaven!" said John slowly. He lay under the gold and gray shadows of the fig tree, his eyes closed in a day dream. Around him the others of the 12 apostles sat, some leaning against the trunk, some tail-fashion, some with bearded chins in their hands. This day they were to take to the road again, walking back to Jerusalem with the Master.

They were only waiting for Jesus Himself to be ready. Till then, they sat in Peter's front yard, grateful for a moment's idleness.

"I wonder what His kingdom will be like," said John. "Will there be crowns? And thrones?" "Don't you remember?" asked Nathanael Bartholomew. "He told us His kingdom was not of this world."

"He doesn't want to be a king," said Judas Iscariot bitterly. "He ran away the time the crowd tried to make Him one."

"Well, whatever it's like," said John smugly, "I guess I'll have an important place in it."

"I suppose you think you'll be sitting at the Lord's right hand," said his brother James, chewing on a blade of grass.

"Could well be," said John, opening his eyes. "If anybody will, I will!"

Jude Thaddeus laughed. "I guess since the other James and Simon and I are His own cousins, we should come before you!"

And in no time at all, Peter's front yard was as full of squabbling and bickering as a hen house. Grown men these were, and the closest followers of Jesus, yet they argued and grieved in the face, and snapped at each other, each insisting he would be the most important one in the kingdom of God.

Finally Peter stood up and raised his hand for silence. "Look here!" he said. "None of us knows what Jesus means by His kingdom. How can we know where we will stand in it? At the right time, we will ask Him."

When the Master came out of the house they followed Him in silence as He led the way out of the gate and into the street. "Master—" began John, but he did not finish. From every doorway men and women of Capernaum came running to see Jesus, to wave to Him, to call to Him, and bid Him a good journey.

"IN TRUTH I SAY TO YOU—UNLESS YOU BECOME AS LITTLE CHILDREN, YOU SHALL NOT ENTER INTO THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN!"

"Lord—" began James, but he too was interrupted. People swarmed around the Master, asking His blessing, and shouting farewells.

SLOWLY, smilingly, Jesus made His way through the throngs. At one street corner the crowd thinned for an instant, and the disciples could keep silent no longer. Tugging at His sleeve, one asked:

"Master! Who do You think will be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? Which one of us?"

Jesus stopped and looked at His apostles, and sadness darkened His eyes. He seemed to say: Do you still not understand?

Then bending down He singled out one child from the crowd, a little fellow of six years, with twinkling brown eyes and thick unruly hair.

"Come to Me!" He said, and held out His arms. The boy ran to Him, and Jesus cleared a space for him in the crowd, and held him where all could see.

"In truth I say to you—unless you become as little children, you shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven!" said Jesus.

"And, he that receives one such a little child in My name," Jesus continued, "receives Me. But he that shall scandalize one of these little ones that believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone should be hung around his neck and that he should be drowned in the depths of the sea!"

The apostles looked at each other with dismay. Children were wonderful to them, they thought to themselves. But to become like a little child? That sounded ridiculous. They were grown men, proud of their wisdom and their knowledge. And this chubby-cheeked boy—what could he know that they did not?

Jesus read their thoughts, and a warning flashed in His eyes.

"See that you despise not one of these little ones. For I say to you that their angels in heaven always see the face of My Father, who is in heaven."

Then Jesus rose, His hand still caressing the boy's shock of unruly hair. Sadly but firmly He answered His apostles' question.

"If any man desires to be first—he shall be the last of all!"

first—he shall be the last of all!"

The mothers and fathers of Capernaum had listened spell-bound to His words. True, they had always seen that the Master enjoyed children. They had seen Him swing them up to His shoulder, seen Him whistle whistles and doll beds for them, watched Him as He gathered them around Him at twilight to hear His stories of the secret ways of God.

But He loved them! Hear what He said—that you must become like a child to enter His kingdom. No man in history, plain teacher or prophet, ever spoke so wondrously about children, save Jesus!

AND mothers and fathers pressed toward Him now, bringing their children to Him. Girls and boys they came, ragamuffins and those dressed in finest woollens, fat ones, thin ones, the runny-nosed and the pimply-faced too, freckled and wart-covered, toddlers and babies in their mothers' arms, plain ones and pretty ones, tall and gangly or runt-sized, Jesus welcomed them all.

"Hold on, there!" cried the disciples. "Stand back! This is no way to treat the Master! He is in a hurry, and He has no time—"

But Jesus said: "Let the little children come to Me, and forbid them not! For the kingdom of heaven is for such as these."

And tenderly He laid His hands on the head of each and every child there, and prayed, and blessed them all. And not until He had blessed them all separately, did He stride off down the highway, on His way at last.

The apostles followed in silence, shame-faced, their eyes fixed on the ground.

In their minds the words of Jesus echoed over and over again.

"Unless you become as little children, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven!"

What did it mean, to become as little children? To be humble, thought John, and gentle. To love God with a whole heart, and no thought of reward, thought James. To trust Him as a Father, and obey Him as a Father, with happiness, and joy, and no questions asked, said Peter to himself. To feel at home with God, and know that He loves you!

"I wish that I were that tousel-haired boy that Jesus held in His arms," said James to his brother John in a whisper.

"I hope with God's help to be like him," answered John. "The secret of heaven is in the hearts of children, in their eyes and in the smile on their lips. Oh that God will give me the heart of a child again!"

Newest Rug Fashion

By Elizabeth Hillyer

EYE-CATCHERS for the season in fashions for the floor are the new area rugs. They're going in for more color and so many more sizes and designs.

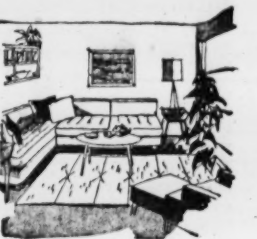

Called area rugs because they're used to define the area of a furniture grouping, they also serve as smart accents on the well-waxed and polished floors we make so much of today, and as such are very like decorative accessories.

A colorful area rug is placed on a wide expanse of plain-colored floor much as a picture is hung on a wall. It's the spark of interest for the floor rather than its covering.

Pattern for these rugs is sometimes restrained, and sometimes bolder. But the colors move on from earlier quiet tones to sparkling combinations such as lime with yellow, pink and white, gray with bright blue, blue, yellow and green.

New tufting techniques turn out three level loops, carved designs, sculptured effects. Sizes vary to meet the requirements of furniture groupings, but none of the new area rugs are so large they're not wonderfully practical to take up for thorough cleaning.

Get off to a good start on spring decorating. Send for Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?" and check up room faults so you'll know how to correct them. The booklet, which discusses 16 home furnishing and decorating subjects,

AN EYE CATCHER.

Is yours for 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope enclosed with your request to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

Outdoor Lighting.

WE got talking to a lighting engineer the other day and he did a pretty good job of convincing us that some outdoor lighting around the house is a good thing to have.

First he mentioned how convenient it was for visiting friends to be able to spot your home easily from the street because the house number or your name was lighted. Then he pointed out how many nasty falls could be avoided if outdoor paths and steps were properly lighted and finally he brought up the point of security.

Seems that the average housebreaker sort of loses interest if he has to cross a lighted lawn to get to where he wants to break in.

Back a few years ago outdoor lighting was a pretty expensive business because a lead sheathed underground cable was required and this cost a lot of money per foot. Today you can get plastic coated wires for underground use that cost a fraction of the lead covered job and will give many years of satisfactory service.

Besides the cable all you need to have outdoor lighting around your house are some outdoor outlets. It's usually possible to find a source of electricity for your outdoor lighting in the basement and in this case the cable can be brought through the frame of a basement window or through the basement wall to the nearest outlet. From here a trench is dug to the point where the fixture is to be located and the cable set in the trench. The trench doesn't have to be very deep but it's wise to put the cable far enough underground so that there will be no chance of someone damaging it with a shovel or hoe while gardening.

A NEW YORK LADY (dwelling on Riverside Drive) planned a trip to Europe for over a year. . . . She booked passage on the "Constitution" eight months ago—with April 2 the sailing date. . . . Now, with so many of Miss Kelly's friends sailing on that liner on that date—she has become somewhat of a minor celebrity. . . . Because she has a 1st Class ticket and gate-crashers and others from everywhere are offering fantastic sums for her passage. . . . She will not sell. . . . Not because she is a movie fan. . . . She has never seen Grace in a film. . . . She is simply determined to let nothing interfere with her plans for a holiday in Europe. . . . Not even for a future Princess.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS, now co-starring with Miss Bankhead in "The War With Wallah," is completing another drama titled "The Seven Descents of Myrtle." . . . Most avid cinema-fan in town is Julie Harris, the star. Witnessed 51 films in a month. . . . Renato Rascel wrote the music to the popular song, "Arrivederci Roma." You may have enjoyed his acting in the Italian-made film, "The Overcoat." It had a long run at the Little Carnegie. . . . The scantily-clad Brigitte Bardot in the movie, "Doctor at Sea," gets her applause in the form of long sighs. A peckabeat.

LU ANN SIMMS has started suit against the Detroit Statler which fired her act. Claims the unfair publicity ruined bookings. . . . The old NBC Symphony of the Air (without Toscanini) will be Mutual Network'd for an hour starting April 14. . . . Lord Henry Audley of Britain and Monica McCall dated at the Monsignore. . . . Sally Kemp, daughter of the late orchestra leader-recording star Hal Kemp, becomes Mrs. Thomas Rosqui this year. He's on the stage. . . . Lana's 12-year-old heiress is taller than Mommy.

"MEET ME in Las Vegas" (at the Astor) is crowded with talent. Cyd Charisse proves she is a Star. . . . Edith Adams's Marilyn Monroe mimicry at the Persian Room is La Adams at her best. . . . Ted Straeter's crew (at the Plaza) is better than ever. . . . Joseph Kramm, who wrote "The Shrike," and Lillian Barrett, who were quietly wed this winter, quietly exploded shortly after their hasty merger. The divorce will be friendly. . . . Errol Flynn, who told the March issue of Theater Arts: "I can imagine nothing so absurd as going back to Hollywood," went back for the film, "Istanbul." . . . We doubt that Margaret's fiancé is really a Foreign Correspondent. We just saw a photo of him being interviewed and he had his trench-coat OFF!

Telling the Truth

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"WILL he ever learn to tell the truth? We're a very truthful family, but I've never seen such a child for telling falsehoods," a mother complains.

Yes, the day will probably come when your son (or daughter) will arrive at the stage of being at least reasonably truthful. This probably will not occur when he is 4 years of age, or even 6. Four-year-olds are notorious tellers of tall tales and 6-year-olds are often not too much better. The 4-year-old's untruths are apt to be in the realm of exaggeration and fantasy. Six is often more inclined to lie to protect himself from being found out and punished in his (unfortunately many) wrongdoings.

AS THE SCHOOL YEARS GO BY, most children become increasingly truthful, but even the 8-year-old often confuses fact and fantasy. When then do we look for perfect truthfulness? How about the 10-year-old? Let him speak for himself as he tells us:

"Mostly I do. It all depends. Little things I do. Larger things I try to. Huge things I don't. I edge around." Or, so characteristic of the age, he replies when asked if he tells the truth. "Sometimes I do and sometimes I don't." The majority at 11 tell us that they are "quite" truthful, though of course "not as truthful as George Washington or anything." Or, "Not going to tell the truth if I think they will punish me about the thing."

TWELVE TRIES TO TELL THE TRUTH and describes himself as medium or "moderately" truthful. Or he says that he tells a "reasonable" amount of the truth, but "might tell a lie if I had a good reason." Some, however, truthful by nature, "feel awfully funny inside if I tell a lie."

Thirteen is "moderately" truthful, but he gives many good reasons for occasional untruths: "When someone asks you what you think of a person you might have to lie a little"; "Don't tell the truth if someone will suffer for it"; "I can't bear to tell mother that I got a bad mark, so I'd say I didn't get the paper back if she asked." Or perhaps just, "I don't always tell the whole thing."

FOURTEEN is about the same, but in many, at 15, we adults do find the truthfulness we have so long sought. There are, of course, individual variations, but the majority describe themselves, and are described by their parents, as "quite" or "usually" truthful.

In their own words, "I'm always truthful—at least I try to be." "My conscience doesn't let me get away with lying." "Always tell the truth, especially about important things." But most important of all, they characteristically say, "I figure it is best to be truthful, because then people can count on you." Or in the same vein, "I figure people won't trust you if you don't tell the truth."

This is the goal that the parents are aiming for through all the earlier stages—the day when the boy or girl tells the truth, not because he fears punishment if he lies, but because he finally has come to appreciate the value and necessity of telling the truth.

She's Food Shopper For City's Consumers

Mrs. Catherine Brent, Home Economist for Extension Service, Keeps St. Louisans Up to Date on Best Buys in Markets

By John Keasler

A FAMILY of two can eat quite nicely on $16 a week for food. A family of four, including two school-age children, can have an adequate diet on from $21 to $25 weekly.

Those are United States Department of Agriculture figures, of which we have a deskful; the individual family, of course, sets its own food budget, depending on whether pheasant or hard-tack seems the thing to do.

We don't want to argue about it. The thing is, careful shopping can do wonders for a food budget—this on the authority of Mrs. Catherine Brent, certainly one of the most knowing shoppers shopping.

She shops not just for her own three-children family but, in effect, for St. Louis consumers in general, quite a job indeed and one she finds fascinating. The latest scoop on food is her meat, so to speak, from week to week, and her office atmosphere has overtones of a pressroom with deadlines, in its hustle to get food-buying information to food buyers.

Some of our more enchanted citizens, as a result of all this work, think she exists to give out University of Missouri football schedules. This is a mistaken notion, and one which initially caused Mrs. Brent a certain discouragement.

So, once and for all, Mrs. Brent is connected with the University of Missouri in one way, all right, but please—not football tickets and schedules.

Mrs. Brent is home economist in marketing for the Food Marketing Program. This is sponsored by the Extension Association of Metropolitan St. Louis and the University of Missouri Agricultural Extension Service.

Her offices are at 422 Merchants Exchange Building, 315 Chestnut street, and her job boils down to this:

"We attempt to help consumers get the most satisfaction from money spent on agricultural products," explained Mrs. Brent.

The word "extension" has long been familiar to rural area residents. The long-time institution of county agent, and related services, has come to be very familiar, in fact, since the United States Department of Agriculture began the service decades ago.

St. Louis city dwellers, however, were and to some extent still are a trifle confused about it, and this is understandable.

When Mrs. Brent came here five years ago, and the offices were opened, St. Louis was one of five cities across the country—Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Louisville, Seattle were the others—first to initiate urban-type extension service.

Since then, persons from all over the nation and from several foreign countries have dropped by to see her offices and to see how this rural-urban switch has worked. Works fine.

Here's what this service, one of the first of its kind in the country, does:

It gathers information about food buying, from farmers, wholesalers and retailers. It shoots that information to consumers, through its own news bulletin and through radio and TV mediums. The Merchants Exchange offices are the clearing house.

Working with Mrs. Brent is Miss Ramona Choate, also a home economist in marketing. The services they furnish are varied. Newspapers and food editors call up for information.

"What color is a soybean?" a harried newspaper man had called, while we were there.

People call up for cooking information.

"How do you boil a cauliflower?" asked a chef facing insubordination in the ranks.

Such information is cheerfully given to individuals. A wealth of literature is available, again to individuals, on marketing and on food preparation and on proper freezing of food—matter of fact, just about anything one would wish to know about food is available in pamphlet form, usually at no charge.

MRS. CATHERINE BRENT, HOME ECONOMIST IN MARKETING FOR THE FOOD MARKETING PROGRAM HERE, DEMONSTRATES CURRENT GOOD BUYS—CITRUS FRUITS, CABBAGE, ONIONS

But the prime purpose of the work is not aimed directly at the individual, although in the long run it is the individual shopper who profits. It is aimed at groups, organizations, who can pass the information along to large numbers of persons.

The "Food Marketing Bulletin" put out weekly goes, to name a few, to hospitals, schools (for lunch programs), various institutions such as orphanages and rest homes. This bulletin is an aid in wise shopping, timely buys. Recently it gave Lenten recipes.

The most recent issue, for instance, announces that there are good buys in citrus fruits, cabbage, carrots; that pork is still a fine buy and, resultantly, beef is also; that frying hens are a particularly good buy right now, and onions are a dandy bargain.

HOW is all this information put together so quickly, from week to week?

Mrs. Brent has a network of news sources, starting with the farmer. A number of farmers in the area send in crop information and prospects. They do this voluntarily; the service helps the farmer by moving abundant produce. Mrs. Brent checks at both wholesale and retail level, and with the Department of Agriculture meat and produce reports.

The Bulletin, reporting buys and trends, receives reactions like this one, from a caseworker of the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children:

"We would like to thank you. . . . This particular group of mothers has found the Bulletin helpful as a guide for their weekly buying and planning. Many of these mothers are confined to the home because of the intensive care of their children."

Single-minded to the last, he wound up his subject, turned to

WORD GAME
TODAY'S word game is designed to test your ability to recognize words similar in meaning to one another. Below you will find two groups of 10 words. The first group is numbered 1, 2, 3, etc. The second is lettered A, B, C, etc.

For each word in the first group you will find a word of almost the same meaning (a synonym) in the second group. Thus the word numbered 1 may mean practically the same as the word lettered F. Write this down as 1F. When you have written down all the answers, check against the correct pairings.

- |                 |                 |

tions around the Food Marketing Bulletin," said the gas company.

"Most helpful in our marketing classes," wrote a college.

HIGH schools have been frequent in praising the help the bulletin furnishes in home economics classes. An Old Folks Home was grateful for information on how to buy best selection of fresh vegetables at lowest cost. There are many such examples.

And Mrs. Brent, self-described country gal, has found out that city folks aren't a bit different—the last time we saw her, a couple of days ago, she was walking off down Olive street with a market basket over her arm (Onions brisk, pork active, buy cabbage!) having dropped this observation which seems to sum up this deskful of statistics we have.

"No matter where you find them," she said, "women are women."

Bargain counters are their natural habitat—everybody knows that, and even more in the years since the extension service has come to town. Despite her metropolitan setting, Mrs. Brent still looked like that most informative and helpful of creatures—a county agent.

Mrs. Brent said, "Thank you, Mrs. Turkey."

This double-barreled job, of helping the consumer and grower alike, has brought considerable praise, in turn, from consumer and grower alike—and from nutritionists, as well as from others who appreciate the concise, interesting information put out by the office.

"The bulletin should be more widely distributed," wrote a farmer.

"Grand job, keep it up!" said a meat packing company spokesman.

Contract Bridge

WEST'S opening lead in the following deal certainly could not be strongly criticized, but it had fatal repercussions.

West, with six trumps in all-most perfect sequence, felt that the thing to do was to keep South from making any low trumps on ruffs—so he opened the jack of trumps.

To repeat, this was a highly persuasive lead, but it didn't work out well this time. When the distribution of the trump suit was revealed by East's showing out, South did exactly what West had feared, but he did it in reverse, so to speak. He took the first trick, cashed the diamond king, went over to the diamond ace and ruffed a diamond. He then cashed the ace and king of clubs, after which he ruffed dummy's last diamond with his otherwise worthless seven of trumps—and at the end West had good trumps for his own partner's tricks. South cashed in all five of his own trumps, two diamonds and two clubs, fulfilling the doubled contract for game and rubber.

Beyond question, many fine players would make the same opening lead that West made, and on the surface, there is much to be said for the choice. With such length in trumps, West does not particularly want to ruff any side suit—he prefers to use his trumps to draw declarer's. However, a different consideration might well induce West to open the singleton of his partner's suit. That consideration is that West will then probably have the chance to discard appropriately. Observe the effect of a heart lead. West could discard both clubs while East played three high hearts, and the outcome would be a two-trick defeat of the contract.

Congratulations...it's from

Spring Visits in East For Many St. Louisans

By Martha Strickler Kieffer

NEW YORK, March 20.

EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND flowers, on display at the thirty-ninth International Flower Show, offered quite a drawing card to visitors here last week. This three-acre spread of bulbs and blossoms, tools, gadgets and outdoor furniture for both the city and country gardener, was staged at the Wanamaker Building at Broadway and Fourth avenue last Monday through Saturday. Perhaps one of the most charming settings seen there by this reporter was an old-fashioned garden, filled with azalea blossoms, which was a reproduction of the village green in Grammercy Park.

Several St. Louisans were glimpsed in the milling crowds at the show last week, among them Mrs. Meredith C. Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Jones departed from St. Louis some 10 days ago and stopped first in Baltimore for a weekend visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Boyce (Lila Jones) and the three young Boyces sons. Last Monday the Joneses arrived here for a short week of business and seeing New York friends. They stayed at the Ambassador until Friday when they entrained for St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner also chose the Ambassador when they arrived here last week. They spent the weekend in Greenwich with their son-in-law and daughter, Harry and Claire Henriques, and on Tuesday were heralding the birth of their newest grandchild. Harry and Claire became the parents that day of their second child, a daughter, whom they have named Alice Dudley.

The Werners were joined here this past weekend by their younger son, Joseph G. Werner, who came from Washington for a three-day visit and a viewing of his new niece. They plan to remain here through this week and are spending their evenings dining at some of the fashionable restaurants around town. One evening they joined friends at Le Pavillon and another at 21. Situated at 21 West Fifty-second street, the 21 Club is undoubtedly the essence of New York elegance and almost invariably one or more St. Louisans may be found lunching or dining there. A few evenings ago the Werners saw Dave Gardner and Bob Otto and on another evening they caught a glimpse of Tom K. Smith Jr.

Carl J. Koehler Jr., better known as "Ding," enjoyed a visit with his family this past weekend. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, and his grandmother, Mrs. Wallace D. Simmons, arrived Saturday and are here for several days. They stopped first in Philadelphia for a visit with the Koehlers' daughter, Mimi Koehler Intersoll, and her husband, Paul.

Party in New York for St. Louis Girls

MISS ELIZABETH GEMPP is in town for her usual spring stay. She is stopping at the Westbury on this visit and plans to remain until after Easter. Last weekend her niece, Claire Davidson, a freshman at Smith, and Ann Boyd, a Sarah Lawrence student, were here with her and tops on their entertainment list was a party which Miss Gempp gave for Claire, Ann and Sarah Lund, down from Vassar for the occasion. The young women and their Princeton beaux dined at the Westbury, then taxied over to Broadway in time for the 8:30 curtain of "The Chalk Garden," and later went to the St. Regis for dancing.

At last check Miss Gempp was busy as a bee holding a fistful of tickets for the theater, lectures and the Philharmonic. As president of the Alliance Francaise in St. Louis, Miss Gempp is particularly interested in the French Institute here. Voltaire and Shakespeare were the subjects of the lecture which she attended there last week. Last Friday the visitor went over to the Frick Art Reference Library for a lecture on nineteenth century painting presented by George Hamilton, a fine arts professor at Yale. Mr. Hamilton has lectured in St. Louis and is related by marriage to Mrs. J. Howard Holmes.

Wednesday Claire Davidson will leave Smith for her spring vacation. She will take the train from Northampton to New York, have dinner with her aunt, and then leave for Idlewild Airport where she will board a plane for Caracas. She will spend two weeks there with her father, Ian Davidson, and Mrs. Davidson.

This past week Father's weekend was observed at Vassar for the sophomores, and T-bob Leland and Sarah Lund entertained their fathers, Austin P. Leland and Joel Y. Lund for the three-day party. Sarah did herself proud a few weeks ago when she wrote the music and lyrics for some of the songs in "Grobyneck and Run," the Vassar sophomore party show. Mr. and Mrs. Lund and their older daughter Erle, a Vassar graduate, were in the enthusiastic audience.

The Lunds joined Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Alexander and William A. Armstrong for dinner the other evening at the Penthouse Club. The Alexanders were guests at the Ambassador for several days and also visited with their daughter, Jean, a student at Bennett.

Erle Lund saw Ann and Denny (Mr. and Mrs. Lansden Jr.) McCandless while they were here for a few days recently. One evening they met at the Lund apartment for cocktails and later went on to the Stork Club for dinner.

Another St. Louisan Erle has entertained recently is Pat Reeves who was here visiting her former Vassar roommate, Kirby McCaw. Highlighting Pat's visit was a cocktail party at the Lunds, luncheon at the Cornell Club, an evening with Phyllis and Bill Maritz and a weekend stay in Rye with Kirby's father, R. H. Plant McCaw, and Mrs. McCaw. Mrs. McCaw is the former Louise Goddard of St. Louis.

The English Speaking Union will hold a dinner meeting Friday night at the Bogen Club at 7 o'clock at which Dr. Ernst Gideon Malherbe, president of the University of Natal, Union of South Africa, will be guest speaker. Dr. Malherbe, who has spent most of his life in South Africa, founded and directed the National Bureau for Educational and Social Research, located in the Union of South Africa government offices at Pretoria. He has served his government on several important commissions. While in St. Louis he will be the guest of Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman. The English Speaking Union seeks to promote bonds of understanding and friendship among English speaking peoples throughout the world. President of the St. Louis branch is Rolla Wells Street.

Various Trips For Families In Kirkwood

DEPARTING last week for a 10-day holiday at the Grand Hotel, Point Clear, Ala., were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Jones, 12 Garden lane. They will visit briefly in Gainesville, Ga., before returning home next weekend.

Also at the resort are Dr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Owen, 92 Frederick lane, Glendale. The Owens will also return next weekend.

A three-week cruise to the West Indies was concluded last week by Mr. and Mrs. Hale Towne, 2 Garden lane. Sailing aboard the Flandre from New Orleans they made stops at San Juan, Puerto Rico, Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Dutch Curacao, Cristobal on the Panama Canal and Havana.

Leaving Friday by plane for Miami will be Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Heineman, 123 East Essex avenue, and their three children, Jim, a student at John Burroughs School, and Tom and Jane. From Miami they will fly to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands for a two-week holiday.

Accompanying the Heinemans will be Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Kurtz Jr., 1 Brookside, Ladue, and their three children, Miss Susan, Bill and Tom Kurtz. The two families expect to be joined at St. Thomas by Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Smith, 564 Bedford avenue, University City, and their children.

Mrs. George J. Wright of Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived Sunday to be the guest of her nephew, John R. Bell, and Mrs. Bell, 224 East Washington avenue. Mrs. Wright plans to remain here through Easter. Also with the Bells will be their son, Cadet John R. Bell II, who will be home Saturday from Staunton (Va.) Military Academy to spend 10 days.

John R. Kirk III has returned home from Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., for his spring recess. His parents held open house March 10 at their home, 703 North Kirkwood road, to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The Kirks have a younger son, Graham Kirk, a high school freshman.

Koussevitsky Foundation

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

I WENT to a meeting sponsored by the National Council of Women on Wednesday afternoon of last week and there Mrs. Serge Koussevitsky announced an international foundation in her husband's name. This foundation will be of value to music everywhere.

I also went into the Scalander Museum of Textiles to see some old New York paintings. I had the pleasure of seeing there some of the most beautiful American-made silks and damasks, and Mr. Franco Scalander reminded me that the damask on the walls of the Green Room of the White House had been woven in the Scalander Mills.

I SPOKE for the organization of graduate students of New York University on Thursday night, then attended a very delightful dinner at which Dean Melby, of the school of education, presided. He told me how many teachers the school had trained and how many foreign students now are attending the university. This number of foreign students probably is the third largest of any university in the country.

I was presented with a delightful plaque and Dean Melby, to his complete surprise, was presented with a wristwatch. The students must have been pleased with their success in staging these surprises, for neither of us expected these gifts and I hope the students felt our pleasure, which was very genuine.

No one can refrain from enjoying recognition and affection and it was evident that this organization, recognizing Dean

Martha Carr's

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. OPINION

Dear Martha:

WHAT can you suggest that I do in a case like this? My daughter, who is 24 years old, is dating a man that her father and I simply cannot approve of. He comes from a very poor family, and has only a modest job. He is rather crude and uncouth and certainly not the kind of a man we would have selected for her. She met him in college two years ago and has been going with him ever since. We had hoped it would wear off but she seems to be getting more and more interested in him and we are afraid they will decide to marry. Can you help us?

WORRIED MOTHER.

The fact that he comes from a poor family certainly is not against him. Neither is his modest job, unless he is content to stay in one place and has no ambition to advance further. The fact that he went to college indicates that he has tried to improve himself. Granted he might not be the one you would have selected, but she is the one to do the selecting in the last analysis and if this is her choice—as wrong as it may appear—you may only be able to accept it and make the best of it. If you honestly feel that marriage to him would be wrong (and consider his character, his ambition, his good qualities as well as the weak ones) you are right to do all you can to dissuade her. But if you can't, don't make it worse for her by constantly voicing your disapproval of her husband.

Dear Martha:

MY HUSBAND AND OUR TWO CHILDREN and I have just moved into a new home and we are very happy there except for one thing. Two doors down the street lives a family of three youngsters and they are in our yard constantly. I wouldn't mind their playing with our children except that they are rough and impolite and have no respect whatsoever for other people's property. We have thought of putting up a fence in the backyard so our children can play there alone and yet we hate to exclude the others if they could play nicely together.

UNDECIDED.

I don't blame you for not wanting your children to learn rough manners from their young neighbors, but to isolate them from all contacts with others could have harmful as well as helpful results. Perhaps you could limit the time that they could spend with the neighbor children, and as you watch them play together show the others how their roughness takes a lot of joy out of their games. It takes time, I know, but by trying to make their play more constructive, you may be able to improve the other children's conduct. They don't realize they are doing wrong and although their behavior is their parents' responsibility, you could do a fine thing for them—and at the same time protect your own children—by leading them into gentler ways.

If you want to meet congenial friends, send for Martha Carr's free lists of clubs for men and women. There is one list for young adults, one for adults between the ages of 30 and 50, and one for senior citizens. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Hidden Meaning

By Ruth Millett

WHY do men claim there's no understanding a woman when it's so easy for a woman to figure out what a man means by what he says?

When a man asks, "Does it have to be done right now?"

little longer than usual" it means that "the boys" will probably stop off for a few beers after the meeting.

When a man looks worried or acts irritable yet tells his wife there is nothing the matter, it simply means he hasn't decided just how much to tell her about his troubles.

When a man says, "Ask your mother" to one of his children it means he thinks the answer should be "no" but doesn't want to be the one to say it.

When a man says, "Boy, what a day this has been" he is asking not to be bothered with any family problems or asked to do any odd jobs.

When a man starts complaining about how much it will cost to get the old car in good running condition he isn't considering having it done. He's setting the stage for bringing home a new car.

When a man says "um . . . mm" and goes right on reading it means he hasn't heard a word his wife said.

But when a man says "Don't buy anything that isn't absolutely necessary for the next few months" you can bet your bottom dollar he means exactly what he says.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER writes: "I would very much like your opinion on the following matter: My husband died recently and the day after the funeral a floral piece arrived from an out-of-town friend. Apparently there was some mix-up either by the florist or by the person who sent them as to when the funeral was to be. As I didn't know what to do with it, I refused to accept it and sent it back to the florist. I have been told that it was unforgivably rude of me to return the flowers. Perhaps I did act in haste, but what was I to do with it?"

EMILY POST

To send the flowers back was certainly very unappreciative. If the distance had not been too great, you should have taken the floral piece out to the cemetery and put it on the grave. Otherwise, there was nothing to do but try to rearrange the flowers and keep them in the house or send them to the hospital and write a note of thanks to the sender.

DEAR MRS. POST: I will be graduating in June and in discussing graduation announcements the other day in class, the question came up as to the purpose of the two envelopes that are customarily sent with invitations and announcements. No one seemed to know the answer.

Answer: This custom began with wedding invitations and the wish to have the envelopes spotlessly clean. This envelope was protected by a second outside one which was stamped and went through the handling of the mail.

Seen and Heard in Hollywood

By Sheila Graham

HOLLYWOOD. FRANK SINATRA is shipping his swanky car to Spain for his "Pride and the Passion" picture. Like co-star Cary Grant, Frankie, who stars with Grace Kelly in "High Society," will not be able to attend her wedding because of his picture in Spain for Stanley Kramer. This mammoth movie starts April 2, and should finish Aug. 10.

Edmund O'Brien is dieting seriously—10 pounds gone, and 15 more to go. Ed's next film, "Buffalo Grass," will co-star him with Alan Ladd for Alan's company. Ladd and the Mrs. are getting in their car pretty soon to call on exhibitors through the Midwest and up to Chicago, to show them "A Cry in the Night." It's a "Desperate Hours" type of picture, with Raymond Burr as a maniac who kidnaps Natalie Wood.

Guest who is the heavy in Doris Day's "Julie" is suave, handsome Louis Jourdan, who does his best to murder D.D. . . . Joe Di Maggio and Swedish movie actress Zahra Nardo—Miss Sweden of 1955—a nighty coo come at New York's Eden Roc restaurant.

ELAINE STEWART—What ever happened to her career at Metro?—has resumed with Bob Evans, who used to swoon for Terry Moore. . . . Donna Reed, now winding up "Black Monks," will attend the Cannes Film Festival with producer-husband Tony Owen.

Aly Khan's fiancée, Bettina, wrote her buddy, designer Valla De Milly, canceling the jaunt to New York, with no explanation. . . . John Ford is starting a permanent movie studio in Dublin where he made "The Quiet Man." His next picture over there will be "Three Leaves of a Shamrock."

Dean Martin's recording of "Memories Are Made of This" is the No. 1 hit in England, and I love a record writer's comment: "It sounds remarkably like the one by an unknown American girl, Gale Storm." Haven't they heard of "My Little Margie"?

PAUL GREGORY is in the odd position of suing himself. "I'm going into court for declaratory action on what Gregory Goodman want to do with my contract," he told me. He'd like them to do something.

FRANK SINATRA . . . GOING MOVIE-MAKING IN SPAIN.

Helen Grayco is taking the big step. After a short tour with husband Spike Jones, she will make her bid as a solo singing star in the smart supper clubs. Helen is being guided by Earl Mills, personal manager for Dorothy Dandridge.

Actor-turned-press-agent Michael O'Shea, who had the name first, he assures me, is now, "to avoid any further departments of utter confusion," using the full name of Michael Sean O'Shea, and writes to tell me of his job as national publicity director for the American Theater Wing, which is currently in the throes of voting for the best play, best performance, etc. Looks like two old-timers, Paul Muni for "Inherit the Wind" and Edward G.

Robinson for "Middle of the Night," will be fighting it out for best male dramatic star. They have special and separate awards for musical stars and musicals in New York. We could copy that idea in Hollywood.

Rossana Rory, imported here by Warners, was at Metro the other day, testing for the lead with Robert Taylor in "Power and the Prize." Robert at this point is not bothered by who his leading lady is. "All I want to make sure of is no costume pictures," he says.

Joseph Cotten has bought a new home in Pacific Palisades overlooking the ocean, and his other house is now on the market. While Joe was in Las Vegas visiting buddy Orson Welles, Orson—who wanted to do well by Joe—introduced him with: "The only actor in Hollywood with two tennis courts."

The Little Woman

Meeting Other Americans in Germany

By Clarissa Start

I WAS seated in an office in Hamburg, Germany, when a spectacled young man wearing a beret came in. Our interpreter, someone I held out my hand cordially. "Guten Tag," I said. "Ich bin Frau Davidson."

Clarissa Start.

The young man, Ed Schroeder, whose wife is the former Marie Hoyer, daughter of a Concordia Seminary professor, was one of the many Americans we met while traveling in Germany. I had started out with a list of at least 50, all recommended to me by their friends and parents as the best possible source of diversion in my free time. This free time was once peppered by Russian bullets; their everyday lives are filled with a series of dramatic enough to give a TV writer full time employment.

THE SCHROEDERS are spending a study year in Germany. She is a Fulbright scholar studying German literature and he is working on his doctorate in theology. Since they speak good German their study problems are minor. At Heidelberg, however, I looked up Won Yong Ji, a Korean boy who formerly stayed with the Henry Wolff family in Maplewood. Won Yong admitted that his study is not without its complications. For instance, he must translate Hebrew into Korean, Korean into English, and English into German in order to take notes.

At Gosner Mission in Mainz we met, by accident, another young St. Louisan, pretty blonde Barbara Premer, daughter of the director of the Downtown Y, who is working in Germany so she can "learn more about Europe than you get on the usual tour of cathedrals and museums." At the mission she works with young refugees who are attending college. One of our clergymen asked what interested the young men most—rearmament, reunification? "They're normal," the director smiled. "They're interested in Barbara."

WE VISITED several Army and Government families—Jim and Marianna Schein who live in Berlin where Jim, a former Post-Dispatch reporter, is in charge of United States Information Service. The Scheins live in an attractive home in which the grandfather clock was once peppered by Russian bullets; their everyday lives are filled with a series of dramatic enough to give a TV writer full time employment.

At Wiesbaden, we saw Russell and Lucille Johnson and Jim and Doris Sprong, both Army officer families. Army families live comfortably, have attractive apartments, reasonably priced servants, and few complaints except for an occasional yearning for something typically American—"like hamburgers at a drive-in after a movie," said Doris. One young Army officer, we didn't get to see. Marie Harrington had assured us we wouldn't need an address for her son, Dick. "Just call the Army, JAG office in Heidelberg," she said. "That'll get him."

When we reached Heidelberg from Munich, I called the Army, for two hours one evening, being switched from information to Ordnance to things called USRA and UNSRA, talking to charming Southern voiced young men who sympathized with my plight but invariably got cut off leaving me with that frustrating radar signal of German telephones. Once I thought I had traced him to Patrick Henry, Patrick Henry, it developed, is a city.

Finally, the next morning I found someone who knew Lt. Harrington. He had just left for Munich, said the nice voice. Did I have any messages, any words of advice?

"Yes," I said, "tell him not to try to call anyone by Army telephone."

A Change of Environment For the Child

By Angelo Patri

THE teacher sent this note to Florrie's mother: "Florrie is flighty. She is never still for more than a few minutes, so she never finishes a lesson. She stops work, goes to see what another child is doing instead of attending to her own work. Her attention span is too short for the demands made upon it by third-grade work. Perhaps a specialist's services are indicated."

At first Florrie's mother thought she ought to be indignant. Then she had a second thought. Florrie was flighty. She kept talking when she had nothing to say. She sat in one chair a few minutes, restlessly, and hopped up to cross the room. Her mother, hopped up again to see who was going by, and kept this up until bedtime, when she fussed about having to go to bed all alone, in the dark, in the lonesome dark. Maybe the teacher had some right on her side. Maybe the doctor ought to see her.

THE DOCTOR LISTENED.

Listened patiently for what seemed to be a long time as Florrie's mother told him the story of the child's habits. "I see," he said. "I fear you are not going to like my prescription. I suggest strongly, that you let Florrie go for a long visit to her grandmother. That you do not visit her there for at least a month. In my opinion, Florrie needs only a serene atmosphere for a while. You are not a serene person."

"Can't you give her some medicine to quiet her nerves?" "She needs no medicine. Just a peaceful, serene atmosphere about her. I believe she will gain control of herself very soon if it is granted that for the next few months, the separation will do you a lot of good, too."

"The very idea! The very idea! I'm not fit to take care of Florrie. I like that! Do me good, that does he think?" But Florrie went to her grandmother's house for a long stay, went to school there and calmed down nicely as time went by. And her mother did find she felt better.

A CHANGE of environment, when it can be arranged, is a good idea when mothers and children get on each other's nerves. It is good too, when a child, discovering that he can command his mother, makes her life miserable by refusing to be bathed and dressed, by refusing his food, by doing his best to make her dramatize them. A change of scene, a change of caretaker, any change that will place the youngster in a new situation of place, persons, conditions, will help.

Ailing children are often helped by a change of environment. New faces, new conditions, are a challenge and often the ailing child who could not be pacified at home gets along nicely away from it.

Too, a weary mother can be greatly relieved when a difficult child goes off for a visit or to a boarding school. Mothers have rights, too.

Duchess's Autobiography

Memoirs on Marriages

NEW YORK, March 20 (UPI). THE Duchess of Windsor's first marriage to Earl Winfield Spencer Jr. was a matter of love at first sight and disillusion soon after the honeymoon.

In the second installment of her autobiography published today in McCall's magazine, the Duchess blames the failure of her marriage to the handsome, dashing Navy air officer to "a festering discontent with himself" which gradually transformed Spencer into a "mixed up neurotic." He turned to alcohol and not to her for solace, she said.

Wallis Warfield, the Baltimore belle, and Spencer, a Chicagoan, were married in 1916. She obtained a Virginia divorce in 1927, six years after the day she decided to leave him. She said she spent the day locked in the bathroom by her husband who proceeded to drink himself into a stupor.

THE DUCHESS'S family strongly opposed divorce and the Duchess herself found that her love for Spencer persisted "like an afterglow long after the emotional fire had burned out." After a whirl in Washington's urbane diplomatic set and a fling in Paris with a widowed girl friend, the Duchess decided to make a fresh start with Spencer—this time in Hong Kong and Canton where he was stationed.

"For a few weeks all was well," she wrote. "Then without warning the old jealousies and resentments began to reassert themselves. He accused me of having 'carried on' with the officers aboard the 'Chau-mont' (the Navy vessel that had brought her to the Orient) and with men in Hong Kong during his absence."

Other indignities followed, according to the Duchess, and she finally returned to America with only a $225-a-month allowance from Spencer to face the reality of divorce. She said she "still believed in marriage and that within its framework lay my true destiny and my happiness."

Settled in a cheap hotel in Warrenton, Va., to establish residence for a divorce, the Duchess made shopping forays to New York where friends introduced her to a wealthy young banker, Ernest Simpson, who was unhappily married. Simpson was American born but had become a British subject because of ancestral ties and business interests. The Duchess found him "an unusually well-balanced man."

Wallis Warfield Spencer and Ernest Simpson were married in 1929 in London. They whirled off to the Continent in an elegant, chauffeured yellow La-gonda touring car for a honeymoon.

"I was very happy," the Duchess wrote as a conclusion to the installment, "and for the moment, felt a security I had not experienced since early childhood."

A New 'Magic Flute'

By Thomas B. Sherman

A NEW RECORDING of Mozart's opera "The Magic Flute" is undoubtedly the best that has been produced since the advent of the long-playing record. Its superiority is uniform, extending from the more important principals to the trio of "boys" who point the way to Tamino during the course of his trials. The Queen of the Night's role, which has been inadequately filled in other recent recordings, is impressively sung by Rita Stiech. She is thoroughly secure in all her flashy coloratura passages—or rather she makes the listener feel secure—and at the same time has enough vocal weight for its dramatic requirements which are unusual. The very, demonic quality of the Queen's two big arias must be articulated. Maria Stader as Pamina and Ernst Halfinger as Tamino are both alive to the delicate poetry, expressed on a high level of feeling, in their roles. Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau sings the role of Papageno with great warmth and fine style though he is no earthy Sancho Panza. Josef Griendl as Sarastro loses some of his nobility of bearing in the spoken dialogue, but imparts a nobility of sentiment to his singing. Choral parts, sung by the R.I.A.S. Chamber Choir and the Berlin Motet Choir, are exactly right in texture and dynamic shading. The orchestra involved in R.I.A.S. Symphony of Bedini Friesay, the conductor, exacts a free-flowing movement with the texture a little on the light side. The reproduction captures the differentiated timbres of voices and instruments quite successfully. (Decca, three 12-inch LPs in album with German text and English translation by Ruth and Thomas Martin.)

VOCAL: Mozart as a song writer is comparatively unadventurous but his songs are consistently ingratiating and particularly so when sung by an artist such as Elizabeth Schwartzkopf. Mme. Schwartzkopf—accompanied by Walter Gieseking whose outstanding talents are scarcely needed—sings a group of 16 of the Mozart songs including "Das Veilchen" to words by Goethe and the familiar "Am Chloë." Her voice is beautifully reproduced; the piano, however, is too dry and percussive. (Angel, one 12-inch LP.)

ORCHESTRAL: The Cleveland Orchestra conducted by George Szell presents vigorous performances of two Haydn symphonies: No. 88 in G Major and No. 104 in D Major. (Epic, one 12-inch LP.) The orchestra sounds like an expert body of musicians and Szell of course is a scholarly, authoritative conductor. Even so he seemingly has overlooked many of the lyrical possibilities of both symphonies.

Bruckner's Eighth Symphony in the 1890 version is played by the Pro Musica Symphony of Vienna under the baton of Jascha Horenstein with sustained breadth of feeling. The 1890 version is an edited text but its differences from the original score were made—or at any rate approved—by the composer. There is still another version extant and the Brucknerites are waging a quiet internecine warfare over the merits of each. Whatever the outcome of this dispute the 1890 revision is long enough, in all conscience. The effect of its prolixity could have been tempered somewhat by a more dramatic use of dynamic contrasts and tempo modifications but the Brucknerites, no doubt, would regard this as a kind of heresy. (Vox, two LPs in album.)

BEST SELLERS: CARUSO: A selection of operatic arias and songs as recorded by the most famous tenor of modern times. (RCA-Victor, three 12-inch LPs in de luxe album.)
TSCHAIKOWSKY: "Overture 1812" played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and associated brass band and complete with the sound effects of bells and cannon; and the "Capriccio Italien." Antal Dorati is the conductor. (Mercury, one 12-inch LP.)

Leakage

It's often possible to stop a leak along the seam of a water storage tank by running a cold chisel along the beveled edge of the seam. Tap the chisel lightly to force the edge of the upper plate down against the lower plate of the seam.

Corned beef (home cooked) is good to serve for a Saturday night supper when the gang's coming over. Buy a piece of the corned beef that weighs around five pounds. Cover it with cold water, in a large kettle, and add some extra seasonings: pepper-corns, a bay leaf or two, celery seeds, a garlic clove, a half dozen whole cloves, some celery tops and a sliced carrot. Bring the water to a boil, then simmer the beef—covered—until very tender. The simmering will take four hours or more so leave plenty of time for this preparation. Slice the corned beef and serve warm with potato salad and cole slaw, hot rolls, lots of pickles.

Sundae Tray

If there are teen-agers in your house, they will love a Sundae Tray. Fill four small clear-glass apothecary jars with ice cream toppings. One jar can hold crushed peppermint candy, another tidbits of semi-sweet chocolate, another salted peanuts and another shredded coconut or maraschino cherries. Arrange the jars on a tray and pass with ice cream.

Flank Steak

Flank steak may be broiled—about five minutes on each side, and about two inches from the source of heat. It must be cut in extremely thin slices diagonally across the grain. Prepared this way, the meat makes excellent steak sandwiches.

FEBRUARY, the second month of the year, obtained its name from "februa," a word in the Latin language.

Q. What does "februa" mean?

A. "Feasts of purification."

In the middle of February, sacrifices were carried out.

Q. Is February the birth month of many famous people?

A. Indeed it is! Few other months can equal the number of brilliant men and women who came into the world in February. Among them are:

Thomas Edison, inventor; Galileo, Italian scientist; Arrhenius, Swedish chemist; Alessandro Volta, electrical pioneer; Susan B. Anthony, woman suffrage leader; Adelina Patti and Enrico Caruso, opera singers; Copernicus, Polish astronomer; John Ruskin, English writer; Jules Verne, French author; Ellen Terry, actress; Charles Dickens, novelist; George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, American presidents; Charles Darwin, English scientist; Mendelssohn, Chopin and Handel, masters of music; Victor Hugo and Henry W. Longfellow, writers.

Q. What are some of the important events which took place in February?

A. Coronado, Spanish explorer, started his search for the "Seven Cities of Gold" in February.

Q. Why are women supposed to have the privilege of proposing marriage during a leap year?

A. The true reason has been lost. One old legend says that St. Patrick granted the right to Irish women. A Scottish law, 568 years ago, gave "any maiden lady of high or low estate" the liberty to propose, and added, "if he refuses to take her as his lawful wife, he shall be fined one pound or less."
